Seeks Congress Action or Roosevelt Order to Clarify Law.

City 'Model Home' Program Involved

Secretary Predicts Early Solution After Visit to White House.

By Walter Onslow.

Washington's slum clearance and model housing project and the rest of the $100,000,000 National housing program were temporarily suspended yesterday by Secretary of the Interior Ickes following a "ruling" from Comptroller General J. R. McCarl holding the Public Works Emergency Housing Corporation unconstitutional.

Although the Comptroller General's office denied it had made a formal decision, Ickes declared McCarl's opinion had "tied up" operations of the housing corporation.

Throughly aroused by the McCarl stand, which he termed "a direct violation of an executive order of the President," Ickes said he would introduce a bill in Congress legally defining the rights of the housing corporation and investing it with powers to function. However, after consulting with President Roosevelt, Ickes said he hoped the bill would not be necessary.

Ickes Modifies Criticism.

Announcement by Ickes that McCarl had held the housing corporation unconstitutional caused a considerable flare up at the Public Works Administration, but it appeared late yesterday the difficulties were headed for solution.

It was the second time within the last few days that Ickes had run up against the Comptroller General in administering his recovery agencies. The first difficulties arose when an executive order gave the Comptroller General the right to pass upon Public Works expenditures. Ickes protested, and the order was modified.

Yesterday's letter from McCarl was in response to a request from Ickes as to whether the housing corporation might legally advance money for options on slum clearance sites. Although he declared that "until the Comptroller General learns he is not running the housing corporation, we can not move a hand," Ickes later modified his vigorous criticism of McCarl's action.

Leaves White House Optimistic.

"We'll work it out some way," he said, leaving a meeting of the Executive Council at the White House. "I hope legislation will not be necessary to clear up the situation. The letter was not final rul-

Quake in India Kills Hundreds

City of 50,000 Entirely in Ruins; Bodies Fill Streets.

Bombay, India, Jan. 17 (Wednesday) (U.P.)—The mountainous Bihar district of north-central India, near the foot of the Himalaya Mountains lay in ruins today and upwards of 1,000 persons were killed in Monday's terrific earthquake, according to advices reaching Bombay today from the devastated zone.

An account of the damage in and around the City of Mufafarpore, in the center of the earthquake area, was given by Capt. Dalton, a member of an air party touring India. Dalton flew over the stricken terrutory. He said the entire district around Mufafarpore, a city of 50,000, was "entirely devastated."

Dalton reported that there was scarcely a building left standing in Musafarpore. Describing the scenes Dalton said:

"The city streets were filled with bodies. Hundreds appeared buried in the debris.

"When the earthquake occurred, large fissures apepared in the ground, and water spouted high into the air, spreading until a vast area was submerged to a depth of five feet."

Searchers Find $5,000 Strewn Along Track

Daggett, Mich., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Hundreds of residents of this Menominee County village were walking along the railroad track between here and Stephenson today picking up money, postoffice orders and letters.

The treasure hunt started soon after a man found a check on the tracks. A mail car hook apparently did not make a proper connection with a mail bag at the Bark River station and its contents were scattered. Searchers estimated that $5,000 had been found.

Ray More Dangerous Than Radium Created

Flow of 10,000,000 Neutrons Per Second, Secured First Time Out of Vacuum, May Be Able to Transmute Elements.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

Berkeley, Calif., Jan. 16.—A new ray more penetrating than either X-rays or radium, a ray made of neutrons—the most disruptive substance known to science—has been developed at the University of California.

The ray is a flow of 10,000,000 neutrons a second, coming from a lead window. It is invisible. Although just a baby in the ray class, and potentiality the most dangerous ever produced, it has possibilities both for experiments in medicine and for building up the heavy chemical elements out of the lighter.

Neutrons are ultimate particles of matter discovered in England less than three years ago. They differ from the other fundamental particles because they have no electrical charge. This "zero charge" is held to explain their penetration.

They find no obstacle in the heavy "wall" of electricity guarding the nuclei of the atoms of all elements. They shoot through undeflected unless they make a direct hit on a material particle in an atom. If they hit, their weight—1,800 times the mass of an electron—causes more spectacular results than other types of rays.

Neutrons have been available only in small quantities, their action confined to interiors of vacuum tubes. The California apparatus yields them in great numbers, and for the first time, so far as reported, brings them outside the tube.

This neutron ray was developed by Prof. E. O. Lawrence and Dr. M. Stanley Livingston. It is made in the negative field of a magnet as high and wide as a barn door, weighing 85 tons. The south pole of this magnet rises, flat-topped, as

5 Japanese Held by U. S. In Photo Quiz

Government Railway Aids Arrested Near High Speed Highway.

Kearney, N. J., Jan. 16 (U.P.)—Five Japanese government employes were taken in custody here late today after police found them photographing the Pulaski skyway, principal motor route leading out of New York to the Newark Airport and the South.

The Japanese, police said, were in an automobile parked on the plank road in Kearney Meadows, beside the super highway. Each was equipped with a camera.

The highway photographed is a high-speed viaduct, connecting with the Holland Tunel to reach Manhattan. It reaches such heights in crossing the Passaic and Hackensack rivers that a battleship could go beneath it.

Are Government Employes.

Police sai dthe Japanese declared they had been engaged by their government in connection with electrical and power projects. They insisted, however, that they were taking pictures only to show friends and relatives.

They admitted, according to authorities, that they had taken pictures of the high voltage lines of the Public Service Corporation and of the power station of radio station WOR, in Kearny.

The elevated highway, one of the most heavily traveled motor roads in the country, is used almost exclusively for traffic between New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington.

The Japanese, in explaining why they were taking the pictures, said they wanted to impress relatives and friends in Japan with the "marvelous progress' being made in the United States.

A Civil Works Administration employe informed eKarny police that he had seen the five men apparently taking photographs of the Federal shipyards here. It was following this report that a search for the men was instituted.

U. S. Instructions Asked.

Kearny police said they were communicating with Federal authorities for instructions.

The five men, who were not immediately charged with any law violation, gave New York City address.

They are Yoriwo Yamanato, 37; Benzo Nishimura, 40; Shizuo Ade, 39; Y. Y. Ohtanti, 36, and Eisahura Fujli, 38.

Only one of the five men arrested could speak English and police said he had a passport. He is Shizuo Ade, and he identified himself as chief hydraulic engineer of the Japanese government railway. His companions, he said, are all employed by the govrnmnt railway at Tokyo.

Ad sd he came from Tokyo to San Francisco last November, and then to New York.

All five men were turned over to agents of the Department of Justice.

The Japanese Embassy has ordered the consul at New York to investigate the detention at Kearny, N. J., of five Japanese railway officials taken into custody for taking photographs, according to the United Press.

In the absence of official details the embassy had no comment to make.

Vandal Burns Peace Book On Way Here

World's Largest Volume to Be Shown in City Despite Damage.

Someone apparently opposed to peace propaganda yesterday set fire to the biggest book in the world, a book dedicated to peace.

The gigantic volume of the World Peaceways Organization, being brought to Washington for exhibition, was found partially destroyed in the Baltimore & Ohio car in which it had arrived here. Seals on the car had been broken.

The book, "War, the Super Racket," was to have been placed on display at the Woodward & Lothrop department store yesterday afternoon. It will be on display today, in spite of its damaged condition. Theresa M Durlach, president of World Peaceways, and Maurice Rosefield, New York, on going to the railroad yards at Florida avenue and Eckington place northeast, to move the book found the car surrounded by railroad detectives.

Inside the ropes which held the book in place stood the huge volume, its covers charred almost to illegibility.

Mrs. Burlach and Rosefield said last night they thought the car had been entered en route to Washington. Rosefield supervised the placing of the volume in the train Monday afternoon at New York.

"We do not know what happened to the Peace Book en route," stated D. L. Moorman, general passenger agent of the Baltimore & Ohio, here yesterday. "We simply know that damage was done to the book, either in transit or here."

Most of the 200,000 signatures inside of the volume, which were obtained in greater New York, were not damaged, Rosefield said. Some recent ones, obtained in Baltimore, were destroyed as they lay by the book, ready to be pasted inside.

Rosefield said his organization probably would continue to exhibit the volume despite its condition.

"This is the first time anything like this has happened," Rosefield asserted. "There have been veiled protests against exhibiting peace propaganda in stores. But people who so protest usually think we are advocating pacifism and unpreparedness. In reality we are merely trying to abolish war."

The volume was constructed in October. When it contains the signatures of 1,000,000 peace-minded citizens it will be sent to Geneva.

Mme. Paderewska Dies at Age of 75

Wife of Pianist Was Well Known in U. S.

Morges, Switzerland, Jan. 16 (A.P.). An illness of two years ended today in the death of Mme. Helena Paderewska, for 45 years wife of the distinguished pianist, Ignace Jan Paderewski.

Noted in America for her work in behalf of Poles during the World War, Mme. Paderwska, 74, died in the presence of her husband in the villa of their beautiful estate on the Swiss side of Lake Geneva.

Before her marriage in 1889 Mme. Paderewska was Helena Gorski, Baroness von Rosen, the daughter of Baron von Rosen, a Russian nobleman. She was the pianist-politician's second wife.

5 Per Cent "Cut" Called Airmail Bait

Award Finally Given at $340,000 Increase, Is Testimony.

A Republican leader's offer to help an air line operator secure a Government mail contract in consideration of a 5 per cent commission, a "nice contribution" to a Congressman's campaign fund, and a merger with another line that "had to be taken care of," was the evidence presented yesterday before the Senate Air Mail Committee.

Maj. William B. Robertson, former Army flier and pioneer commercial aviator, said that he did not know his would-be "good fairy," and identified him only as William Sachs, "leader of some Republican organization of Missouri."

Sach's offer said that he could arrange the contract award by long-distance telephone with the then Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, provided Robertson "got together" with the Wedell-Williams line in the Southwest.

A $340,000 Increase.

After indignantly refusing Sachs' offer, Robertson went to see Brown, who had previously promised him the contract on the St. Louis-New Orleans route. Brown promptly taxed him with having given Sachs a "cool reception," said Robertson, and three days later awarded the contract to American Airways, which cost the Government $340,000 a year more than his bid would.

The commission that Sachs proposed would have amounted to $175,000, Robertson estimated, although no definite sum was specified for his contribution to the campaign fund of Representative L. C. Dyer, of Missouri.

When he talked to the Postmaster General, said Robertson, his suggestion that he give the Wedell-Williams line 25 per cent interest in his Robertson Aircraft Corporation was vetoed by Brown in favor of 33 per cent. Later, the president of Wedell-Williams informed the witness that if he didn't get a half interest, the Robertson line would not get the coveted contract. They compromised on 49 per cent.

Brown Advised Merger.

Despite Robertson's protestations that he didn't want to merge, that he didn't need anything the Wedell-Williams line could offer in the way of equipment or prestige, Brown said that made no difference, that he "advised" the merger.

After the award of the contract to American Airways for $690,000 annually, Robertson said he tried to keep his line going, but was finally forced to junk his planes and retire from the subsidized competition.

The American Airways, he said, secured the entire line by extensions without competitive bidding from St. Louis to New Orleans. The cost to the Government on the run from St. Louis to Memphis was 63 cents a mile, and from Memphis to New Orleans, 89 cents.

Robertson's offer, which was in the form of a bid, was for 40 cents a mile. This figure, said the witness,

Wife Waits 5 Days By Mate She Killed

Ends Own Life After Vigil With Whimpering Dog.

Port Dover, Ont., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—For five days Mrs. Eva Gamble cowered in her home beside the body of her husband after shooting him, then she dragged the body to a chicken coop, returned to the house, and fired a bullet into her own head, police learned today from a note she left.

She said she shot him because of his brutality.

Killer Raids Prison Farm To Free Pal

Machine Gun, Hidden Pistols Drop 2 Guards; Five Escape.

Clyde Barron Launches Attack and Releases Ray Hamilton.

Huntsville, Tex., Jan. 16 (A.P.). Clyde Barrow, Southwest killer and robber, swooped down on the Eastham State Prison Farm today and with a blast of machine gun and pistol fire freed Raymond Hamilton, his former partner, and four other convicts—one of whom shot and wounded two guards.

The fugitives were lost quickly in a heavy fog as they sped away in two motor cars.

Lee Simmons, general manager of the State's prison system, said the break obviously was planned to free Hamilton, who had been sentenced to 263 years in 1933 for murder and robbery.

"Three pistols had been planted in a brush pile where the convicts were clearing timber," he said. "They knew where to look for them and one, Joe Palmer, dived into the brush soon after the gang went to work and came out with an automatic pistol. He let go with it right away."

Two Others Get Guns.

Two other convicts also went into the brush and came back with pistols. Palmer then fired at Olan Bozeman, a guard, and shot him through the hip. Bozeman returned the fire and Palmer then shot Maj. Crowson, the other guard.

"About that time," Simmons said, "two men rose up from the weeds at the edge of a drainage ditch nearby, one with a machine gun in his hand and the other with an automatic pistol. They opened fire. Palmer and four others made a dash for the ditch, crawled up the other side and ran to a car back of the farm. The driver sped away in the direction of Lovelady."

The horn of an automobile was sounded continually during the shooting to guide the convicts. There were reports that the aid might have been Bonnie Parke, two-gun, cigar-smoking woman companion of Barrow on his three-year career of major crime.

Others Remain Quiet.

Besides Hamilton and Palmer, the convicts who escaped were Henry Methvin, serving 10 years; W. H. Bybee, serving a life sentence, and J. B. French, serving 12 years. Palmer was serving a 25-year sentence.

Other prisoners in the group of 17 which had just started to work made no attempt to escape. They told prison officials Barrow manned the machine gun.

Radio, telephone and telegraph spread news of the break, and every peace officer in central Texas was warned to be on the watch.

Barrow's criminal record lists murders, robberies and kidnaping in virtually every Middle Western and Southwestern State. Hamilton went with him on his depredations frequently, but they separated over the affections of Bonnie Parker.

Schools of Alabama Begin Closing Friday

Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 16 (A.P.). Dr. D. V. Harrison, superintendent of schools, announced today that all public schools in Montgomery County will close Friday, affecting 20,000 school children and teachers.

Dr. A. F. Harmen, superintendent of education, announced that he still expects public schools in general to close by March 4, unless immediate financial aid is forthcoming.

Memphis Police Irked By Thefts in Churches

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 16 (U.P.)—Police Capt. John Foppiano today promised to break up stealing of overcoats, hats and other articles from churches during services "if I have to send the entire detective force to church every Sunday."

Rigid Kidnap Bill Passes.

Columbia, S. C., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—The Senate today approved and sent to the House a bill to make the penalty for kidnaping identical with that for murder in South Carolina.

Miss West (Mae to You) Feared Burglar Would 'Do Her Wrong'

Los Angeles, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Mae West, movie siren, was more concerned with the horrors of a broken nose and the possible loss of a screen contract than with the $3,400 in cash and the $12,000 in jewelry she gave up when a bandit held her up September 28, 1932.

Testifying today in the trial of Edward Friedman, charged with the robbery, the actress aid she knew she could earn back the money, but a "new face" was something else again.

Fortunately, the hold-up man did not injure her, although she said, he was nervous and "I didn't know whether he was going to hit me in the face and break my nose and knock a couple of teeth out, or not."

Miss West was robbed while sitting in the automobile of Harry Vaile, now fighting extradition from Illinois as a defendant in the case.

A squad of detectives closely guarded the actress in court because of threats of an unidentified man over the telephone that there would be trouble if she testified in Friedman's trial.

She told the jury the robber pointed a revolver at her and forced her to hand over her purse, then a diamond ring, and finally her diamond necklace.

She said her purse contained $3,400; three $1,000 bills, two $100 bills, and the rest in $20 and $50 bills.

She was asked if she was frightened when the revolver was pushed against her body.

"Yes, I guess I was," she replied. "But that guy's hand was shaking like a leaf. I didn't know whether he was going to hit me in the face and maybe break my nose and knock a couple of teeth out, or not. I was most afraid of that. I could make back that $3,400 any time, but I couldn't get myself a new face. I was remembering my contract."

Senators Glass, M'Adoo Ask Ruling on Legality Of President's Gold Bill

"Roosevelt or Ruin," Says Radio Priest

The camera catches Frank Vanderlip, prominent financier, in action as he appeared before the House Committee on Coinage, Weights and Measures yesterday to testify at hearings on President Roosevelt's plan to revaluate the dollar.

Detroit's famed "radio priest," Father Charles E. Coughlin, stole the show at the House Coinage Committee's hearing yesterday with the dramatic slogan, "Roosevelt or ruin."

The studied suggestions of Frank A. Vanderlip, white-haired, soft-spoken financier, for controlling the issuance of National currency through a central bank were overshadowed by the forensic eloquence of the picturesque, wavy-haired young clergyman who exclaimed: "If Congress fails to back up the President in his monetary program,

Cummings Asked To Given Opinion

Reserve Banks Will Not Benefit by Measure, Black Asserts.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Acceding to the demands of two former Democratic Secretaries of the Treasury, the Senate Banking and Currency Committee late yesterday called on Attorney General Homer S. Cummings for a written opinion on the Constitutionality of the Administration's gold revaluation bill.

This action, taken in an executive session attended by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., and his advisers, was followed by a decision to call before the committee for questioning behind closed doors certain monetary officials and advisers of the Administration. The first secret session will start at 4 p. m., today.

Earlier in the day, Senate Republicans held a party conference but failed to adopt any attitude toward the gold bill, except to demand "adequate hearings." Apparently, members of that party on the Banking and Currency Commitee regarded as "adequate" the hearings decided on late in the afternoon, since there was no controversy on that point, according to Senator Duncan U. Fletcher (Democrat) Florida, chairman of the committee.

Black Dashes Hope.

Some of the heart was taken out of opponents of the Administration's proposal to commandeer the gold hoardings of the Federal Reserve system, giving gold certificates in exchange, by the announcement of Gov. Eugene Black of the Federal Reserve Board that it was agreed "the Reserve banks should NOT be the beneficiaries of the enhanced values placed on their gold holdings by a purely monetary policy of the Government."

Gov. Black explained this conclusion was reached after a meeting of Federal Reserve bank governors. The group, through Gov. Black, acquainted President Roosevelt with their attitude on December 29, suggesting only that title to the Federal Reserve gold be taken by Congressional action instead of executive order.

Illustrative of the significance of the attitude of the reserve system officials was the reaction of Sena-

Republicans Are Victors In Vermont

Representative, Senator Elected as State G.O.P. Gains.

Montpelier, Vt., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Vermont held firm to its Republican traditions today in the State's first test of political strength since 1932 by electing to Congress a Republican senator, Ernest W. Gibson, and a Republican representative, Charles A. Plumley.

In a special election marked by a light vote, the Republicans showed a slight gain, proportionately, over the vote recorded in the election that carried Franklin D. Roosevelt and his Administration into office. The total vote, however, was less than half that cast in 1932 when the opposing candidates for United States senator together received more than 134,000.

Gibson, who resigned as the State's only Representative in order to enter the race for the Senate, occasioned by the death last year of Senator Porter H. Dale, defeated Harry W. Witters, his Democratic opponent, by more than 7,500 on the basis of incomplete returns which indicated a total vote of barely 50,000.

Plumley, who resigned as president of Norwich University after winning the Republican nomination for epresentative in a spRecial primary last month, defeated Robert W. Ready, Democratic lawyer of St. Albans, by a margin only slightly less than that recorded for Gibson.

Two counties which voted for the Democratic senatorial candidate in 1932—of the 14 in the State—went Republican in today's election. Two others, Chittenden, in which the city of Burlington is located, and Rutland, in which the city of Rutland is the principal community, went Democratic by considerable margins in 1932, and remained Democratic today but the per centage of vote was considrebly reduced.

$8,555,000 Paid Sears, Goodyear Books Show

Akron, Ohio, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., records showing the rubber corporation paid Sears, Roebuck & Co., more than $8,555,000 during seven years as rebates on tire manufacturing charges were introduced by Federal Trade Commission attorneys today in the hearing of the complaint that the Goodyear-Sears contract is a violation of the Clayton act.

Nazis Outlaw Labor Unions And Strikes

Employer Supreme Under New Semi-Feudal Control.

Berlin, Jan. 16 (U.P.).—Trade unions throughout Germany were ordered abolished and strikes and lockouts outlawed, under a labor law issued today, effective May 1.

The new law abolished practically the entire labor legislation passed since establishment of the German republic at the end of the World War.

It replaces the Republican system of collective agreements between employers and employes, substituting a semi-feudalism based on the supreme authority and personal responsibility of the individual employers. Employer associations are banned.

Significantly, the law calls the employer "leader," and terms laborers "followers," who are pledged to loyalty to the "leader." The law's basic idea is that neither the workers' unions nor the employers' associations in future shall be able to impose terms on individual concerns.

The Hitlerite authorities declare that collective wage agreements uniformly enforced in all plants tended to eliminate the economically weaker unions and thus were responsible for the growth of unemployment. But, they contend, under their new system every employer will be able to fix wages and safeguard the profit-making of any given concern.

The labor law eliminates or remodels all typically social institutions of the pre-Hitler era in Germany. Workers' councils elected by laborers and employes in individual plants are to be replaced by a "confidential council," appointed by the laborers upon the advice of Nazi authorities in that particular "cell," or Nazi party unit.

Workers may veto appointment of members to this confidential council, in which case the decision rests with the "labor trustee." These trustees are to be named by the Nazi government in every district, with practically dictatorial powers. They will fix wages and decide on dismissals in cases of differences of opinion among workers and employers.

Tanker Rams Into Dock.

Houston, Tex., Jan. 16 (A.P.).—The oil tanker Phoenix, out-bound in the Houston ship channel, ran into a dock here today, tearing a hole 30 feet long and 12 feet deep in the dock and a hole 10 by 12 feet in the forepart of the tanker above the water line.

France Open To Hitler Pact

Ready to Sign Separate Peace Treaty, Says Paul-Boncour.

Paris, Jan. 16 (U.P.).—France is willing to accept Chancellor Hitler's offer of a pact of non-agreement with Germany, Foreign Minister Joseph Paul- Boncour indicated in the Senate tonight.

Hitler recently offered to sign a 10-year pact with France and Belgium in exchange for certain increases in German araments.

Paul-Boncour's revelation that France was prepared to enter such a peace pact with Germany direct came as a surprise. He began with a discussion of the forthcoming Saar plebiscite problem at Geneva, which Germany was invited to attend.

Paul-Boncour stressed that France's policy is not to encircle the Reich with enemies, but that she, on the contrary, is offering Germany equal participation in the reconstitution of Central Europe.

However, he made it clear that neither France nor Italy intended to allow Germany to seize power in the Danube Valley by violation of Austria's independence.

"There are two main points in Franco-German friction," Paul-Boncour said, "namely, the Saar, and German propaganda in Austria. Neither is insurmountable.

Berlin, Jan. 16 (U.P.).—The government sent a letter to the League of Nations secretariat tonight, declining the suggestion that Germany participate in the discussion of the Saar plebiscite in the council of the League.

Traylor "Much Better;" Condition Not Serious

Early in the day it was announced that pneumonia had set in, but this was denied at the home. It was said the banker had been ordered to bed but that his condition had not at any time been serious.

Bloody Clothes At Trial Shake Dr. Wynekoop

Calm of Accused Woman Shattered by Sight of Death Garments.

Chicago, Jan. 16 (AP).—An array of evidence—antique appearing operating table, blood-stained garments, a small-caliber pistol—caused Dr. Alice L. Wynekoop to pale and ask for medical stimulants today at her trial on a charge of murdering her daughter-in-law.

The elderly defendant buried her head in her hands on the counsel table as if to shut out the sight of the reminders of the tragedy.

Her daughter, comely young Dr. Catherine Wynekoop, shook medicine into a glass of water, and Dr. Alice drank deeply. A five-minute recess was called, and the defendant soon appeared to regain her strength.

The recess was taken shortly after Charles S. Dougherty had advanced across the courtroom, holding aloft a silk shirt, stained as if by blood, for the witness, Policeman Arthur R. March to identify as having been taken from Rheta's body.

No Collapse, Says Daughter.

"Mother's attack in court was in no way a collapse," said Dr. Catherine.

Nevertheless, Dr. Wynekoop's pulse was disclosed by another physician, Dr. James Whitney Hall, to have reached 106 at the time of the attack, compared with a normal for her of 60.

During the argument Dougherty disclosed that the State expects to prove Rheta, 23, wife of Dr. Alice's son, Earle, died of a bullet wound in the heart inflicted by her mother-in-law—and not from chloroform.

Shortly after Rheta's death, Dr. Wynekoop signed an admission that she shot Rheta after inadvertently causing death by chloroform during a physical examination. She explained the shot as a desire to make death appear to have been at the hands of a prowler.

Bloody Clothes Emphasized.

Dougherty said the amount of blood on the garments, the operating table and a blanket and sheet covering the girl's body, would be of utmost importance in proving Rheta still lived when the shot was fired; the theory being the victim would have bled little if she already had been dead.

Dr. Wynekoop has retracted the admission and embarked on a defense that she knew nothing about Rheta's death before finding her body the night of November 21.

Policeman March, a State witness, identified 50 articles of evidence, many of them bearing alleged blood stains and connected intimately with Rheta's death.

His testimony for the first time placed the name of Earle Wynekeep, husband of the slain girl, into the court record. Earle has not entered the courtroom in four days of trial. The defense is expected to call him as a climactic witness.

Pistol Declared Earle's.

March said Dr. Alice told him at the Fillmore Street Police Station that the pistol found near Rheta's body had been given her by Earle. Previous testimony was that Earle had taken the weapon to a gunsmith for repairs a short time before.

The other two witnesses of the day—Miss Enid Hennessey, school teacher roomer in the Wynekoop home for ten years, and Mrs. Vera Duncan, neighbor and last known person to see Rheta alive—testified about Rheta's last day of life.

Both said they believed Rheta had gone downtown in mid-afternoon and that Dr. Alice appeared worried when the girl did not return for dinner.

3 More Ships Sent to Cuba

Destroyer Dispatched as Aftermath of Martin Regime Fall.

Three additional Navy ships have been assigned to Cuban waters since the overthrow of the Grau San Martin government, it was revealed here yesterday.

The destroyers Dupont and Glaxton were reported by the Navy Department to be en route to Cuban waters, and are expected at their stations today. The J. F. Talbott, of the special service squadron, was reported to have arrived at Guantanamo Naval Base Monday.

In addition, the operating schedules of the Mississippi, now at the Norfolk Navy Yard, and the New Mexico, now at the Philadelphia yard, will place both ships at Guantanamo within a few weks. The Mississippi is due to remain at the naval base from February 12 to April 4, the New Mexico from January 31 to April 4.

Opinion on Constitutionality Of Gold Revaluation Demanded

tor David A. Reed (Republican), Pensylvania, leader of the fight against the Thomas inflation amendment last spring. He said that if the Federal Reserve system would not fight to get a just compensation for its gold, surely, he would not become upset about it.

Meanwhile, over on the House side, Speaker Henry T. Rainey, after being pulled backward and forward all day in the fight between the House Banking and Currency Committee and the Coinage Committee to obtain jurisdiction of the bill, decided that it should go to the Coinage Commitee. Representative Henry B. Steagall (Democrat), Alabama, chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee, served ontice that he would ask the House to overrule the Speaker.

Before Steagall can make such a motion, however, he must obtain the permission of his committee. Although such a motion is not debatable, the Speaker allotted time for discussion of it today, explaining that because of the importance of the question, he would ask all members to refrain from making any point of order.

In the House the tussle between the two committees over the bill assumed greater importance than the measure itself. Steagall and Chairman Andrew L. Somers, of the oCinage Committee, prepared lengthy briefs explaining why each should be given jurisdiction of the bill. They piled on the Speaker so many reasons that when he appeared before the House to give his decision, he seemed confused, and at times became tangled up in his notes and briefs.

The Speaker relying chiefly on a memorandum prepared by House Parliamentarian Louis Deschler, ruled that precedents 100 years back favored the coinage committee. Solemnly the Speaker cited numerous precedents and promised to have more ready to insert in the Congressional Record today.

For a long time, keen rivalry has existed between the banking and currency committee and the coinage committee, the latter being relegated to the background in the last year or two. So enterprising are the members of this committee, that they started hearings on "dollar stabilization" even before President Roosevelt's message reached Capitol Hill.

Now, all the committee has to do is continue its hearings. During the day, it heard two well-known inflation advocates—Father Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit radio pries, and Frank A. Vanderlip, New York banker, applaud President Roosevelt's program.

Glass and McAdoo in Ring.

It was in the Senate, however, where the bill was expected to run into rough sledding. Although the Republicans appeared timid in their opposition, the fiery Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, joined by Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, of California—each a Secretary of the Treasury under Woodrow Wilson—insisted on knowing all the implications of the measure before letting it reach the Senate floor.

Senator Fletcher, who explained what happened in the secret session of the committee, said he would introduce the bill in the Senate today, with section 2 of the Administration draft rewritten, but only to clarify it. Since there is no coinage committee in the Senate, the measure will be referred back to the Fletcher committee.

The Floridian said that Morgenthau, who was accompanied by his counsel, Herman Oliphant, and John Layland, of the Justice Department, described the bill to the committee. He also laid before the committee Gov. Black's letter to the President foreswearing the profit on Federal Reserve gold resulting from revaluation.

In this letter, Gov. Black suggested that Congress might make some provision protecting the reserve system in event of further upward revaluation of the dollar. But the Administration bill sent to the Capitol did not contain any provision in this direction.

No Chance for Criticism.

Gov. Black contended that Congressional sanction to commandeering the Federal Reserve gold would "obviate all chances of criticism upon the Reserve System and upon the Administration in respect to the problem involved, and all uneasiness and unrest as to Reserve banks and their credit and currency functions."

"May I honestly urge that this Congressional course is the straight simple, legal course to all the ends desired," he continued.

"In conclusion, Mr. President, may I assure you that this suggestion is not written in the selfish interests of the Reserve banks, but in the interest of your Administration and the country, as in evidence of which I desire to repeat that the question of profit our gold is not involved, as I have heard no other suggestion from any member of our board or any Reserve bank than that any profit arising from a monetary policy of the Government should go to the Government."

Senator Fletcher said Senators Glas sand McAdoo explained to the committee that they were far from satisfied that the proposal to take the Federal Reserve gold was "legal." Senator McAdoo said he doubted whether the payment of a new species of gold certificates for this gold would satisfy the Constitutional requirement of "just compensation" for all property taken by the Government.

Asks for Opinion.

He asked for a written opinion by the Attorney General. The committee agreed to this request without dissension, Senator Fletcher said. It was then decided to summon Gov. Black and Adolph C. Miller, a member of the Federal Reserve Board, to appear before the committee today. Undoubtedly, they will be sharply questioned regarding their capitulation to the President's proposal.

The general counsel of the Federal Reserve Board, Walter Wyatt, and Attorney General Cummings also were summoned, an indication that the validity of the legislation will be an important aspect of the questioning.

Senator Fletcher said the committee also would hear Prof. James Harvey Rogers, Yale gold expert, who has been advising President Roosevelt. Asked if Prof. George F. Warren, proponent of the commodity dollar policy, would be called, Senator Fletcher said, "we'll decide that later."

In reply to an inquiry as to why the hearings would be held in secret, Senator Fletcher said, "I don't know." He explained that the motion calling for the hearings in executive session came from Senator John G. Townsend (Republican), Delaware, and that none dissented.

RFC Ends Gold Buying.

Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the RFC, announced during the day that purchase of gold by his agency had ceased at midnight Monday, except that transactions started before that hour would be completed.

Hereafter, gold purchases will be made by the Federal Reserve banks, acting as agents for the Treasury. The price of $34.45 an ounce for gold, set Monday, will remain in effect until further notice by the Treasury.

The deadline for the surrender of all gold to the Treasury, except that held by the Federal Reserve banks and collectors or those licensed to hold gold, will be reached at midnight tonight under the recent Executive orders. Those holding gold contrary to those orders after today will be subject to prosecution.

Bill Would Oust Montana Governor

Impeachment Also Asked for Secretary of State.

Helena, Mont., Jan. 16 (AP).—Impeachment of Gov. Frank A. Cooney of Montana and of San W. Mitchell, Secretary of tSate, was asked in a motion submitted to the House of Representatives today by Representative Herbert H. Haight (Democrat), of Lewistown.

Haight's action was based on the reports of three investigating committees which censured the Governor and Secretary of State in connection with their positions as members of the Board of Examiners, which directs the State's financial affairs.

Sinister?

Barkley Gives Sen. Glass a New Title.

Some indication of what one Senator thinks of another was given at yesterday's executive session of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, called to consider the new gold bill.

Big, hearty, blustering Senator Alben Barkley, of Kentucky, came into the room, saw Senator Glass, slapped him vigorously upon the back and boomed:

"Why, hello there, sinister!"

"Roosevelt or Ruin," Asserts Radio Priest at Hearing

I predict a revolution in this country which will make the French Revolution look silly!"

Packed to the doors, the caucus room of the old House Office Building rang with cheers. Men and women stamped their feet and beat their hands in approval as Father Coughlin—whose radio popularity is attested by the 150,000 letters he receives each week—beamed through his rimless spectacles and thumped the table. Three charwomen, who had left their duties to squeeze into the crowded room, dropped their mops to join the applause.

Uphold Gold Policy.

The "radio priest" had a program, however, as well as his microphone mannerisms. He staunchly upheld the doubling of the price of gold, and advocated the same thing for silver, as a step towards symmetalism. He declared the "base of the dollar" must be widened, so that debts may be paid with "sound and adequate money."

He said "revaluation without circulation is hyprocrisy," and that the United States must turn to the markets of the Orient so that "our workers won't have to be serfs under the CWA for the rest of their lives."

And if Father Coughlin, somewhat winded after more than two hours of verbal fireworks, during which the committee followed his flights of oratory with interest and the audience with frank, audible delight, finally lost a round or two of debate with blind Senator Gore, of Oklahoma, the day's honors remained with the handsome young priest.

At the morning session of the hearings, which are to study problems of revaluation, Banker Vanderlip quietly gave full support to President Roosevelt's monetary proposals, advocated return to the gold standard, and proposed to the committee that a Federal financial authority be set up, with power to issue currency without a fixed legal minimum of metal reserve.

Federal reserve banks would remain as a central reservoir for reserves of member banks, but would have no power to issue currency, under Vanderlip's plan.

Huge Crowd Attends Hearing.

Only a handful of spectators heard the New York banker, and they admitted they had come under the impression Father Coughlin was to speak. An hour before the afternoon session, there was only a little standing room left in the caucus hall.

Introduced by Chairman Somers as "one of the best authorities on money in the country," Father Coughlin disclaimed expertness on specific money matters, but said that as a student of its relation to humanity he had been agitating, for more than three years, for a change in the monetary system.

Declaring the war saved us from perhaps the worst panic of all, the priest said that afterwards we "borrowed our way into prosperity and forgot that the debts had to be paid."

He described the system of devaluation whereby the French divided their debts by five and became once more solvent, without going off the gold standard.

"A year ago," he said, "I began a campaign for revaluation of the gold ounce. At the time, the idea was held extremely radical. But the support of many statesmen gave me courage to carry on, until today our most beloved President has taken the first step.

"Valuation of gold at $20.67 an ounce is only a compartively modern fetish, of some 60 years standing. For the previous 60,000,000 years no one ever thought of such revaluation.

"Who invented this superstition, that gold was worth $20.67 an ounce—a superstition as idle as that of the God of Bale?"

Traces Gold Price.

Father Coughlin traced the fixing of the price of gold to the machinations of the Rothschilds, who sent "false reports of the Battle of Waterloo" to England, depreciating bonds which they then purchased afterwards selling at tremendous profit.

By 1873, he said, England had worked her way out the financial disaster to the extent of fixing the price of gold at $20.67 an ounce, "because at that price the bonds were payable." England demonetized silver, and one-fifth of the world, comprising the most cultured and enterprising nations went along.

"Yet these nations," he declared, "progressed not because of the gold standard, but in spite of it."

The single gold standard, at $20.67 proved to be a "bottle neck" through which the commerce of the world was forced to pass, and eventually clogged in passage. The problem became one of distribution, and the "bottle neck" couldn't distribute to the "hungry mouths and naked backs clamoring for the world's goods."

"When the war ended, we woke up to find we had a debt of $235,000,000,000, some government, some corporate, some private, but all payable in gold. With our capital limited to the 2½ to 1 as far as our gold was concerned, we were away out of line."

Cut Debts in Half.

President Roosevelt, said Father Coughlin, "has caught the true meaning of regulate. He has seen the need of making money the servant of man; not man the servant of money."

"The President has said:

"'To save ourselves, let us widen the base of the dollar.'"

With a sweeping gesture, the priest exclaimed:

"We cut our debts in half yesterday!"

Amidst applause, Father Coughlin added:

"That is, provided the President will follow through, and I am sure he will."

The process of "following through," he divided into several parts, first of which would be that the dollars of the country would be doubled. Each ounce of gold we hold would be worth $42.06.

"Of course I understand that this is not yet the law," he said. "I know it will be up to you gentlemen to decide.

"But gentlemen, if you fail to follow through, and back up the President, I predict a revolution in this country which will make the French revolution look silly.

"Roosevelt or Ruin."

"It is Roosevelt or ruin!"

Explaining why he felt qualified to tell the temper of the people, Father Coughlin said he received 150,000 letters a week.

"I know the pulse of the Nation," he exclaimed. "And I know Congress will do nothing but say: 'Mr. Roosevelt, we follow.'"

A second phase of "following through," said Father Coughlin, will be to raise wage levels and have an additional circulation of money in the hands of the people.

"Revaluation without circulation is hypocrisy," he exclaimed, raising his voice and gesturing, while the audience applauded.

The third phase of "following through" is concerned with the question, "what are we going to do about silver, and why?" said the priest.

"President Roosevelt has said that something is going to be done," he asserted.

Referring to his recent radio addresses, Father Caughlin told of 800,000,000, in the Orient who had silver for the base of their currency.

"The greatest wall in history is not the Great Wall of China, but the silver wall between the productions of the United States and its potential markets in the East."

European Market Gone.

As for European markets, Father Coughlin declared they were becoming nonexistent.

"Europe," he said, "has our brains, our blue prints, our machinery and our money. Now she is producing more wheat than she needs and can actually export to the United States, as I believe I said over the radio Sunday.

"It is only a superstition that Europe is going to be a big customer. We are practically through in Europe.

"But are we going to lie down and die?"

"No, we're going to find a market, and make one. Let's turn to the Orient!"

India has been cultivated for the United States by Gandhi, he said. But first it will be necessary to raise the price of silver and nationalize it.

Silver is all right as money, he said. "It is the oldest money in the world. Christ was betrayed for 30 pieces of silver. And long after we have gold, we will have silver."

Father Coughlin urged the committee to take such action regarding silver in our currency as to win Eastern markets, "so that our workers won't have to be serfs under the CWA for the rest of their lives."

The true "yellow peril," he said, was that our factories might remain idle, while someone else supplied the needs of the East.

Urges Silver Monetization.

"My suggestion is that the Government nationalize all the commercial silver in the Nation," he continued. "There's about $100,000,000 at about 45 cents an ounce.

"Then the United States can go into the market and buy all the 'spot' silver in the country, eventually obtaining it all, with the price up to approximately 56 cents an ounce.

"Then other countries will sell, and we could buy some $300,000,000 worth under 64 cents an ounce. Then we could nationalize it!"

Referring to "the so-called Gresham law" at this point, Father Coughlin said:

"It wasn't his law at all. He stole it. Gresham was a high-fallutin' Irishman—the boy friend of Queen Elizabeth. It's really Cardinal Bellamy's law."

The priest said he preferred symmetallism, with a higher per centage of gold than silver. He said President Roosevelt did, too.

"God is directing President Roosevelt," he concluded. "He is the answer to our prayers. We think we've had prosperity and lost it, but I tell you that five years from now we will have a better prosperity than was ever dreamed of.

"If you gentlemen do your part in backing up the President this Seventy-third Congress will be more famous in history than the First one."

D. C. Heads Ask Bill to License Electricians

Measure Also Regulating Equipment Sales Given to Budget Bureau.

A bil providing for licensing of master electricians, master fixture hangers, journeymen electricians and journeymen fixture hangers was submitted to the Budget Bureau yesterday by the District Commissioners to ascertain whether it is in conflictwith any Federal measures.

The measure would authorize the Commissioners to appoint a board of three trained craftsmen, a master electrician a journeyman electrician and the electrical engineer of the District government.

It also would require examination and registration of applicants for licenses in the trades specified and execution of $2,000 bonds by every master electrician or master fixture hanger. The fee for masters would be between $10 and $25 a yar and for journeymen $5.

No electrical material or appliance could be installed in violation of regulations which would be adopted.

"This control is highly essential as there is a great quantity of electrical materials and appliances being sold in the District which is unsafe from the fire hazard standpoint," the Commissioners wrote.

"There are quite a number of incompetent and unreliable persons now engaged in electrical contracting. There are probably 250 persons working, of whom not more than 100 are qualified.

"At present any one may do, or attempt to do, electrical work whether or not he is qualified."

Edith McCormick Treasures on Sale

Rare Furnishings Knocked Down in Chicago.

Chicago, Jan. 16 (AP). — Antique tapestries, rare rugs and museum pieces of furniture of the late Edith Rockefeller McCormick, social arbitrator and once Chicago's richest woman, went under the auctioneer's hammer today in the mansion on Lake Shore Drive to satisfy claims against the estate.

Every effort was made to keep the furnishings in the stately home—the gift of her father, John D. Rockefeller, sr. — as Mrs. McCormick had had them arranged in her lifetime, and when the sale began, the atmosphere was almost that of a musical.

In order to limit the attendance to buyers, a $10 admission fee was charged at the door. This was applied to purchases.

Traffic Speeded As 13th Street Becomes 1-Way

Official Approves System for Rush Hours After First Day's Trial.

AAprehensive moforists were guided on their various ways by special details of police. Only southbound traffic was permitted between Kansas and Massachusetts avenues northwest from 8 to 9:30 a. m. From 4 to 6 p. m. only northbound traffic flowed.

Acting Traffic Director M. O. Eldridge placed his stamp of approval on the new system after studying rush-hour operations. Crosstown motorists were slowed attempting to cross through the fast and heavy traffic flow.

During the one-way hours, traffic in the opposite direction was shunted to Fourteenth street. A plan will be studied, Eldridge said, to aid the motorist who finds it difficult to cross the thoroughfare at rush-hour peaks.

Parking only on the east side of Thirteenth street will be allowed during the morning. Those who wish to park from 4 to 6 p. m., will have to do so on the west side. No parking on either side will be permitted south of Logan Circle during the rush.

Radium Excelled By Powerful Ray

Into the open space between these two poles the scientists slide a metal disc resembling a covered frying pan, its interior a vacuum. Inside the vacuum pan lies what looks like a large, flat, round, brass pill box, called the "merry-go-round."

The pill-box really stands still. But charged particles inside circle around at fabulous speeds—50,000 miles or more a second during incubation of this newest ray.

Separated by Lead.

As ammunition, a stream of deutons is fed by tube into the vacuum pill-box. Deutons are unclei of the recently discovered heavy hydrogen atoms. Passing through a spray of electrons, these deutons acquire electrical charges and begin circling. With only 12,000 to 20,000 volts of current to the pill-box alternating poles, the deutons reach speeds having the energies of 3,000,000 volts.

They emerge from the rim of the box and smash themselves against a metal target. From the impact come clouds of neutrons and protons. But protons can not penetrate much lead. So a lead window filters out the protons, leaving a pure spray of neutrons to emerge from the "frying pan" tube.

Ickes Attacks McCarl 'Ruling' Putting Stop to Slum Clearance

He stated that as "a result of further consideration by McCarl" he was sure there would be a satisfactory ruling.

The conciliatory tone of Ickes' remarks as he left the White House were in strange contrast to the sharp retort McCarl's letter brought at a press conference. There he branded the letter as "a case of a comptroller acting as president of a corporation."

Although he refrained from making public the text of the letter, Ickes originally interpreted McCarl as holding he could not approve any expenditure of the housing corporation.

Ickes Attacks Ruling.

"He holds it a constitutional question that the founders of the Constitution never contemplated such a corporation," he said, displaying considerable vexation. "The result of the ruling, our counsel tells me, is that we can't do anything."

He then said a bill was being prepared for Congress to establish the corporation by law.

Ickes held that under the McCarl letter, the corporation could take no options, no contracts, no obligations of any kind without the Comptroller's approval. He said the Comptroller wanted to pass upon purchase of each piece of real estate involved in a housing project; wanted title for each piece examined by the Attorney General; wanted to pass upon the price of each lot and designate what lots should be purchased.

"Ruling" 'or "Questioning."

The true character of McCarl's expression of opinion was somewhat of a mystery at first. Although Ickes referred to it as a "ruling" McCarl's office insisted it was merely a letter "raising certain questions." Told that Ickes regarded it as a formal decision, McCarl's office stated that "it couldn't help that."

The slum clearance and model housing program of the Public Works Administration, which established the $100,000,000 housing corporation, is one dear to Ickes. He exhibited anger at the idea of the program being held up by technicalities, and asserted "it is one of the most vital parts of our program."

"It is one of the most important things we can do both to aid recovery and to better social conditions," he said.

Capital's Alleys Involved.

For a time, the McCarl letter threw into question the operation of other recovery administrations engaged in purchasing, such as the Surplus Relief Corporation, which is contemplating buying submarginal farm lands, the Commodity Credit Corporation and the Subsistence Homestead Corporation. The McCarl letter concerned only the housing corporation, but officials of the other corporations wondered if it might not be applied against their operations.

Mr. Ickes himself was inclined to doubt this.

Washington's main interest in the threat to the husing program lies in the fact that the corporation this week as to have decided on a program for the District to eliminate ally slums and erect model housing establishments. Mr. Ickes said that until the McCarl questions are settled, along with all other projects in the country sponsored by the corporation, would have to wait The letter, officials said, did not concern the $48,000,000 program authorized for limited dividend corporations on semiprivate housing projects.

Reich Closes Mason Lodges

3 Jurisdictions Ordered "Wiped Out" by Goering.

Berlin, Jan. 16 (AP).—On the grounds that there was "no further need for their existence," Hermann Wilhelm Goering, the Prussian premier, summarily wiped out the three principal Prussian Masonic lodges and their affiliates today.

They are the Grand National Mother Lodge of the Three Terrestial Globes, the Grand Lodge of German Freemasons of the German Christian Order and the Grand Lodge of Prussia.

Goering explicitly stated that while he did not wish to go into the question of whether the organizations constituted a danger to the state, he simply saw no further use for them and then left it to the lodges themselves to vanish from the picture voluntarily.

He added that the branch groups do not need to seek authorization from the grand lodges, but should inform the latter of their dissolution.

The disposition of the lodge property is to be made in accordance with the civil law code.

In another decree Goering, who also is Reichsminister without portfolio, gave permission for all political refugees from Germany who upheld the Nazi regime while abroad to return to the Fatherland.

Gas Firm Bars Obsolescence In Valuation

Both Sides to Offer Briefs Today in Utility Commission Hearing.

The Washington Gas Light Co. will introduce further novel methods in valuation by declining to consider obsolescence or inadequacy of equipment in estimating depreciation, it was indicated yesterday as the hearing before the Public Utilities Commission entered another stage.

Luther K. Nash, vice president of Stone & Webster, whose estimate of $3,000,000 for going concern value was subject to vigorous objection, outlined his depreciation testimony without citing figures.

The gas company's depreciation estimates, he said, will be based on (1) cost of repairs that will be made in the immediate future, (2) estimated cost of repairs that are known to be needed, and (3) estimated cost of repairs of defects which are anticipated.

A legal controversy over admission of Nash's previous testimony on going concern value developed and led to instructions by the commission to all parties to submit briefs by tomorrow.

Stoddard M. Stevens, jr., of Sullivan & Cromwell, New York, spoke at length in behalf of the gas company, and William A. Roberts, special counsel of the commission, argued in favor of his motion to strike all of Nash's testimony.

Manila, Philippine Island.—Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, former American Minister to China, believes unification of that country is "wel lon the way' 'despite threats of renewed civil war.

"A new China is arising," he said in an address here. "When, after eight years of absence, I returned there and saw ho wa government official could travel by air and reach a province in four days, which years ago took at least three months, I realized China's unification is well under way."

He cited the building of highways and the resurgence of public opinion as other factors, besides aviation, aiding the process of cementing diverse elements.

Tried to Force Merger, Says Ex-Employer of Lindbergh.

would have provided for all operating costs and permitted a fair and reasonable profit.

Before he finally retired, said Robertson, Brown told him that he "wanted to do something for you boys," that as things turned out, he was in "an embarrassing position."

So the Postmaster General suggested that Robertson survey the Tulsa-Savannah line with a view to operating it with a Government contract. After he had tried it out, said Robertson, Brown found that "he couldn't find the money."

Robertson, who was the employer of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh at the time he made his first transatlantic flight, said that the famous aviator was one of three pilots he employed.

Suffered With Lindy.

"I had the good fortune to be one of Lindbergh's original backers in that flight," said Robertson, "and I suffered with him on that flight as only an employer could."

Charles W. Deeds, treasurer of the United Aircraft & Transport Corporatoin, one of what Chairman Black calls the "aviation trust," told the committee a startling story of how 200 shares which he bought in Pratt-Whitney Aircraft Corporation in 1926 for $40, had a market value of $5,624,000 in 1929 after, a consolidation between United Aircraft and Pratt-Whitney.

Black also touched upon Deeds' transactions in United stock with the National City Bank, by which the witness was able to make purchases at figures far below the market quotations.

The committee expects to delve further into these and similar transactions today when it hears the evidence of Fred B. Renschler, an organizer of the Pratt-Whitney outfit and now official in the United. He is a brother of Gordon Renschler, former president of the National City Bank.

Forced Out of Business.

Thomas C. Halpin, former operator of a line between Cincinnati and Detroit, testified that he had been refused an air-mail contract because his monthly reports showed an operating loss of $50,000.

"When I pointed out the losses that the American Airways was carrying, Brown passed it off in terms of development," said Halpin. "He said he was taking the advice of the big men in the industry in not granting my contract.

"So I said, 'yes, those with the biggest deficits.'"

Halpin said his line had been forced out of business with an attendant loss of $700,000.

New Airplane Said to Rival Even the Bird

One-Piece Wing Design Held Major Stride in Construction.

A new type of airplane, said to be an improvement on even the bird, incorporating all parts necessary for flight in a one-piece wing, and displaying the first great fundamental change in aircraft since early days of the industry, was demonstrated yesterday at Washington Airport in the presence of Eugene L. Vidal, director of aeronautics in the Department of Commerce.

On the alert to discover a low-priced, quantity production plane, Vidal visited the airport at the request of Dr. C. L. Snyder, of South Bend, Ind., designer of the plane.

All modern craft, except this new plane, differ but little from the principles of design brought out by the Wright brothers 30 years ago at Kittyhawk, N. C. But this one-pieced craft goes the bird one better by eliminating protruberances of the average plane similating the head and neck of a bird.

Its sponsorsclaim that the plane opens up new possibilites of greater speed, higher altitude, longer distance and greater safety. In addition, it brings within range the construction of a straoshere ship that would make possible endurance flights and distancse flights unheard of today. Nonstop flights encircling the globe are even predicted.

Special features of the plane are: It descened slower than a parachute and lands at one-half the speed of the conventional plane, resulting in safer, less punishing contact with the ground or obstructions.

Its gliding angle makes landinf possible in smaller areas, and it can also meak a shorter take-off than conventional ships.

The present model attains a top speed of 97 miles per hour, a landing speed of 23 miles per hour, and has an engine of 35 horse-power.

Germany to Avoid Saar Basin Vote

Considers League's Plea as Bait, Says Paper.

Berlin, Jan. 16 (AP).—Chancellor Adolf Hitler's newspaper, the Voelkischer Beobachter, said today that Germany must decline flatly any suggestions that she return to Geneva to participate in forthcoming League of Nations preparations for the Saar Basin plebescite.

Germany regards the invitation of the League of Nations Council as bait at which it does not propose to nibble and as an effort to establish a precedent, the newspaper declared.

The council adopted a resolution at Geneva yesterday suggesting that Germany send representatives.

Chinese Hope To Sell Lottery Tickets in U. S.

Finance Official Coming to Ask Permission From Washington.

Peiping, China (U.P.).—Speculation is rife as to what attitude the United States will adopt toward China's intention of promoting the sale of state lottery tickets in America.

W. P. Soong, of the Chinese ministry of finance, has been commissioned to go to the United States to arrange for the sale of the Chinese state lottery tickets, the proceeds of which are used for the promotion of aviation development, both military and civil, and the construction of much-needed highways.

Diplomatic Passport.

Soong will travel on a diplomatic passport, so he should encounter no difficulty in landing in the United States, but as yet there is no indication as to whether the United States Government will permit him to sell his tickets.

The state lottery now is drawn every two months. Prizes total $2,499,900, silver. There are 50,665 prizes, ranging from a first prize of $500,000, silver, two second prizes of $100,000 each, four third prizes of $50,000 each, and on down to 44,999 ninth prizes of $20 each.

Made $1,300,000.

On the last state lottery the government made $1,300,000, silver. This represented an increase of $1,000,000 in the profit since the first drawing. Full tickets cost $10, silver, each, but one-tenth shares may be purchased for $1 each. The big $500,000 prize on the first drawing was won by a Russian woman in Shanghai, but on the second drawing the main prize went to a group of Chinese in Peiping.

It is understood that Chinese in the United States, Hawaii, the Philippine Islands, Europe and the Straits Settlements, as well as in the Netherlands East Indies, already have been heavy purchasers of the state lottery tickets. But officials believe that the profits from the lottery can be considerably increased if the tickets are sold generally in the United States.

France Plans Aviation Drive For New Year

World Supremacy Is Aim; Fast Pursuit Ships Are Ordered.

Paris (U.P.).—France will make a determined effort in 1934 to attain world supremacy or, at least, equality in the air.

Groundwork for the program was laid during 1933 by Air Minister Pierre Cot.

He effected the consolidation of all French air lines into the Air-France Co. and he organized a series of air missions abroad, climaxed by the mass flight of Gen. Vuillemin over the African domain.

France officially has 2,200 war planes. Figures published recently give Great Britain 1,500 war planes, Italy 1,600, Japan 1,600 and the United States 1,800.

There are two reasons given for the inferiority of French military aviation: 1. Lack of leadership, resulting in an air force without definite aim or shape. 2. Lack of organization, resulting in waste, inferiority of material and loss of efficiency.

Cot, determined to do away with both evils, has ordered several squads of fast pursuit planes to bolster the weakest point.

But commercial speed laurels are held by the United States, where heavy tourist planes are flying 50 to 75 miles an hour faster than the best French army pursuit craft.

Warning that France may lose its foothold in South America because of the superiority of the United States services and the ascendancy of German enterprises has been sounded by the air minister.

The aviation plum, as far as France is concerned, is the airmail service from Toulouse-Dakar-Natal-Rio and Valparaiso. Contract for this service, which soon will run out, may be lost if Germany succeeds in giving a faster service, it is said.

Already the island-ship Westfahlen is moored in mid-Atlantic, landplanes have flown from Berlin to Madrid in eight hours and speedy German seaplanes are being groomed for this service on this line.

The Once Over.

By H. I. Phillips.

IMPRESSION OF A RADIO INTERVIEW WITH ADMIRAL BYRD.

Station—Hello, Admiral Byrd. Can you hear me?

Admiral—Yes, it's quite cold here. How are you?

Admiral—Yes, indeed. And you?

Station—How are things in Little America?

* * * *

Station—Have you had any trouble at all so far?

Admiral—No. Everything is fine. We haven't heard a thing about the gold standard since we left home. It's quite wonderful.

Admiral—No, thank heaven!

* * * *

Station—How are all the boys?

Admiral—Fine. Bergstrom cut himself while shaving last week and Mundson is a little out of sorts because his underwear itches. But outside of that we're all pretty well.

Station—How are all the mascots?

Admiral—The two pet giraffes are seasick a lot and the ship's elephant doesn't get along with strange penguins, but I wouldn't have mentioned it if you hadn't asked.

Admiral—If I'm not, there has been a terrible mistake.

Admiral—No.

Station—That's fine.

* * * *

Admiral—What's new back in the United States?

Station—Rudy Vallee is seeking another divorce, Congress is in session, everybody is still trying to figure out the dollar, and the auto industry has introduced a new car that looks the same coming or going.

Station—I suppose you've heard about the French having a change of heart and deciding to play fair by America.

Admiral—No. What?

Admiral—No, indeed.

* * * *

Admiral—Of course.

Station—Then what's the purpose of this trip this winter?

Admiral—I was afraid you'd bring that up.

Station—I withdraw the question.

Admiral—That's very nice of you.

WOULD FEEL EASIER.

The motorboat show is on this week in New York and what people who can't endure rough water want to know is whether the boats will have knee action.

"Patience is a vulture," exclaimed irate Mrs. Ida Harris at a New York newsstand graft hearing. "A virtue," corrected Commissioner Levine. Well, we have all been in positions where we would string with the lady.

President Pelley, of the New Haven road, is to put on a streamline train to give "the passengers" swifter service. It is encouraging to know that railroad heads are using the plural again.

Reich Forming Great Guilds For All Lines

All Workers Must Come Under Corporative Control.

Berlin (U.P.).—Every German man or woman, no matter what his or her occupation or social status may be, will have to join a professional organization under a huge corporative scheme.

It is foreseen that the individual's professional and economic interests will be intrusted to their "corporations."

The main thing about corporations is that they must include workers, employes and executives of the same branch without distinction.

Thus, workers will not be in a position to form unions to promote their interests as opposed to those of their employers; neither will the employers be free to unite in order to defend their common interests against their laborers.

Abolish All Divisions.

Thus, German Nazi organizers assert, all divisions and antagonism will be banished from the nation's life.

Employers and employes will adhere to the same organization, and accept conditions dictated by the leaders of these organizations.

This type of organization is diametrically opposed to that prevailing under the republic. In republican Germany workers and employers had their own separate organizations. These unions defended class interests. The state mediated between these class organizations, thus reducing class struggles to a minimum.

The Nazis, however, want to go even further than that. They are determined to eliminate even the remotest possibility of class struggles; that is why they prohibit class organizations.

Six Already Formed.

Six corporations already are in existence: Those of agriculture, handicrafts, industry, commerce, transports and intellectual production.

Some of these corporations still are at an initial stage of their evolution; others, however, are fully developed.

Only practice can show whether the aims of the corporative states are fully attainable. As antagonistic interests will continue to exist, no matter how social groups are organized, the state will have to appoint mediators, just as the republic did.

Thus, it is foreseen that special "labor trustees," appointed by the state, will determine wages in case of disputes. This system is not so very different from that prevailing under the republic, when "wage adjusters" settled labor conflicts.

Texas Sheriff Trains Pet Fox to Chew Gum

Odessa, Tex. (U.P.).—Sheriff Reeder Webb prides himself upon the achievement of what generally was termed the impossible—training a fox.

The sheriff captured a fox and taught it to search for chewing gum and chew it. He named the fox "Jojo." Jojo now has become the mascot of the courthouse family, and often carries packages of gum to its master.

No End of Books

By Theodore Hall.

Night-Light Jitters.

You must be familiar with this disease, since it occurs in even the best regulated of families. The patient will be sitting up late at night, with the rest of the house quite dark. There will be a book open on his knee of the genus known as horror story. Aside from a tendency to let his eye rove around the room and a pronounced start and a blenching of the face at the smallest sound, the symptoms are subjective. They consist, in essence, of an uncontrollable impulse to look behind one's back to see if something might be there which one fervently hopes is not. In Coleridge's fine, cool phrase, the patient is suffering from a "suspension of disbelief."

* * * *

I had an attack last night over a book called "The Cadaver of Gideon Wyck" (Farrar & Rinehart, $2). Only now, by the light of day, do I begin to see how neatly I was inoculated.

For just about every possible device was used. There is the picture of a corpse on the front of the jacket. On the back of the jacket the publishers print a warning: "People unable to sustain violent shock are advised that they read this book on their own responsibility. And the publishers really mean this." Lynd Ward drew a grewsome frontispiece.

The whole manner of telling the story induced credibility. The manuscript, save a note, was received from an anonymous medical student by way of a reputable literary agent. Edited by Alexander Laing with the help of two morphologists, it is presented with only the slightest changes. Internal evidence (carefully pointed out by the editor) supports the thesis of authorship. A bevy of learned footnotes carries on the effect of factual narration. It was all, at the time, very convincing.

* * * *

I hope I am not warping the ethical code of book reviewers if I point out that the whole hocus-pocus is gorgeously overdone. There is simply too much horror suggested, too little brought onto the stage in full development. Understatement is a prime technique, but if I read a foot-note on the Black Maas I am going to feel badly let down if the narrative does not make me a spectator to ghoulish rites. Much ado is made about Dr. Gideon Wyck's cadaver, yet it never behaved except in the most usual and exemplary fashion. The book whets our expectation in several such ways, and leaves us unrequited

But because of its above-mentioned abundance, the book still holds quite enough to give you the "night-light jitters." Let me list some of its resources:

1. A general atmosphere of the dissecting room.
2. A mad surgeon.
3. Two homicidal epileptics.
4. Ample discussion of demonology.
5. An epidemic of biological monsters born in a lying-in hospital.

Several other shocks had best be left as surprises. The book pounds horror into you as unceasingly as a machine gun would bullets. There is also a thread of love interest. All in all, "The Cadaver of Gideon Wyck" seems as thoroughly equipped as a man who takes four trunks on a week-end.

In the Margin.

The publishing house of W. W. Norton & Co. is 10 years old this January. To mark the occasion it has prepared a Tenth Anniversary Catalogue, designed by T. M. Cleland, which announces forthcoming spring publications and gives a resume of the outstanding books, previously published, which have contributed to the firm's success.

From the outset, the aim of this house has been directed toward bringing before the general reader, not "popularizers" but books written in clear and simple style by acknowledged authorities in special branches of knowledge.

Prominent in the field of philosophy are the names of Bertrand Russell and John Dewey; in psychology, Freud and John B. Watson. In the scientific field the list boasts three Nobel prize winners: Thomas Hunt Morgan, leading authority in experimental biology; Max Planck, originator of the Quantum theory in physics, and Edwin H. Schroedinger, whose "Science and the Human Temperament" will be a late spring publication.

Initial emphasis on science and philosophy was broadened to include books in art, music and general literature. The first year which saw fiction included on the Norton list introduced to American readers the novelist Henry Handel Richardson, whose "Ultima Thule" was a literary event.

The reading public is notoriously unaware of who publishes the books it reads, but an increasing number has come to recognize in the Norton imprint a quality which justifies the firm's solgan, "Books That Live."

Slump in Beer Consumption Vexes Bavaria

Early Spurt in American Trade Drops, Along With Domestic.

Berlin (U.P.). — Bavaria's famous brewers are literally crying into their beer. It is a most unusual and distressing situation.

For years the jovial braumeisters of Munich have catered to a clientele measured only by their own ability to produce Hofbraeu, Loewenbraeu, Augustinerbraeu, Spatenbraeu and the others.

Recently, however, taxes and depression have eaten into the profits. With the dawn of 1933 came the promise of a boom. Not only did things look better at home, but America was re-entering the lists.

When beer was legalized by Congress, Bavaria leaped into the breach with all the joy of a returning prodigal. A mellow gurgle filled the holds of express steamers as they rushed for the new market. In June more than 27 per cent of Germany's beer exports went to the United States.

But the American thirst turned in other directions. Freight, storage and prohibitive import duties raised the price of German brew to twice or three times that of domestic, and the Munich flood westward has slowed to mere dribble, 0.76 per cent of the total export.

At home as well, the Bavarian product has been hit. People who find more money in their pockets are using it for purchases they have been unable to make in the last two or three years. Even in such temples as the Hofbraeuhause in Munich, there is a decline.

"Six-liter men" are scarcer and scarcer, and the proverbial eight or ten liter man, whose name once was legion, is fast becoming a landmark.

The net result is a decline over even the poor year of 1932, and Bavaria's brewers are sad and disillusioned men.

New Bridge Planned Over Jackson River

Covington, Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.).—A bridge is to be erected over the Jackson River by the State Highway Commission to replace the old span connecting Covington with Rayon Terrace, according to information received at the chamber of commerce here. It is believed a bridge will be removed from U. S. Highway No. 1 and installed at an estimated cost of $20,000.

Rights of way for three other bridges in Alleghany County are being acquired by the State Department of Highways. The largest will cross the Cowpasture River near Sharon Church. These projects will total approximately $70,000. It is estimated the work will offer employment to 100 men for four months.

Gala Ceremony Today to Mark Oath by Peery

Virginians Throng Into Capital to Attend Inauguration.

By Dong Warrenfels.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 16.—Jaunty nultitudes from all parts of Virginia poured into Richmond tonight for inauguration tomorrow of George C. Peery, of Tazewell, as Governor.

Fifteen military organizations, including the swashbuckling Richmond Blues, will participate in a colorful parade beginning the program at 11 a. m. Half a dozen bands will add to the tumult. The occasion will be a holiday for 5,000 State employes.

John Garland Pollard, the retiring Governor and a General Assembly committee will escort the new chief executive from the John Marshall Hotel to the south portico of the Capitol.

Chief Justice Preston W. Campbell, State Supreme Court of Appeals, will administer the oath of office to the new Governor while Lieut. Gov. James H. Price, Richmond, will be sworn in by Justice Henry W. Holt.

Celebrities to Attend.

Half a dozen former Governors will be honor guests as Gov. Peery unfolds his legislative program in his inaugural message.

Much of today's Assembly session was devoted to perfection of inaugural plans.

Local option on liquor control was the cardinal principle of a bill introduced in the House by Delegate Vivian Page, Norfolk wet leader.

Page proposed that cities and counties be authorized to decide whether they wished State-operated dispensaries, licensed whisky sales in hotels and restaurants or bone-dry regulations.

The measure called for a tax of 50 cents a gallon estimated to produce $1,750,000 a year for the State. In addition, localities would be permitted to impose license fees ranging from $200 for retailers to $2,000 annually for manufacturers.

Anticipated efforts to ban members of the Liquor Control Commission from serving on the whisky governing board might result in passage of the Page bill, its author declared.

Budget Hearings Set.

Chairman Ashton Dovell, Williamsburg, announced the House Appropriations Committee would begin joint hearings shortly with the Senate Finance Committee on the 1934-36 budget. He warned members to present their objections in committee instead of waiting until supply bills reached the floor.

Opposition to suggested lowering of automobile license fees was announced by Dovell. His attitude came as a surprise since the incoming governor has indicated he would favor such action.

Senator Cecil Connor, Leesburg, offered in the Senate two bills for legalizing of horse racing with parimutuel betting. Companion measures were advanced in the house last week by Delegate Wilbur C. Hall, Leesburg.

Virginia Hotelmen Rap Dispensaries

Richmond, Va., Jan. 16.—Authority to sell liquor was demanded today by Virginia hotels in circulars distributed among members of the General Assembly.

"Clandestine drinking," the statement charged, "does not promote temperance. Prohibition of the serving of liquor openly in the dining rooms and restaurants of Virginia's reputable hotels, under State control, is undemocratic, un-American and in direct conflict with the regular practices of such famous Virginians as George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Patrick Henry and others.

"Virginia's $500,000,000 annual tourist trade is endangered. How can Virginia hope to save its tourist trade, the largest industry in the State, denying visitors the liberties they enjoy in the District of Columbia, Maryland, Tennessee, West Virginia and other neighboring territory?

"Let guests purchase their liquor openly from the proprietor of the hotel, rather than surreptitiously from a bell boy."

Canning Program Covers Virginia

Active Work Carried on by Extension.

Blacksburg, Va., Jan. 16 (AP).—If all the jars of fruit, vegetables and meats canned by Virginia housewives last year were placed in a row they would extend from Wytheville to Alexandria.

That's what the home demonstration department of the Virginia extension division asserts as foundation for its statement that the department's supervised canning projects extended over a large portion of the State.

Demonstrations were held in 85 per cent of the counties and nearly 5,500,000 jars of canned stuffs stood on rural shelves this fall.

Another estimate—prepared by the same mathematician—is that the total of canned foods would be sufficient to fill from cellar to roof 20 seven-room houses, standing on foundations 30 by 30 feet.

Another way to tell the same story is that if the jars could be balanced end to end they would reach 600 miles into the air.

Loretta Smith, Keyser Clerk, Weds Keener

Keyser, W. Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.).—The marriage of Miss Loretta Mary Smith, assistant city clerk of Keyser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Smith, to Edward Sinclair Keener, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Keener, on May 4 last, was announced here today. The ceremony was performed at Woodstock, Va., by the Rev. Watson E. Holley.

At Virginia's Helm Today

Foster Studio, Richmond.

Virginia's new governor, George C. Peery (top), will be inaugurated in Richmond today, with the city in holiday mood playing host to thousands from throughout the State. The festivities will be nothing new, however, to Lieut. Gov. James H. Rice (bottom, right), and State's Attorney General John R. Saunders, who will be starting new terms on old jobs.

Records of Virginia Folk Songs And Dialects Being Studied

Prof. Hill at University Finds Varied Traits in Speech.

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.). Prof. Archibald A. Hill of the English faculty of the University of Virginia, is at work on a scientific language study of recordings of Virginia ballads.

Prof. Hill is using the collection of more than 250 phonograph records of genuine folk songs from various parts of Virginia, brought together by Prof. Arthur Kyle Davis, with the aid of a grant from the American Council of Learned Societies and through cooperation of the Virginia Folklore Society.

For his first study, Prof. Hill has selected 16 records made by a 60-year-old singer, of Altavista, whose dialect is pure for his locality, since he has never lived for long outside Campbell and Pittsylvania Counties.

The study reveals how the singer's English has characteristics of both the Tidewater-Piedmont and the Mountain-Valley dialects of Virginia English, especially in his pronunciation of the letter "R," he says "girl," "nursed," and "storm" as if he lived in eastern Virginia, but he says "poor," "fair," and "brother" like a mountain man. Other characteristics, including some early English pronunciations, have been noted.

Prof. Hill's first study is published in the current issue of "American Speech," a publication of Columbia University. Other studies will appear later.

Army Engineers Are Sent to Ohio

Transferred to New Flood Control Project.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.). With approval of new flood control projects, 17 members of the West Virginia district Army engineering staff have been transferred from Huntington headquarters to a new suboffice at Zanesville, Ohio, established in connection with the $42,000,000 project for the Muskingum River.

Among those transferred are T. S. Burns and Harry Pockras, senior engineers; E. E. Teeter and N. F. Dortch, associate engineers; R. A. Sterzick and L. H. Fitts, assistant engineers, and Lieut. Alvin C. Welling.

Valley Company to Elect.

Staunton, Va., Jan. 16.—The annual meeting of Shenandoah Valley, Inc., will be held here at headquarters in the Stonewall Jackson Hotel Tuesday, January 23. Directors will be elected, President A. T. Moore announced.

Religious Training Meeting Planned

Conference Set for Jan. 12-23 at Charleston.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.) West Virginia's first cooperative conference for religious workers has been set for January 21-23 at Charleston, under direction of the West Virginia Council of Religious Education.

Purpose of the conference is to coach instructors for standard leadership training courses. The idea was originated several months ago and the Rev. Z. B. Edworthy was chosen to organize the West Virginia conference.

A series of conferences in various districts of the State is planned.

J. Quinby Armstrong Dies.

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.).—J. Quinby Armstrong, 29, died at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Armstrong, in Stafford County. For three years he had been an engineer with the State Highway Department in Richmond. Besides his parents, he is survived by two brothers and eight sisters.

College Loans For Virginia Near 4 Millions

Additional Grants Being Sought by Schools.

Richmond, Jan. 16 (AP).—Federal funds totaling $3,650,000 have been made available to Virginia institutions of higher learning for additions and improvements to physical equipment, the State administrative office announced today. All of the projects are self-liquidating and will impose no additional burden on the Commonwealth.

Officials estimated that 1,500 men would be given employment in the college communities where the construction program will begin soon and that about 3,000 will benefit from employment in the manufacture of materials and equipment.

In addition to nine projects already approved, there are four projects from three other State institutions under consideration in Washington now.

They call for loans and grants of $669,710 and will provide work for 238 men and will give indirect employment to nearly 500 additional workers.

Hospital Fund Sought.

The University of Virginia, which already has had two projects approved, has a third application in Washington for an addition to its hospital, to cost $204,975. The Medical College of Virginia is seeking $130,000 for a central heating plant in one project and $294,735.57 in another for a laundry, dormitory and gymnasium.

The farmville State Teachers College wants $40,000 for a swimming pool and a building to house it.

The approval of these projects—expected by State officials—will bring the total amount of money extended by the PWA in loans and grants to State-supported Virginia institutions of higher learning to more than $4,300,000.

Lynchburg College is the only private institution of higher learning in the State seeking PWA funds. It is asking a loan of $250,000 for new buildings and improvements.

Of the nine projects already approved, the largest is that of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute which will get $1,066,000 for a students' dormitory, faculty dormitory, utilities building, teaching and administrative building and water and sewer improvements.

W. and M. Gets Loan.

The College of William and Mary will have the second largest loan and grant, $650,000, for a students' dormitory, Marshall-Wythe Hall, students' activities building and an amphitheater.

The University of Virginia has been given an outright grant of $37,000 toward the construction of an art museum, $105,000 of the cost of which already was available from other sources. This building is now under construction. The university also will get $379,000 for a a new engineering building.

Virginia Military Institute will receive $360,000 for the construction of a new mess hall, for improvements to the chemistry building, military store, tailor shop and for the construction of a new utilities building, the latter structure to house a laundry.

The Fredericksburg State Teachers College has been given $338,000 in loans and grants for three dormitories and a new boiler.

The Harrisonburg State Teachers College will get $140,000 for a new dormitory and the State Teachers College at East Radford will receive $135,000 for a new dining hall.

The Virginia State College of Negroes at Petersburg will get $235,424 for a dormitory, gymnasium, four teachers' cottages and an eight-unit garage.

Danville Teachers Fear Another Cut

School Board Dubious of Avoiding Slash.

Danville, Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.). Danville teachers who in 1932, received a 10 per cent pay cut fear they may suffer another, even though all other municipal employes have been given a five per cent raise.

Teachers' salaries are set by the school board and their pay is secured from State income. A loss of from $18,000 to $20,000 from the per capita fund is in prospect this year, according to Superintendent G. L. H. Johnson, unless the General Assembly provides for this anticipated deficit.

The school board budget already is strained, he says, and it would be difficult to put further economies in practice without reducing teacher pay.

Veterans' Hospital Begun at Roanoke

City Leaders at Ceremony Starting Excavation.

Roanoke, Va., Jan. 16 (AP).—In the presence of city officials and civic leaders, ground-breaking ceremonies were held here today marking the beginning of work on Roanoke's new veterans' hospital.

It is expected the building, to cost $1,300,000, will be ready for occupancy a year from today. A move to add other units at an additional cost of $600,000 is being pushed.

Putland Rites Will Be Held This Morning

Member of Old Virginia Family to Be Buried in Richmond.

Funeral services for Mrs. Isabella Reid Putland, 88, will be held today at 10 a. m. at Gunton Temple, Sixteenth and Newton streets northwest. Burial will be in Riverview Cemetery, Richmond.

Mrs. Putland, member of an old Virginia family, died Monday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. S. McDowell Meek, at 1734 Newton street northwest.

Mrs. Putland was born in 1845 at Salem, Va., daughter of Dr. William M. Richards and Sarah Harvey Richards. In 1863 she married Capt. Richard W. Reid, who died in 1903. She later married John Putland, of England.

She was a member of the Gunton Temple Presbyterian Church for 35 years.

She is survived by five daughters, three sons and two brothers, in addition to several grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

The daughters are Mrs. Meek and Mrs. Frank Lutz Waters, of Washington; Mrs. William J. Cromer, of Winston Salem, N. C.; Mrs. John Arthur Ray, of St. Louis, and Mrs. Frank H. Iden, of Virginia.

Her sons are K. C. Reid, of Spokane, Wash; William Louis Reid, of Winston-Salem, and H. Burwell Reid, of Washington.

Granddaughters living in Washington include Mrs. H. H. Clarke and Mrs. H. O. Fleetwood, and great-grandchildren in Washington are Ray Melville Clark and Miss Virginia Garton.

Stepfather Denies Crime Against Girl

Norfolk Man Claims Wife "Framed" Charges.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 16 (AP).—John G. Hege, 45, furniture upholsterer, took the stand this afternoon to deny charges of an offense against his stepdaughter, 13.

On trial for his life, the man charged his trial was the result of a "frame up" by his wife because "I couldn't give her the luxuries she had had before."

He said that two years ago she planned a divorce. She left home after a quarrel three days before he was arrested on the charge, he said. Hege admitted he had been convicted of manslaughter in Lexington, N. C., in 1918.

"I killed a man for breaking up my home," he said.

Mrs. Corrine Jackson Buried at Clarksburg

Clarksburg, W. Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.). Funeral services were held this afternoon for Mrs. Corrine M. Jackson, 72, widow of Benjamin Wilson Jackson, who died at her home, 815 Connecticut avenue, Washington, after an illness of several months. Burial was at Elkview Cemetery.

Mrs. Jackson formerly lived here. She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Washington Reynolds, of Reynoldsville. One son, George R. Jackson, of Washington, survives.

Robins Urges State Officials Aid Lynch Quiz

Ritchie and Lane Invited to Assist Princess Anne Grand Jury.

Crisfield, Md., Jan. 16 (AP).—Gov. Ritchie and Attorney General William Preston Lane, jr., were invited by State's Attorney John B. Robins today to present to the Somerset County Grand Jury next Tuesday all evidence they possess in connection with the lynching of George Armwood, Negro, at Princess Anne, on October 18.

Recall of the grand jury "to clear the jail" was announced yesterday by Judge Robert F. Duer, but no reference was made to the lynching investigation at the time.

By letter, Robins urged that Gov. Ritchie use his executive powers to see that State police serve as witnesses.

The attorney general was invited to the county seat "if you deem it advisable" to cooperate in presenting evidence designed to identify leaders of the mob that broke into the jail and hanged Armwood.

Rigid Bill Due In Sterilization

Another Measure Proposes Alexandria Council Fill Vacancies.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 16 (AP). — A bill providing for sterilization of insane, epileptic and feeble-minded persons in Virginia under certain conditions, irrespective of whether they are inmates of State institutions, will be introduced soon in the Virginia House of Delegates by Delegates W. Stuart Moffit and C. G. Quesenberry, of the Augusta-Staunton District.

Dr. J. S. De Jarnette, superintendent of the Western State Hospital at Staunton and originator of the present sterilization law, was said to support the proposal. The present law provides sterilization of members of institutions.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.). City Councilmen would be authorized to fill vacancies in their own ranks under amendments to the Alexandria City Charter proposed to the General Assembly today by Delegate J. Fred Birrell.

The bill would empower the Corporation Cour judge to call special elections to fill other vacancies in Alexandria public offices. Compensation of all election officials could be fixed by the city council.

Other provisons would call for establishment of a municipal dog pound, permit assessments against abutting property owners for sidewalk construction and prevent fowls and animals from running at large.

Partiality in CWA Custom Is Charged

Orders "Bunched," Says Hardware Leader.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Jan. 16.—Alleging unfair practices by the State civil works administration in the distribution of orders for supplies on local projects in several West Virginia counties, H. B. Clower, of Oak Hill, secretary and treasurer, today asked the resolutions committee of the West Virginia Hardware Association to protest the practice.

Clower made his request before the convention of the association opening here today. He asked that the resolution embody a demand that hereafter "fair and equitable distribution" of CWA orders be made for project supplies in the State.

Sessions of the convention will continue tomorrow.

Greta Garbo as Queen Christina inspires a new silhouette

It has been called, "A paradoxical silhouette, as alluringly feminine and forthrightly boyish, as the paradoxical Queen Christina herself"—and most rightly so.

You have only to see the clothes, to realize how their charmingly feminine manner is so strikingly contrasted to the boyish collars and cuffs—and by the way, they have an enchanting way of framing youthful faces.

Maryland Hints Jail Faces Auto Bond Scofflaws

State Plans to Act Against Flouters of "Financial Responsibility" Law.

Baltimore, Jan. 16 (AP).—Operators of thousands of Washington taxi cabs and buses and trucks from Virginia, Delaware and other States are violating Maryland's new motor vehicle "financial responsibility" law every day, according to an estimate by the State motor vehicle commission.

This also applies to about 5,000 Maryland operators, commission records show.

Each violator is subject to a minimum fine of $100 for the first offense and $500 for the second.

So far the commission and State police have been lenient, on the ground new law is not generally understood. But the leniency will not continue much longer.

The new law, which went into effect January 1, requires a "five-ten-one" liability policy be taken out for every for-hire vehicle in interstate or intrastate transit on State roads. The only exception is for those who post positive proof of liquid assets of $11,000 for each vehicle operated, of a bond or certified check.

The "five-ten-one" policy provides a maximum of $5,000 liability insurance for one person injured, $10,000 for two or more injured, and $1,000 for property damage. The insurance applies only to those injured who are not riding in or on the vehicle and to property other than that being transported. The new law does not require insurance to protect passengers or cargo.

The attorney general's office decided that the new State law would not be in conflict with interstate commerce regulations because requirement of the liability insurance, or proof of responsibility, was a "police power."

The law has been in effect 16 days and only 35 out-of-State permits have been issued. The commission's statisicians have not estimated how many out-of-State operators must secure a permit.

Virginia Radio Amateurs Meet

Discuss "Traffic" Problem at Staunton; Convene Next on Feb. 18.

Judges, appointed to determine the most important piece of "traffic" handled in 1933 by licensed operators present, awarded the prize to Bruce Hanger, owner of station W3AVL, Waynesboro.

Hanger, during the Southern California earthquake, with the cooperation of an Illinois station, W9EDW, sent important messages into the Long Beach area after efforts by telephone and telegraph had failed.

Lone G. A. R. Veteran Meets With 6 Confederates.

Staunton, Va., Jan. 16.—Six of the ten surviving members of Stonewall Jackson Camp, United Confederate Veterans, yesterday attended the Kiwanis Club's annual luncheon party in their honor. The oldest is 93, the youngest 86.

The guests were P. L. Mohler, 93, dean of the group; Col. J. W. Spitler, 86, camp commander; Milton W. Bucher, 88; J. R. Mohler, 86; C. T. Harris, 90; F. M. Trimble, 89. With these men was a Union veteran, W. H. Kiger, 86, and, as he puts it, "this old Yankee is mighty glad to have been 'captured' by these fine Confederate comrades."

Miss Mary Johnston, Virginia author, spoke.

New Police School Formed at Bristol

Second Annual Course in Duties Draws Crowd.

Bristol, Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.).—Law enforcement officers from throughout the Bristol region enrolled last night at the local courthouse for the second annual police school to be taught by Van J. Payne, local motorcycle officer, under sponsorship of the Virginia League of Municipalities.

The opening session was devoted chiefly to enrollment of officers from Elizabethton, Johnson City, Kingsport and Bristol, in Tennessee, as well as from the Virginia cities of Abingdon, Damascus, Saltville, Dante, Appalachia, Norton, Bristol and other points.

Subjects to be covered are criminology, homicide, tear gas, raids, and court procedure. Officer Payne took an instructor's preparatory course at Richmond recently.

Maryland Warden to Oppose Plan to Halt Duck Shooting

Plenty of Wild Fowl, Says LeCompte, Foreseeing Illegal Killings.

Baltimore, Jan. 16 (AP).—A determined fight against the proposal to prohibit the shooting of migratory water fowl next fall and winter will be waged by E. Lee LeComte, Maryland State game warden, at the meeting of the American Game Conference next Monday in New York.

He said the supply of migratory water fowl is adequate and the present 60-day season short enough, adding that to cut the season would "give a better opportunity to pothunters."

Referring to 1931, when the season was reduced to 30 days throughout the country, LeCompte said "there were more birds killed out of season than in."

A zoning system, whereby the Middle West can have a closed season next year, if it be desired there, he said, probably would not be opposed by the conference, which has taken an important part during the past 20 years in game conservation.

LeCompte said, "except around the Susquehanna flats, where ice kept the birds away until about the last week of the season," there were plenty of ducks everywhere this year in Maryland waters.

The conference, according to its President, would favor the passage of the "duck stamp tax" of a Federal $1 license for hunting migratory water fowl, which includes all classes of ducks and geese in any part of the country.

Waynesboro Faces Housing Shortage

Influx of Workers Creates Acute Problem.

Waynesboro, Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.). Lack of adequate housing here, due to the influx of workmen on construction projects at the Du Pont Rayon plant, reached the emergency stage this week. An appeal has been made to local residents to offer spare rooms to newcomers.

Establishment here of headquarters for Federal and State engineers engaged in the Skyline Drive Survey and the fact that many forestry supervisors and officials of nearby CCC Camps have made their homes here have added to the housing problem.

Martinsville Factory Equipment Arriving

Martinsville, Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.). The first truckload of machinery to go into Martinsville's latest industry, the Jobbers Pants Co., has been placed in the company's plant on Fayette street. Other truck loads are en route from the Baltimore plant. The plant may be in operation within a few weeks. Under normal conditions the plant will employ over 1,000 workers, mostly women.

Raphael W. Stevens Dies.

Mother's Death Leaves Boy, 8, Alone After Family Tragedies

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.). The death of Mrs. Mary Desboro yesterday added another tragedy to the history of the family which had already lost its youngest son through undernourishment and its father and only daughter through drowning.

Leroy Desboro, 8 years old, is the only remaining member of the family which came to Fredericksburg a year ago. A brother of Mrs. Desboro in Charleston, S. C., has offered to take care of the bewildered boy, though he cannot afford a trip here to the funeral. The Salvation Army will send the boy to Charleston in a few days.

Bad health, nervous shock, weak heart, and the effects of destitution weakened the woman's constitution.

Editor and Son Cited for Two Deaths in Feud

H. F. and Bernace Bausell Indicted for Slayings Near Rural Retreat.

Wytheville, Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.). Wythe County Circuit Court grand jury yesterday indicted Henry F. Bausell, 52, and his son, Bernace Bausell, 27, on charges of murder in connection with the slaying of T. Eugene Cornett, 55, and his daughter, Virginia Cornett Bausell, 25, at the Cornett home 2 miles south of Rural Retreat.

Cornett and his daughter, the wife of Bernace Bausell, were slain in a gun duel with the two Bausells shortly after noon Saturday. Both Bausells were wounded.

Following the shooting the Bausells drove 60 miles to Bristol. They are under police guard at a private hospital.

The estrangement of Bernace Bausell and his wife in May, 1933, and a dispute over custody of their 4-year-old daughter, Jean, is said to have led to the shooting. Young Bausell and his wife had lived with Bausell's parents.

Pistols allegedly used in the shooting were seized by Sheriff George Crockett, of Wytheville, and an autopsy was performed on the body of Mrs. Bausell.

The Bausells claimed that the first shot was fired by Cornett and that it struck Mrs. Bausell. Sheriff Crockett said Mrs. Pauline Clark Cornett's mother-in-law, claims the Bausells forced their way into the Cornett home.

Cornett was a large land owner of Wythe County. The Bausells live at Bristol. The elder is editor of The Russell County News.

Double funeral services were held yesterday for the victims. Burial was in the Rural Retreat Cemetery.

Shooting Steer Costs 2 Years

Trouble With Neighbors Blamed for Act in Rockingham.

Harrisonburg, Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.). Leonard Lilly, 35, of near McGaheysville, was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary today for maliciously killing a $50 steer of a neighbor. The Rockingham Circuit Court jury deliberated 45 minutes. Punishment for malicious shooting ranges from two to ten years.

Lilly claimed he stumbled and shot the steer by accident. Officers said Lilly shot the animal as he believed it the property of some neighbors with whom he had had trouble.

Lilly himself was shot last summer, only a fence post which bore the brunt of the shotgun charge saving his life, following an argument over a still. The grand jury did not return an indictment against three men arrested in the case.

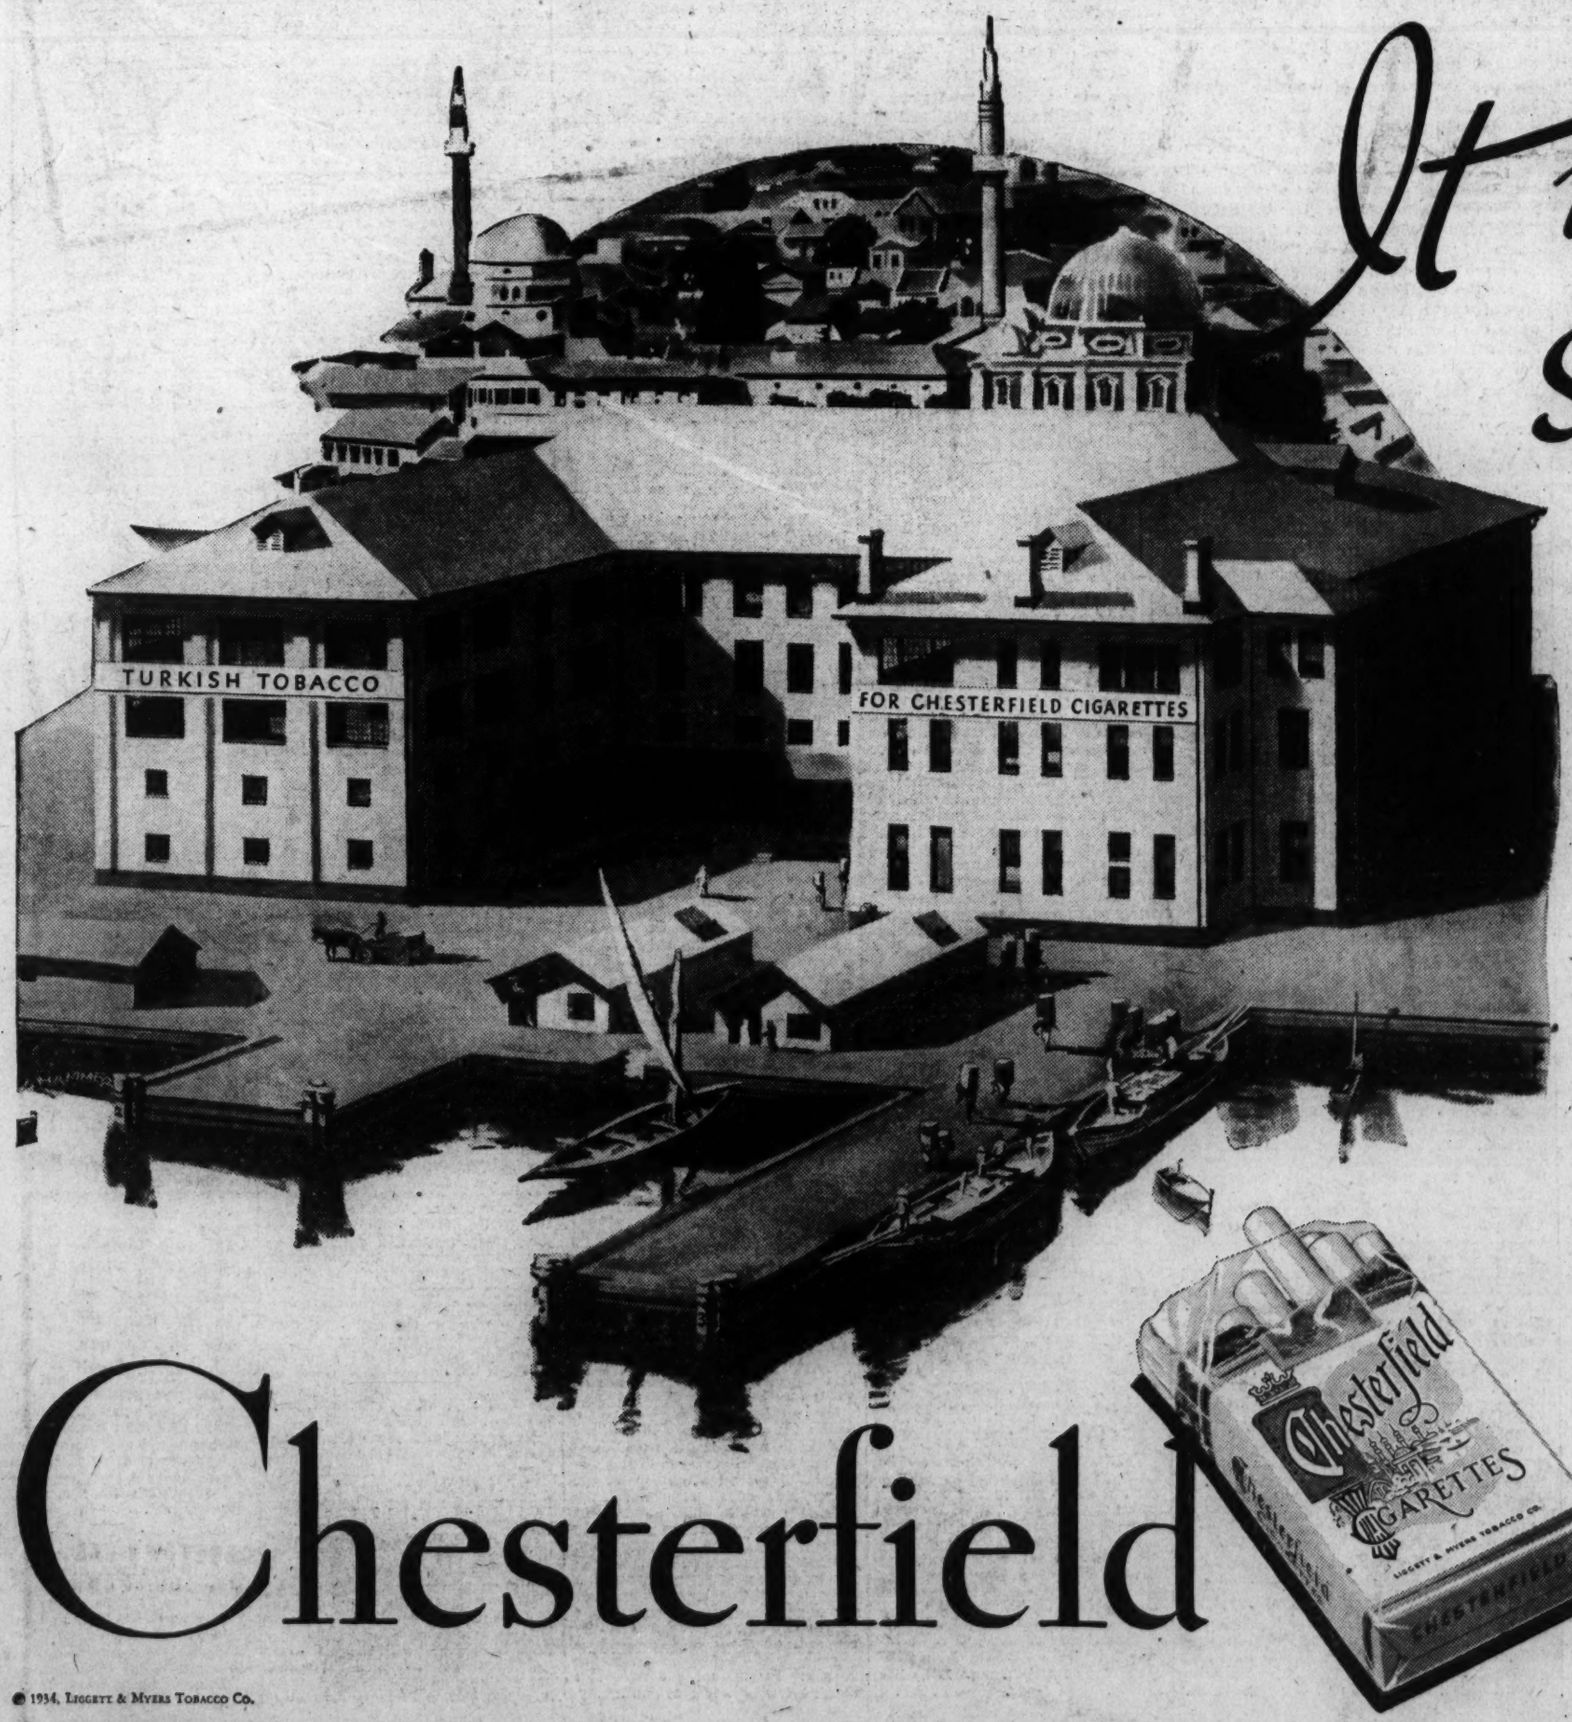
Razor Blade Gives 657 Cool, Clean Shaves

A new device that sharpens old dull razor blades to an uncanny cutting edge has been perfected by Sumner Elliott, Suite 688, 2300 University avenue, Des Moines, Iowa. How completely this new invention will revolutionize shaving habits can readily be understood, for Mr. Elliott recently succeeded in completing 657 perfect shaves with one ordinary safety razor blade and that blade is still in use. New honer stropper combination adapted to all types of blades and works equally as well on the old-fashioned, straight-edge razor. Hundreds are already using it, and Mr. Elliott wants dealers and agents to introduce his invention in every locality. He is willing to send a sample for your use at his own risk. Write him at the above address. —Adv.



It means something

..that Chesterfield has a modern up-to-date Tobacco Factory in far-off historic Smyrna

So important is the handling of Turkish tobacco in making Chesterfield cigarettes that Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., maintains this specially equipped plant right in the heart of the famous Smyrna tobacco section.

It is the largest and most modern tobacco factory in the Near East.

Turkish tobacco, you know, is the best "seasoning" there is for cigarettes. At all times Chesterfield has in storage—at this plant and in America—about 350,000 bales of the right kinds of Turkish tobacco.

"Two If By Sea."

Although a large number of objections to the proposal to construct the St. Lawrence waterway have been advanced, one appears heretofore to have been overlooked. This is the argument advanced in the Senate by the effulgent Illinois solon, Mr. J. Hamilton Lewis.

That eminent gentleman's constituency includes the city which elected "Big Bill" Thompson to the mayoralty three times and apparently enjoyed, if it did not subscribe to, his maledictions directed toward the occupant of the British Empire throne. Painfully retentive memory recalls the threat to "punch King George on the snoot." So it is perhaps natural that Senator Lewis should be aware of the potentialities for trouble from the North. He believes that construction of the waterway "would provide a military avenue through the United States" for Great Britain.

Except that Paul Revere is generally depicted as clean-shaven one could see in Senator Lewis a reincarnation of that revolutionary hero. We shall look nightly at the Capitol dome to see if the Senator has had occasion to hang up two lanterns, to warn of the British approach by the St. Lawrence waterway.

The First Essential.

Action by Congress appears to be necessary to the construction of a modern airport for Washington. Secretary Ickes has indicated that he does not view with approval the plan to use Public Works funds for acquisition of the airport now in use. His first objective in the allocation of PWA funds is the creation of jobs. In this case a considerable sum would be required to purchase the site before any construction work could be undertaken.

Turner Battle, chairman of the PWA subcommittee on Federal projects, who has recently completed an investigation of the airport plan, considers the price asked for the present landing field to be excessive. Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, estimates that $3,556,000 would be required to develop Washington Airport, while a modern air terminal could be built at Gravelly Point for $2,300,000. Of course, the cost of the project is a vital consideration, whether funds are advanced by the PWA or supplied directly from the Federal and District revenues.

Another factor is the preference of the Park and Planning Commission for the Gravelly Point site. After a study of the airport situation for six years, Mr. Delano told the Congressional committee conducting hearings on the McSwain bill that "the commission adheres to its belief that the Gravelly Point site would be more suitable than any other for airport purposes." In view of this attitude the PWA could hardly be expected to authorize the development of a model air terminal at Washington Airport without specific instructions from Congress.

Rivalry between the groups sponsoring these two sites has contributed in no small measure to the delay in providing a suitable airport for Washington. Every one recognizes the urgent need for improvement of our airport facilities, but so long as interest is divided between two projects it is difficult to accomplish anything. A choice between the two sites ought to be made on the basis of cost, accessibility, flying hazards and possible future expansion. When the site has been definitely selected and acquired PWA funds might be made available to proceed with its development.

Whether Congress makes this decision itself or leaves it to a committee, as proposed in Representative McSwain's bill, action should not be delayed any longer. Very little progress in the elimination of flying hazards here can be expected until a site for a permanent airport, worthy of the National Capital, has been selected.

Alexandria's Handicap.

Alexandria is trying, under difficulties, to establish a community chest. Although that community has the reputation of caring for its own unfortunates since colonial days, the efforts to inaugurate a systematic plan for the collection of charity funds are handicapped by its close proximity to Washington.

A considerable percentage of Alexandria's residents work in the Capital and contribute to the local Community Chest. On at least one occasion such funds were returned to Alexandria's charitable organizations, but that act of courtesy was not repeated this year. As a result sponsors of the united charities drive in the Virginia town are finding it difficult to raise the $25,000 considered necessary for relief and welfare work.

No doubt efforts will be made to overcome this handicap in future years. In the meantime it is to be hoped that Alexandria will not be discouraged in this effort to put her charitable organizations on a systematic financial basis. An extra effort now may reduce the cost and efforts required to maintain charitable institutions in future years.

The Gold Reserve Bill.

The bill accompanying President Roosevelt's message, outlining his plans for nationalizing the gold reserves, seeks authorization for perpetuation of managed currency experimentation. The proposed legislation does not require immediate devaluation of the dollar, nor does it provide for stabilization at any specified time or at any fixed rate.

However, the R. F. C. has advanced its buying price for gold to a figure which establishes the gold value of the dollar at 60 per cent of its former parity. That action, taken in conjunction with the recommendation to fix the minimum rate of depreciation at 40 per cent, leads to the conclusion that the Treasury is preparing to revalue gold, now held or to be acquired, in terms of a 60-cent dollar.

The method of procedure to be followed in taking possession of the gold belonging to the Federal Reserve Banks is outlined with some precision, in contrast with the indefinite provisions relating to revaluation. Payment will be made in Treasury credits payable in gold certificates backed by gold bullion "equal to the dollar amounts required by law." In other words, if the theoretical gold weight of the dollar is fixed at 60 per cent of its former weight, the amount of bullion required to be held as cover for the certificates would be reduced correspondingly. These credits or gold certificates will constitute legal reserves against Federal Reserve notes.

By revaluing the gold in its possession, in terms of a 60-cent dollar, the Treasury would obtain a profit of about $2,600,000,000. If a further reduction in the theoretical gold weight of the dollar is decreed, the proposed law provides that the profits shall be paid into the Treasury. If the gold value of the dollar is raised, transfers must be made to the gold bullion fund from the Treasury's general fund. These sections of the bill authorize a dollar of variable gold content within the limits of the maximum 50 per cent devaluation permitted by the Thomas amendment and the minimum devaluation of 40 per cent recommended by the President. This leaves room for experimentation with the commodity dollar idea in a restricted form.

The $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund which is to be created out of the profits accruing from revaluation of gold is not a stabilization fund at all, as ordinarily understood. This fund may be employed for a variety of purposes such as buying and selling drafts, checks and bills of exchange, &c., in addition to purchases and sales of gold bullion coin and foreign currencies. In fact, the bill would empower the Secretary of the Treasury to engage in extensive general banking operations.

One of the main purposes of the proposed "Gold Reserve Act of 1934" appears to be to assure the Treasury possession of several billions of dollars acquired by a sort of financial sleight of hand. This windfall may relieve the strain of financing the heavy spending program of the Administration, although the segregation of $2,000,000,000 for so-called stabilization purposes restricts the use of these profits.

What means, if any, will be employed to utilize the remainder of the profits accruing from revaluation is far from clear. Secretary Morgenthau has announced that notes will not be issued against the gold impounded, but the Administration evidently desires the authority to do so.

In any case, the revaluation policy will put the Treasury in possession of large sums without resort either to borrowing or taxation. Spending of this type has markedly inflationary potentialities because it will add to the volume of member bank reserves and deprive the Federal Reserve Banks of their powers to check an inflationary expansion of credit should it threaten to become uncontrollable. The implications of the proposed act, in other words, have not as yet begun to receive the detailed consideration which is imperative before a bill of this magnitude is enacted into law.

Tender Political Toes.

Patronage-hungry Congressmen met in caucus Monday night and formally denounced the "inefficiency" and "unsympathetic attitude" which, they said, prevail in those emergency organizations which use their own discretion in selecting personnel. To make certain that only thinkers of sound politics would be chosen to carry out the recovery program, Congress left those agencies free to accept advice from Capitol Hill and to disregard civil service requirements. But some ungrateful administrators have boldly spurned the assistance of Senators and Representatives in the selection of job-holders.

Confronted with officials who do not regard "efficiency" and "sympathy" as synonymous, it is not surprising that a wave of resentment should sweep over Capitol Hill. Congress is always apprehensive over the appointment of employers who are "unfit"—because of unfortunate political affinity—for high responsibilities. And current Democratic anxieties were clearly manifested in the majority caucus. A resolution adopted by an almost unanimous vote charged that "in some districts the Agriculture Credit Administration is so unsympathetically administered as to deprive farmers of that prudent and just degree of relief the act was intended to afford." It was clearly intimated that this deplorable situation has come about because Gov. Myers has at times gone so far as to ignore the benevolent influence of Congressmen in choosing his personnel.

Since the new Administration took office the number of Federal employes has increased about 14,000 and many temporary jobs not included in this total have been distributed. Most of these employes were hired by the emergency organizations without the aid of civil service examinations. So it can not be charged that the wisdom of Congressmen in personnel matters has been superseded by the Civil Service Commission. What arouses wrath is that even without the Civil Service Commission politics are not always the only criterion in staffing the emergency offices. The Representatives are pointing out that they have the power to withhold appropriations from bureaus which are not filled with political appointees. But how ironic to realize that such heroic measures would still further deny the "prudent and just relief" with which, the Congressmen say, the Administration has been so niggardly.

Rather Pretentious.

Comptroller General McCarl is reported to have tied the hands of the Federal Housing Corporation by an opinion to the effect that the framers of the Constitution never contemplated the establishment of such a corporation. In view of various other innovations, from processing taxes to subsidized air mail, this Constitutional objection to an innocent-looking agency for slum clearance is somewhat startling. Swift paralysis would overtake many so-called agencies of recovery if the Comptroller General's edict should be applied to all undertakings not contemplated by the men who wrote our fundamental law nearly a century and a half ago.

For many years Mr. McCarl has been one of the most unrelenting watchdogs the Treasury has ever known. Now he seems to have reached out beyond the comptrollership and constituted himself as a more supreme Supreme Court. The older court on the Hill may read new meaning into the Constitution to make way for the New Deal; not so, McCarl! And in this case he has thrown the weight of his legal opinion into the breach without waiting for the ponderous machinery of the courts to be put into motion.

It is all rather bewildering to those citizens who thought our Government was built on a plan of balance as well as check. But the Comptroller General doesn't worry about that. It remains for the President or Congress to reassure him that the Supreme Court is still on the job, and to relieve him of any overwork that may have arisen through misapprehension in this regard.

Back From Siberia.

When Heinrich Conried, then general manager of the Metropolitan Opera Company, produced Richard Strauss' opera, "Salome," 27 years ago, he provoked a storm of protest that sent the "hussy," as it was called, into Siberian exile from which it has only just returned. A contrite and purified score, "Salome" has been given the accolade of the critics and the Diamond Horseshoe boxholders.

Music critics abandoned all effort to assay the musical worth of the piece upon its former presentation and gave themselves over to finding combinations of words sulphuric enough to express their indignation.

The offending scenes were, of course, the dance of the Seven Veils, when Salome flaunts her nearly-nude body in gyrations before the degenerate ruler, and her dance around the head of Jokaanan, climaxed when she kisses the mouth. A critic of the day said that as the audience passed out of the opera house, "faces were white" and "voices were hushed" and "The grip of a strange horror or disgust was on the majority."

The fact that this generation received "Salome" more kindly is not an indication per se that we are more abandoned. Indeed, Gatti clothed Goeta Ljungberg more generously for her Dance of Seven Veils than the Salome of three decades ago, and shifted to the background the scene in which the blackamoor hands the head of the prophet out of his cistern cell. As Olin Downes, of the New York Times, a conservative critic, said, "There was no reckless exposure; there was no suggestion of a lust-maddened Maenad in pursuit of her prey. Strauss the poet and dramatist rather than realist or decadent was disclosed."

It was not, in other words, that "Salome" was originally produced ahead of its time and that we have become inured to the sensuous and essentially vulgar; it is that Salome is a chastened and restrained girl, revealing her art, rather than her person and her coarseness.

Letters to the Editor

Hitler and the Jews.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Today in Germany there is a body of young clergymen, most of them war veterans, many of them holders of the Iron Cross, standing for the fundamentals of worth-while Christianity.

Already 4,000 of these pastors have gone on record as being opposed to Hitler's anti-Semitism. Their courage and faith brought this striking tribute from the Sunday Express, of London, England:

"The greatest champion the individual has ever had, the Protestant Evangelical faith, confronts the juggernaut of Hitler's uniformity campaign. Headed by the eminent theologian, Dr. Heath, German Protestants reject distinctions of race and politics in their community. With St. Paul they believe that in the church there shall be neither Jew nor Gentile, bond nor free.

"It is not surprising that the church whose founder, Martin Luther, cried out, before the embattled might of the Roman empire, 'Here I stand fast; I can not do otherwise,' should maintain its attitude. But it is significant that the Protestant faith should stand firm where trade unionism, communism, liberalism and dynastic and local loyalties have all bowed themselves down to the Nazi jackboot."

Christianity has too much of God in it to be forced into the human mold of Hitler or any other dictator, civil or ecclesiastical.

Are We Prepared for War?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: To the War College: Now just what defenses has Uncle Sam in case a thousand Japanese airplanes, or hostile planes, dropped bombs over a hundred principal American cities, New York, Philadelphia, Washington, easterly, but commencing at San Francisco and Los Angeles, and so timed during the "hush of night," the bombs fall in the Eastern cities at the same zero hour as Westwards? Are we prepared? Ready, to fight after the explosions, or is our Navy management so teed up it can foretell? Suppose the Maxim silencers muffle the engine puffs of the hostile planes, and suppose they attain a 12-mile altitude, or just up out of reach, apparently safe and hidden.

It has been suggested, in event the Jap or hostile planes elude the United States protective agencies, that with incredible swiftness, measures of reciprocity be applied, and 100 Japanese cities be similarly dealt with by our aggressive air service. Soon as they hit—hit back, with a peculiarly odorous equasion of 100 American cities equal to 100 Japanese cities.

Or, if the bombs ever strike Uncle Sam's cities, must we, perforce, like the Kaiser's doughboys, take up picks and spades, dig trenches, and therein hibernate, until we understand and are ready to meet the threat of hostile air bombs?

Camouflage, the art of concealing American cities, of making a city look like it isn't, calls for new brains.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Having long been a reader of The Post, I must put in my word of praise for the paper, as it is today. The editorial page alone is worth the subscription.

Mr. Quillen is always good, and Mr. Bargeron is inimitable. His conclusions, arrived at by a process best known to himself, would seem to be unanswerable, and his humor in these times of stress is most refreshing. He is past general master of the art of anti-climax. Long life to him.

A Typographical Error?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I can hardly believe that a mere typographical error in the Associated Press report was responsible for Senator Borah's characterization of Gov. Lehman's attack on Mayor LaGuardia, of New York. The report makes Borah call the New York governor's stand "partiotic." That is, I insist, a good word for the occasion. Mayor LaGuardia, it would seem, is so ambitious in his program that there is danger of his stealing all the thunder of Lehman and others, and so he must be curbed—all for the good of the party.

Incidentally, the senator from Idaho, who likes to pose as a lone wolf in politics, although normally a Republican, can be very "partyotic" on such occasions as Presidential elections.

Real radicals will watch with interest the career of Mayor LaGuardia, hemmed in as he is by the Republican machine in New York City, by Tammany and by the Democratic governor and the up-State Legislature.

A Taxpayer's Parking Problems.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I would like to join Socrates of the 9th instant in protest of parking cars in front of home owners' space. I own my home, have lived in it for 20 or 25 years, pay more than $200 a year taxes on it. Now a family has moved in across the street. They rent the house and park their old, dilapidated car in front of my house so that a good part of the time my people are unable to get their car in front of our house. I think we should have some protection and require people to play in their own backyard.

Youth vs. Age.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The sudden interest of old and oldish men in a youth movement makes my infantile mind very suspicious. There has never been a real spontaneous youth movement and probably never will be. Youth is essentially individualistic and anarchistic and organizes naturally no higher than the small gang. What we erroneously point to as youth movements are merely crowds of youths organized, directed, led and dominated by men. The youths are but plastic things molded by men. The movements have only momentum and lack all dynamic force. The old men furnish that. Old men give nothing away to youth, so that for the energy and directive force men collect what they want at the moment.

I was once gobbled up in what was called a youth movement. I mean the late war. I got shocked, shot and diseased and the old men got what they happened to want at the time.

Today the successors of the old men look hungrily about at the new crop of youngsters and itch to organize them into some usable form. Being too bankrupt for war, the old American bozos are getting ready to stage a Hitler or Mussolini farce so that they can grab off some more elusive bits of power and wealth or whatever it is old men want. If youth were left alone it would enjoy a few years of simple life before waking up and finding out what fools elders are. If we must organize, let us organize against old eggs and give them a good cracking. They need it badly.

A PAWN OF OLD MEN.

The St. Lawrence Waterway.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Where is this wild orgy of spending by the Government leading us to? If every senator would read the article in Collier's Magazine of January 6, 1934, written by George Creel, entitled "Get Out of the Ditches," I don't think there would be any doubt but what they would reject the waterway treaty with Canada relative to the St. Lawrence waterway and power project, which is estimated in George Creel's article to cost from $999,000,000 to $1,350,000,000.

He Is a Poor Friend Who Won't Help You Out of a Trap

By Robert Quillen

Few people, old or young, will admit pouting. It sounds too childish. Yet all, with few exceptions, will pout when they endure wrongs in silence—and having once begun to pout, will continue against their will.

When I was a very small boy I attended a school picnic. Running wildly in some impromptu game of tag, I had need of some stationary object by means of which to check my flight and make a quick turn. The object happened to be a girl, and I tore her sash.

My punishment was to walk across town with her and ask my mother to repair the damage.

The little girl returned to the picnic, but I sat all afternoon on the sunny side of a barn near the school grounds—and pouted. I could not face my kind again. I had been wronged and humiliated and shamed beyond endurance.

I longed to join the whooping brats that played and laughed under the trees. I ached with emptiness as I watched them devour the contents of many baskets—including my own—but some perversity kept me helpless at a distance. I didn't know how to quit pouting.

I once had a friend—long since dead of his weakness—who was a "periodic drinker." At irregular intervals he drank too much, awoke next morning with the horrors, drank again to make life endurable, and again got too much and awoke with the horrors.

One evening he said to me: "I'd give anything on earth to quit again, but I can't get loose."

Pouting has much the same effect. It begins with a sense of wrong, quickly fills the mind to the exclusion of all else, and soon has the victim helpless.

He broods, and those about him notice it. They make comment or keep their distance. And then he is lost. No matter how much he longs to feel and act natural again, he doesn't know how to begin it.

Serious cases end in tragedy—in the mental disease that comes of brooding and self-pity, or in some explosion of violence.

Mild cases can be cured by an understanding friend. The trick is to treat the victim as though he were normal and thus make it easy for him to act natural again without explanation or surrender.

Carlisle Bargeron

ONE of the most interesting things occurred yesterday afternoon. I often think it is one of the charms of the Nation's Capitol that interesting things are always occurring.

BARGERON.

Well, yesterday as we entered the National Press Club for luncheon there on the bulletin board was a notice that Mrs. Arthur E. Morgan, wife of the head of the Tennessee Valley Authority, would receive the women of the press at the Grace Dodge Hotel. You can bet we girls skirted there just as fast as we could go.

There we found Mrs. Morgan and she greeted us most graciously. She was most fittingly attired.

* * * *

After we had exchanged amenities Mrs. Morgan gave us a most interesting talk about what she and Dr. Morgan are doing in the Tennessee Valley. Of course, Dr. Morgan is doing most of it but Mrs. Morgan, like Mrs. Roosevelt, is doing her part. Indeed, we recognized immediately that Mrs. Morgan is to be to the valley what Mrs. Roosevelt is to the mines.

We learned that the wife of the Tennessee Valley head has had considerable experience in home demonstration work. She intends to apply this experience toward helping the valley wives. She will teach them how to put up canned goods and preserves to guard against the rainy day, as the old adage goes. It was most absorbing, what she said, and you can bet that our pencils were almost worked to death.

* * * *

Mrs. Morgan also expects to be of considerable assistance to the valley women in their needlework. Vast studies made by our Government, your Government and mine, have shown that there is a tremendous waste in this needlework. So many wives, and particularly those removed from the centers of our culture, use a needle that is ill adapted to the work in hand. If the New Deal needle is used exclusively it is believed that ten times as much needlwork can be done with the same amount of effort as is now expended on outmoded methods of needling. Certainly, all of us will join in the fervent hope that this is so.

Mrs. Morgan knows her human nature, however, and she realizes that if any effort is made to force the New Deal methods of canning and preserving, upon the valley folk that they will prove most stubborn. So persuasion rather than edict will be used.

* * * *

To this end the doctor and Mrs. Morgan intend to live in a house of the same structure as the Valley folk. Theirs will be a 6-room house, of course, whereas some of the other houses will be smaller because they have four children, three of whom are still at home. But any of the workers who have this many children can have a 6-room house, too.

Really, I can hardly disguise my enthusiasm when I tell of this interesting work that is being done by our Government, by your Government and mine, and just think the initial cost is only $50,000,000.

But what enthuses us girls most is that we have found another official woman who has press conferences. Just think how much interesting conversation we will have, with Mrs. Roosevelt telling of her activities and Mrs. Morgan telling of hers. If we were men we would not rest satisfied until we had got them into a controversy so we could get headlines. We are not men, though, and we women treat our friends much kindlier.

Then we have not established enough of these women's press conferences as yet. You see we are just feeling our way.

Maybe after we have progressed a little further we will take the men's advice and stir up some squabbles among the women. After all, that is the most fun, even to us newspaper girls. Sometimes we wish we were men.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors.

Books for Children.

When I was a boy, I read the best books and the worst; there apparently was no middle ground for me. I read all the Bible, all Shakespeare, "Gulliver's Travels," "Pilgrim's Progress and "The Holy War," "Robinson Crusoe," and the "Arabian Nights."

But I also read the complete works of Oliver Optic, and of Horatio Alger, jr., and of Harry Castlemon. But I think my favorite stories were "Jack Harkaway Among the Indians" and other books about the redoubtable Jack. All of these and other similar tales were absolute trash; but I am not sorry I read them, because they proved to me the magic of books. At a moment I could leave my surroundings and live in fairyland.

Now I still believe the best books for children are those that never were intended for children, like those mentioned in the first paragraph of this article.

But today children are fortunate indeed in having the complete works of Robert Louis Stevenson, whose blood and thunder stories are just as exciting as Jack Harkaway, and yet they belong to the ages, through their consummate literary art.

Note—Prof. Phelps is deeply grateful to the thousands who have written him, suggesting various books for his comments. Every one of these letters will be carefully considered, and all his friends will understand that it is impossible for him to answer or to acknowledge their letters.

A Cross-Section Choice of January's Best Films—"Red" Lewis Goes Broadway

Late Releases Disclose Many Fine Subjects

Nobel Prize Winner Casts First Play; Gossip of the Theater.

Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.

One of the major criticisms to be leveled at the recent National vote of the critics of the country on the 10 best pictures of the year, of course, was that it excluded from the list of eligibles many of the most recent pictures that have left the most vivid impressions upon the critical as well as the lay mind.

This was not in any sense a matter of arbitrary decision, but a necessary result of the time limitations that had to be thrown about the couduct of a National poll.

There can be little doubt that the National selection of the 10 best pictures actually has the effect of segregating the 10 best pictures of the year from a slightly less worthy mass of studio product. There can be no doubt, either, that many of the lists since compiled also represent a judicious selection from among many of the pictures which the Film Daily poll automatically excluded.

Perhaps added interest attaches, therefore, to the selection of the best pictures for the month of January, released through the Will H. Hays office by the seven groups of organizations representing a typical cross-section of National critical opinion, spanning the United States from ocean to ocean.

January's Best.

January's best films, according to this summary were "Alice in Wonderland," Paramount's Christmas release, with Charlotte Henry featured in the title role among practically all the stars on the Paramount lot; "Counsellor at Law," the Universal picturization of the Elmer Rice play, in which John Barrymore has just been seen in the Rialto Theater; "Should Ladies Behave?" Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's film version of the stage play, "The Vinegar Tree," in which Lionel Barrymore, Alice Brady and Mary Carlisle appeared to particular advantage, and "Smoky," a Fox release which has not to date been shown in the Capital.

Under the classification of "Social Drama," January's best were "A Man's Castle," Columbia film already seen here; "By Candlelight," the delightful comedy now on view at the Rialto; "Jimmy and Sally," penciled in and promptly erased at the Columbia, and "Mr. Skitch," the new Will Rogers starring vehicle.

Four productions qualified under the "Musical Extravaganza" heading, all of them seen on Washington screens. They are: "Dancing Lady," "Flying Down to Rio," "Going Hollywood" and "Roman Scandals," the last named current at the Palace, with Eddie Cantor starred.

Thumbs Down on One.

Much more surprising that these selections as the best pictures for January is the fact that among all the releases considered—and there are many of them listed in Mr. Hays' monthly brochure—only one was deemed sufficiently at fault to justify its being listed under the condemnatory heading of "Not Recommended."

Although it will not commit itself to the innovation as a fixed practice or definite change in policy, the management of the Metropolitan Theater again announces that the local engagement of "Girl Without a Room," to follow Dorothea Wieck in "Cradle Song," the current offering, will begin tomorrow, instead of on the customary Friday. The Rialto, corroborating last week's announcement that Thursday will be its regular opening day for new attractions hereafter, states emphatically that "King for a Night" will make its appearance on Ninth street day after tomorrow.

"Red" Goes Broadway.

Sinclair Lewis, recent winner of the Nobel Prize for literature, has gone Broadway in a big way.

The red-headed creator of "Babbitt" and other fictional figures supposed to be typical of certain aspects of life in various sections of these United States, is currently spending his days in the late Charles Frohman's office, supervising the casting of his first play to reach the Broadway stage.

This is a piece at present called "The Jayhawkers," although it is highly probable that it will never reach the boards under that name.

"It's about the Civil War, from the guerilla antislavery clashes in Kansas to the Battle of the Wilderness," Lewis explains, "but Lincoln isn't in it, there ain't no love scene between a Northern spy and a Southern beauty, no plantation scenes dripping with honeysuckle and magnolia blossoms, no 'cunnels' in the accepted movie sense."

Mr. Lewis is said to have chuckled as he recalled that Henry L. Mencken had suggested that this time he have a Southern spy in love with a Northern girl and make it a wow!

Doubts Future.

"I don't know a novelist that was equally successful as both," he asserts. "Tarkington did some fine plays. So did George Ade. But they will be known by their fiction, I think.

Lewis is having a fine time playing in the theater. Only one secret regret has escaped him.

"What we really need," he mourns, "is some good, old-fashioned bartenders. In only one or two places have I found a man who really knows how to mix drinks. If you don't watch 'em they put grenadine in a Bronx cocktail!"

A Charles Comes Back as "Buddy"

A new photographic study of Mr. Charles "Buddy" Rogers, probably the handsomest young brunette on the contemporary light musical stage, who returns to the Capital on Friday as headliner of the stage bill at Loew's Fox Theater. A few years ago "Buddy" wasn't quite dignified for the young man who sprang to fame on the Paramount lot, but today it seems to be doing very nicely by him!

A long-distance telephone call from Jean Dalrymple, in private life Mrs. Ward Morehouse, communicates the glad intelligence that this brilliant young publicist, last in Washington in behalf of Tallulah Bankhead and "Forsaking All Others," has almost completely recovered from the effects of a prolonged and serious illness that occasioned her friends much concern. Miss Dalrymple had devoted her talents most recently to the concert and directorial enterprises of that eminent Spanish pianist, Jose Iturbi, to be heard in Constitution Hall next Sunday afternoon under the management of Mrs. Dorothy Hodgkin Dorscy. She was with Iturbi during a sensationally successful tour of Mexico, which first revealed his ability as a conductor, and subsequently accompanied him and his family to Spain. Iturbi's week-end sojourn in the Capital, Miss Dalrymple confides, will be under especially distinguished auspices.

Another Freak Film.

Employment of the microscope in filming insects, making them hundreds of times their natural size for purposes both of entertainment and education, has prompted the writing of a movie adventure story that is soon to be filmed, according to word from Hubbard Keavy, chief of this column's West Coast, finger-in-the-wind department.

Lon Young, the author, calls his scenario, "The Land That Time Forgot." In it he will have spiders as big as men ano other insects which, for thrill purposes, attain growths usually attained only in lively imaginations or the bigger and better nightmares!

Scientifically Correct.

In some respects the picture will be like "King Kong," except that it will utilize real insects operating under their own motive power, instead of manufactured animals. "Kong" was animated by wires and other mechanical gadgets.

The insects will, of course, be photographed at one time and the human actors at another, when this film finally goes into production. With the aid of microscopic and other forms of trick photography conceived by Stacy Woodard, a motion picture scientist, who supplied the biological data for the Young story, the two separate processes will be put together as one.

In filming this story, Woodard will use the same methods of microscopic photography that have made his series of two-reelers called "The Battle for Life" popular.

June Gale, "oldest" of the Gale quadruplets, who were features in George White's "Scandals" and were formerly frequent visitors of Maxine Doyle's when she was mistress of ceremonies at the Earle Theater, is one of the Goldwyn Girls who cavort with Eddie Cantor in "Roman Scandals," now on the Palace screen. She might almost as well be that needle in the haystack!

Rathbone's Record.

Though Katharine Cornell now is making her first appearance in Shakespeare as Juliet in "Romeo and Juliet," Basil Rathbone, who plays Romeo in her production, holds what probably is a record among modern actors for the number of Shakespearean roles in which he has been seen.

Out of the 37 plays attributed to William Shakespeare, Rathbone has acted 35 roles in 23 of the dramas. The list is interesting: Ferdinand in "The Tempest," Fenton and Pistol in "The Merry Wives of Windsor", Antipholus of Ephesus in "The Comedy of Errors", Claudio in "Much Ado About Nothing", Lysander in "A Midsummer Night's Dream", Bassanio and Lorenzo in "The Merchant of Venice", Orlando in "As You Like It", Hortensio (his debut as an actor) and Lucentio in "The Taming of the Shrew", Orsino, Sebastian and Antonio in "Twelfth Night", Florizel in "The Winter's Tale", Lewis the Dauphin, in "King John", the Duke of Aumerle in "Richard II.", Poins in "Henry IV, Part I.", Henry, Prince of Wales, in "Henry IV., Part II.", the Dauphin in "Henry V.", Lord Hastings in "Richard III.", Tullus Aufidius in "Coriolanus", Romeo and Paris in "Romeo and Juliet", Cassius in "Julius Ceasar", Malcolm and Macduff in "Macbeth", Laertes, Horatio, Bernardo and Rosencrantz in "Hamlet", the Duke of Cornwall in "King Lear" and Iago, Cassio and Lodovico in "Othello."

Probably no other important actor of the day, who has not confined himself chiefly to the classic drama to the exclusion of modern plays, equals Rathbone's experience in Shakespeare.

Unless, possibly, it might be that venerable actor, now of the cinema, Hobart Bosworth, who some years ago established the fact—with the aid of both Otis Skinner and E. H. Sothern, that he was the then Shakespearean champion.

It will be recalled that Dorothy Wilson, importantly cast in "Eight Girls in a Boat," opening at Loew's Fox on Friday, is the young woman who was lifted from the post of office stenographer and made into a screen player of the first supporting magnitude almost over night. She has not been seen much of late. But neither has Kay Johnson, either for that matter—and Miss Johnson is to all intents and purposes the star of the film.

Dots and Dashes.

The newsreels this week are thickly sprinkled with calamity and disaster . . . Floods, tornadoes and whatnot . . . On Saturday and Monday, with five shows a day each, Bert Wheeler's diet was all shot to ribbons at the Earle . . . He eats a big red apple at every performance . . . Five apples a day not only make it tough for the doctor . . . They also make it tough for the patient at mealtime . . . When they finish their next picture, "Frat Heads," to be made after this Eastern trip, Wheeler and Woolsey plan to produce a musical girl-show and tour the smaller of the bigger cities . . . If you get the idea . . . They will star, supported by Dorothy Lee and, perhaps, Thelma Todd . . . And, of course, the prettiest girls in Hollywood . . . Which is pretty pretty! . . . Miss Todd is with them in "Hips, Hips, Hooray" . . . Those "Popeye, the Sailor" cartoon comedies are becoming more and more popular . . . An audible ripple runs through the house every time one is announced on the screen . . . For some inexplicable reason, every picture house in town got off to a bad start last Friday . . . They are all going along all right now . . . Could it be that Government pay day? . . . Instead of "Let's Fall in Love," with Edmund Lowe and Ann Sothern, the next attraction at RKO-Keith's will be Irene Dunne and Clive Brook in "If I Were Free" . . . Already postponed once or twice, this film will burst upon an expectant Capital come Friday morning . . . Or so said Manager Hardie Meakin yesterday . . . It's still a long time 'til Friday, However!

"Scrip It!"

How would it be for the loan of 60 cents in paper until pay day?

Ina Claire in Clever Comedy Season's Best

Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.

The Cast.

Richard Kurt.....Shepperd Strudwick
Minnie, Marion's maid..Josephine Deffry
Melchoir Feydak, a composer. Arnold Korff
Marion Froude.....Ina Claire
Leander Nolan.....Jay Fassett
Warwick Wilson.....Norman Stuart
Orrin Kinnicott.....Charles Richman
Slade Kinnicott.....Gertrude Flynn

By Nelson B. Bell.

Deftly juggling the idiosyncraisies of clashing temperaments, S. N. Behrman, in "Biography," has contrived the most sagacious and most substantial of his comedies without impairment of his flair for sparkling and epigrammatic dialogue. This combination of arresting situations, more psychological than physical, and brilliance of speech affords an admirable vehicle for the generous talents of the American theater's foremost comedienne.

"Biography," by its facile play of delightful humor, breezy unconventionality and occasional tenderness, discloses Miss Ina Claire as an artiste of extraordinary command of mood, grace of both movement and speech and an alert and versatile maturity; an artiste secure in a literate and intelligent perfection in the delicate nuances of the drama's most difficult and most treacherous form.

Mr. Behrman has created as his central character a young portrait painter whose career has been a succession of triumphs in various American, European and Asiatic centers of culture and whose romantic impulses have been subjected to slight restraint.

"Old Sweetheart of Mine."

Upon her return to New York, one of the first who submits himself to the wizardry of her palette is a diffident and quaint Tennessean who was her first youthful lover, but who now has grown pompous with the bogus grandeur of a budding political career, sponsored by his prospective father-in-law, the most powerful newspaper owner in his State.

The sittings progress in orderly fashion until a young radical, serving for the moment as an important executive of a highly colored weekly publication, solicits Marion Froude's biography as a serial "circulation builder." This autobiography, which is the item, needless to say, from which the play derives its name, is to relate all of the intimate circumstances that have characterized Miss Froude's various—and hopelessly exaggerated—"affairs" from the hour of her birth to the present, including, of course, the first with the ambitious Mr. Leander "Bunny" Nolan, candidate for the United States Senate, with the White House beckoning vaguely in the dim and distant future.

Nolan perceives in this lamentable intrusion upon the secrets of his past only a threat against his otherwise unimpeachable integrity in the eyes of his Tennessee constituents, Richard Kurt, the enterprising young radical, discerns in the attempt to balk his pet project merely another reason to form bitter animosities and fortify himself further against the sinister encroachments of tolerance. Miss Froude, the artist, recognizes in the impasse that her modest literary effort occasions at first a source of great amusement and then a peculiarly disturbing realization that it is threatening all in life that she holds dear.

Author's Courage.

Mr. Behrman has had the courage to end his play upon an heroic, even if not triumphant, note of soaring independence that smashes no lives save perhaps only her own—and one doubts even that.

The development of the considerable ramifications of plot are not all accomplished in so simple and direct a manner as this terse recital might suggest. There is much interplay of brittle humor, a rather wide field of character exposition and now and again an unexpected climacteric moment or two to weave something of genuine drama into the warp and woof of a play that preserves a pretty balance between the serious and the gay.

The mood and tempo of the scenes are invariably set by Miss Claire, who possesses a rare sense of dramatic effect as well as comedy. There is possibly no other actress on the contemporary stage who can so quickly, so subtly and so surely convert a scene of utter gayety into one of gentle tenderness, sometimes bordering close upon the brink of pathos, as she.

Those in Support.

Jay Fassett, remembered cordially for an especially ingratiating performance in Rachel Crothers' "As Husbands Go," repeats the outstanding excellence of that impersonation in his present assignment to the role of the ingenuous and pathetically ineffectual Leander Nolan. Mr. Fassett makes Mr. Nolan precisely what the author must have intended and gives rise to the belief that no one need ever expect mediocrity from him. As much may be said for the briefer part of Melchior Feydak, Viennese composer, whose friendly solicitude proves the means of Marion's escape from the anguish of the havoc wrought by her biography, which long before had been quietly consigned to the fire upon her hearth.

Shepperd Strudwick portrayed the violent and belligerently rebellious Richard Kurt with an overemphasis that seemed of scant advantage to the comedy's sum total of merits. Charles Richman, one of the veterans of the theater, achieved something of a personal triumph in the last-act role of Orrin Kinnicott, newspaper owner from the South, with a delightful Dixie drawl, and Gertrude Flynn, as his daughter, engaged to Nolan, scored comparably in an even briefer part. Norman Stuart does an amusing bit as a Hollywood star.

Philip Moeller has given the play his accustomed adroit direction and the single setting by Jo Mielziner is in key with the other superiorities of the best comedy of the season to date.

Crash Victim's Funeral Set.

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 16 (Spl.). The body of Harold E. "Red" Evans, killed in an auto accident on Mount Vernon boulevard near Alexandria, Va., has been taken to the home of his sister, Mrs. John W. Burns, Oldtown road, for the funeral tomorrow afternoon. The Rev. Dr. Eugene P. Skyles, pastor of St. Mark's Reformed Church, will officiate. Burial will be in Rose Hill Cemetery. Evans lived at 613 C street northwest, Washington.

West Virginia Judges Reject KennaTaxPlan

25% Appropriation Slash for All State Schools Is Proposal.

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.). Three of West Virginia's five Supreme Court justices today declared unconstitutional a plan advanced by one of their associates, Judge Kenna, for solution of the State tax problems.

Judges M. O. Litz, John H. Hatcher and Homer B. Woods said the plan, based on separaton of the levying powers of counties and districts, was "but a repetition of the device" contained in a property tax collection system held unconstitutional last summer, because it involved excess levies for bonded debts.

"The tax dilemma is as far from solution as ever," Speaker Ralph M. Hiner said today as he left a meeting of the joint tax committee.

Recommendations of a flat reduction of 25 per cent in the appropriations for all State educational institutions, involving a $675,000 cut, was made to the House of Delegates today by its taxation and finance committee.

The institutions affected are the State University at Morgantown, Marshall College at Huntington, and twelve normal, preparatory and training schools, including the school for the deaf and blind at Romney.

The milk fight was shifted to the Senate today after long and stormy debate in the House, which yesterday approved a measure to regulate the milk industry. The bill creates a State dairy products board, to supervise and regulate production under licenses.

The House Judiciary Committee today broadened a pending bill to liberalize restrictions on medicinal liquors. In place of requiring a physician's prescription, the signing of a "certificate" would be held sufficient. The State tax of 50 cents a pint was cut to 20 cents. This committee also recommended passage of a bill to repeal laws prohibiting publication of liquor advertisements.

Lutherans Set Synod Meeting

Roanoke 4-Day Event Will Draw Speakers of Many Sections.

Roanoke, Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.).—Dr. J. C. Scherer, of Richmond, president of the synod, and a number of other prominent churchmen will speak at the 105th convention of the Lutheran Synod of Virginia here January 23-26.

Arthur Black, of Washington, a representative of the boards of the United Lutheran Church in America, is among the scheduled speakers. Others include the Rev. James K. Cadwallader, of Wytheville; Dr. F. C. Longaker, of Roanoke College; the Rev. R. L. Markley, of Lynchburg; the Rev. Lewis Koon, of New Market; the Rev. John F. Fray, of Sheperdstown, W. Va.; the Rev. John W. Shuey, of Kingsport, Tenn.; Dr. J. A. Morehead, of New York City; Dr. C. M. Teufel, of Staunton, the Rev. A. M. Huffman, of Knoxville, Tenn.; the Rev. H. A. McCullough, jr., of Chattanooga, Tenn., and M. E. Thomas, of Baltimore, a representative of the church boards.

The choir of St. Mark's Church and of the college church at Salem will provide special music.

Post Also Plans Rally of Veterans in Area.

Bristol, Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.). Hackler-Wood Post, American Legion, will continue its program to lessen child delinquency in Bristol, but will cooperate with Mrs. Margery Wyatt, Federal relief director, officers said today.

At the February meeting past commanders will be in charge of the program.

Tennessee State Commander Dick Turner and other officials, including Guy H. May, State adjutant; O. R. Hubert, district executive committeeman, and Walter E. Martin, State vice commander, will attend. The meeting will be a rally of all former service men of this section.

J. B. Gibson Rites Today at Arlington

Military Funeral to Be Held for Connecticut Man.

Military rites for Julian Burr Gibson, brother of Edward B. Gibson, of Washington, who died in his home in New Haven, Conn., Monday, will be held in Arlington Cemetery today at 10 a. m.

Mr. Gibson served with the American forces during the World War, retiring from the Army shortly after the Armistice with the rank of first lieutenant.

Besides his brother, he is survived by his father, Lieut. Col. R. J. Gibson; a sister, Mrs. A. J. Cooper, and his widow, Mrs. Nevada Gibson.

Romney, W. Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.). A fall from a sofa while intoxicated, resulting in a broken neck, was blamed officially for the death of Henry Rinker, 24, at Purgittsville yesterday by Acting Coroner J. E. Pownall and a jury.

The dead man's family said they were satisfied with the finding. The coroner was told Rinker fell in trying to leave the sofa during a debate at the home of John Brown.

Who's Afraid

Big Wolf Killed in Greene County.

Luray, Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.).—The first wolf seen in Virginia in many years was killed by J. W. Melone in Greene County a few days ago.

The wolf is said to have killed several dogs and as many sheep in Greene County within the past six months. The animal was 4 feet 7 inches long, with legs 19 inches long.

The last wolf reported seen in the Shenandoah Valley was in 1849. A mail carrier came near losing his life when a pack of the animals attacked him.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.). Forty-eight thousand six hundred forty-five men and women have been placed on CWA projects in West Virginia direct from relief rolls, while 35,222 other jobs have been filled by the National Reemployment Service, according to a report by James H. McGinnis, State director.

Winchester, Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.). The business census in Winchester and Frederick County, financed by the Civil Works Administration, has been started.

Maurice Grim and E. Miller Streit are enumerators for Winchester and Joseph Baker, of Kernstown, has charge in Frederick County.

All establishments engaged in retailing or wholesaling, service business, amusements and hotels to be included.

Mayer Accepts Camp Post.

Frostburg, Md., Jan. 16 (Spl.). Carl F. Mayer, hotel operator here, has accepted a commission as major in charge of a transients' camp at Yellow Sulphur Springs, four miles from Blackstone, Va. The camp is a CWA project.

Richmond, Jan. 16 (Spl.). Saturday was a big day here for CWA workers. More than 3,200 persons received over $44,000.

Waynesboro, Pa., Jan. 16 (Spl.). CWA pay rolls last week in Franklin County totaled $28,434.87, according to an announcement today. Two thousand two hnudred and seventy-two men received checks.

3 More Projects Approved.

Martinsville, Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.). With the announcement yesterday of approval of three new CWA projects, the total to be spent in the county and Martinsville received $79,510.30. Of this sum, $29,152.25 is being spent on city projects and $50,358.05 in the county.

Several hundred men have been given employment during the last two weeks.

Lebanon, Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.). Russell County's CWA pay roll continues to rise, with the amount last week totaling $4,500.17. Three hundred and eighty-one men worked 10,781 hours.

School projects were approved last week in every district in the county. Work started on some yesterday and by the end of this week, if materials can be placed, all will be under way.

James C. Johnson Dies.

Lynchburg, Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.). James C. Johnson, 58, is dead at his home in Amherst County. He is survived by three sisters, Mrs. R. S. Weaver, of Staunton; Mrs. O. K. Kidd, of Bedford, and Mrs. J. W. Marsh, of Rustburg.

Virginia Chess Players Plan Tourney in March

John M. Buck, holder of the North American correspondence chess title, who lives now in Lynchburg, and Dr. Karl S. Blackwell, prominent player of Richmond, are among the outstanding contestants the local club hopes to engage in the tournament.

Dovell Denies Virginia Must Increase Taxes

Appropriations Chairman Expects Liquor Levy to Suffice.

Richmond, Jan. 16 (AP).—Ashton Dovell, floor leader, appropriations chairman and member of the governor's advisory commission on the budget, told the House today there was no necessity for an increase in Virginia taxes.

First, he said he saw no necessity for additional taxes other than liquor revenue, and, second, he urged the members to inform themselves on the appropriations bill and vote for it on its merits, without using it as a means of attacking some department or agency of the State.

Asked later if his speech should be interpreted as opposing restoration of the school appropriation to the 1932 level, which Gov.-elect Peery is reported to favor, along with some new revenue to meet the appropriation, Mr. Dovell said he thought he was in substantial agreement with the incoming governor.

"I think we should provide more money for schools, and I would be in favor of some shifting of taxes and revenues to do it, but at the same time I think the State Board of Education should be a board of education and not a fiscal agency," he said.

The 1932 appropriations were cut 30 per cent by Gov. Pollard by executive order. Gov. Pollard, in his message last week, recommended restoration of appropriations to within 15 per cent of the 1932 level, through liquor revenue and a $1,050,000 increase in utility taxes.

Sources close to Mr. Peery, who makes his inaugural address tomorrow, revealed last week he would favor the full restoration of the school appropriation.

West Virginian Killed In Rail Crossing Crash

Clarksburg, W. Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.). John Rutherford Dennison, 63, of Indian Run, oil and gas developer and one of the largest land owners in this section, died yesterday of injuries received when his automobile was struck by a train.

Dennison was driving to a stockholders' meeting when a Baltimore & Ohio passenger train struck him at a crossing near Bristol. His widow, three sons and four daughters survive.

Radio Waves and Ripples

NEW YORK'S radio cab operators are doing quite a business carrying around people who just want to listen to programs.

One of the companies manufacturing automobile receivers claims radio cabs earn from $4 to $6 more a night than their silent competitors. A taxi driver friend of ours who has a friend in New York driving a cab says his friend averaged $4 to $5 a night before installing a radio. Now he averages $9.

The rush hour is between 7 and 8 o'clock at night, the friend says, when Amos 'n' Andy and the Crime Club are on the air. One Wall street broker has been having trouble with his office radio lately. Our cab driver friend's friend picks him up every afternoon at 3 for Ma Perkins. Buildings, tall ones, especially, usually cause a lot of interference, so drivers with fares who want to listen head straight for Central Park or the Battery.

There was a mother who had made an appointment with a dentist to have her child's teeth examined. At the last minute the child, a girl, refused to leave the house until she had heard "The Tattered Man." She even threatened a tantrum. Of course, it was only an excuse for not going to the dentist. The mother solved the problem by calling our friend's radio cab.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will broadcast twice within the next 11 days from local stations.

Her name has been added to the list of speakers on WMAL tonight for the National Committee on the Cause and Cure of War Conference. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt will be toastmistress, introducing, in addition to the First Lady, Mrs. Corbett Ashby, who was one of England's delegates to the arms conference, and Ruth Morgan.

Three blown-out fuses put WRC off the air for five minutes beginning at 4:26 p. m. Monday.

The engineers weren't very clear as to the cause, but two of them, Don Cooper and Harold Yates, bumped their heads running around to fix things, so technical men aren't always calm and strong in a crisis.

WRC Announcer Bill Coyle is due to march up to the altar February 2.

WJSV will carry Mrs. Roosevelt speaking before the National Housing Conference with Secretary Ickes and Langdon Post in the Willard Hotel, Saturday, January 27. Bayard Swope, conference treasurer, will act as chairman of the meeting.

Back East after six months of movie-making on the West Coast, Ruth Etting has been engaged by Columbia for a series of sponsored shows beginning next month with Johnny Green's Orchestra and Ted Husing.

Miss Etting is the song interpeter the Nation's radio editors named for first honors in her category last year.

Husing has been assigned the master-of-ceremonies post.

After a rather shaky start, the Federal Radio Commission appears to be winning its war on unlicensed radio station operators. Out of 16 cases prosecuted between July and December last year, the commission lost but two. When the war on "air pirates" opened in Texas, the courts were inclined to throw out the commission's cases for lack of evidence.

When Joe Schenck was alive, the song and comedy team of Van and Schenck was one of the most popular on the vaudeville circuits.

Joe's partner, Gus, has been trouping alone since Joe died; and now N. B. C. has signed him and Arelene Jackson for a run of 15-minute weekly shows to start Tuesday, January 30. Gus has been on the air before for N. B. C., but mostly in the master-of-ceremonies role.

N. B. C. is arranging to broadcast the opening of the Canadian Parliament for 15 minutes January 25 . . . Time allotted William Lyon Phelps for the Voice of America broadcast tomorrow night on C. B. # Protest Halts Highway Work

Woman Balks at Removal of Sidewalk at New Market.

New Market, Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.). Right-of-way and grading operations in connection with repaving New Market's Main street by the State highway department, started here today, were stopped after 10 feet of concrete sidwalk had been torn up at the northern end of town.

Protest against the removal of her walk was voiced by Mrs. J. C. Burkholder, causing temporary suspension of the work.

Although the actual repaving is not expected to begin for about 30 days, the town had requested the highway department to lay the necessary right-of-way and grade lines in order that all work to be done by the town could be accomplished while CWA funds were available.

The town council turned over an unrestricted 40-foot right-of-way to the highway department last June 6.

Hagerstown Woman Granted Suit Retrial

Frederick, Md., Jan. 16 (Spl.).—Judge Arthur D. Willard yesterday granted a new trial in the $10,000 suit brought by Mrs. Carrie M. Hertzler, Hagerstown, against the mayor and council of Hagerstown, in which a jury awarded the woman $4,000. The case was tried in the Circuit Court of this country last November. Mrs. Hertzler alleged she fell over a wire fastened to a stake in a Hagerstown sidewalk and was permanently injured.

It is expected the case will be retried in February.

Dr. Kimbrough is Dead.

Lights Sought For Strasburg

"White Way" System, Also Town Manager, Asked at Meeting.

Strasburg, Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.).—At a mass meeting last night, installation of a "white way" on King street between Massanutten and Sharp was voted.

The new system would cost $40 per light per year, against $36 for the present system.

The citizens requested the council to borrow $3,500 for installing the system, also to levy an additional assessment of 10 cents per $100, until the debt is liquidated.

Plans call for four lights per block on each side of the street. The metal posts are to be 12 feet high and surmounted by large glass bowls.

A resolution was unanimously voted that the council request the State Legislature to amend the town charter, so as to allow a town manager form of government.

New University Weekly.

Charlottesville, Jan. 16 (Spl.). The University Forum, a new weekly published by University of Virginia students, will appear Thursday. Robert A. Wilson, jr., is editor with Frederick Horsley and Everett Lee as associates.

Gen. Hines Will Address Chamber at Roanoke

Roanoke, Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.).—The Roanoke Chamber of Commerce will have its annual meeting January 22.

Gen. Frank T. Hines, Administrator of Veterans' Affairs, to be the principal speaker, said a White House engagement precluded his appearance January 23, the original date.

Chalmers Baker, 22, Hurt in Car Crash

Hagerstown, Md., Jan. 16 (Spl.). Chalmers Baker, 22, of Shippensburg, Pa., en route home from here early today, was seriously injured when his car hit a culvert and was wrecked. He was found in the wreckage and taken to Chambersburg Hospital.

Richmond Pair Killed When Train Hits Auto

Kingstree, S. C., Jan. 16 (AP). George D. Hufner, 35, and T. H. Pollard, 50, both of Richmond, Va., were killed as their truck crashed into an Atlantic Coast Line passenger train at Kelnemann, 12 miles from here, yesterday. Their bodies were sent to Richmond today.

The impact caused three cars of the train to leave the track, resulting in injury to Mrs. L. O. Copeland, of Savannah.

Stafford County Man Ends Life With Razor

Funeral services took place today. At one time Schacklett was a candidate for sheriff of Stafford County, and for several years he operated a county school bus. He leaves a widow and three children.

Negroes to Present Play.

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.). "Heaven Bound" a folk-play written, directed and acted by Negroes, will be presented at the University of Virginia February 2.

The cast will comprise 100 Negroes from Richmond. The production is for the benefit of the Southern Women's Educational Alliance.

New Hungarian Envoy Leases Parsons Home

The newly appointed Minister of Hungary and Mme. Peleyni, who have been stopping at the Mayflower Hotel since their arrival in Washington, have leased the house of Mrs. Arthur Jeffrey Parsons, at 1704 Eighteenth street, which they will move into in about two weeks.

The house wos formerly occupied by the Brazilian Ambassador to Japan, Senor S. Gurgel do Amaral, when he was Ambassador to the United States.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey Parsons, who have been visiting the former's mother, Mrs. Arthur Jeffrey Parsons, in her home at 1818 N street for ten days, will leave Washington today for Cumberland, Md., to visit Mrs. Parsons' parents until the first of February, when they will return to the Capital.

Mr. and Mrs. Parsons recently bought Waverly, a beautiful old estate at Leesburg, Va., which is being remodeled and they expect to move in some time in March, where they will make their home the year round.

A reception and tea will be given this afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock in honor of Mrs. Raphael Harwood Miller, wife of the newly installed minister of the National City Christian Church, at the home of Mrs. E. V. Pugh, 6901 Glenbrook road, Edgemoor. Dr. and Mrs. Miller and their son, Raphael, jr., have recently come here from Kansas City, Mo.

Gen. and Mrs. Robert E. Wood, of Highland Park, Ill., are at the Carlton.

HURRAH.. HURRAY!
I'VE LOST 40 POUNDS
They made me tired—all those slender women who were telling me not to eat potatoes and pastry and ice-cream! They ate the same things I did—yet they never gained a pound!
But I fooled them! Knew something was wrong with my body, so I took 4 tablets a day containing a simple corrective for abnormal obesity prescribed by doctors the world over.
Results were amazing. I didn't diet, exercise, or drain my system by taking drastic purgatives. But gradually excess fat disappeared. Today I'm as trim and slender as an artist's model!
* * *
That, in brief, is what thousands of women who have reduced the Marmola way might well tell you if they had the chance. Would you like to learn their secret? Then buy a package of Marmola, read the simple directions, and start at once to get rid of that burdensome fat!
Marmola is put up by one of the best known medical laboratories in America. Since 1907 men and women have purchased more than 20 million packages. Could any better recommendation be had?
Start today! You will soon experience Marmola's benefits. When you have gone far enough, stop taking Marmola. And you will bless the day when you first discovered this marvelous reducing agent!
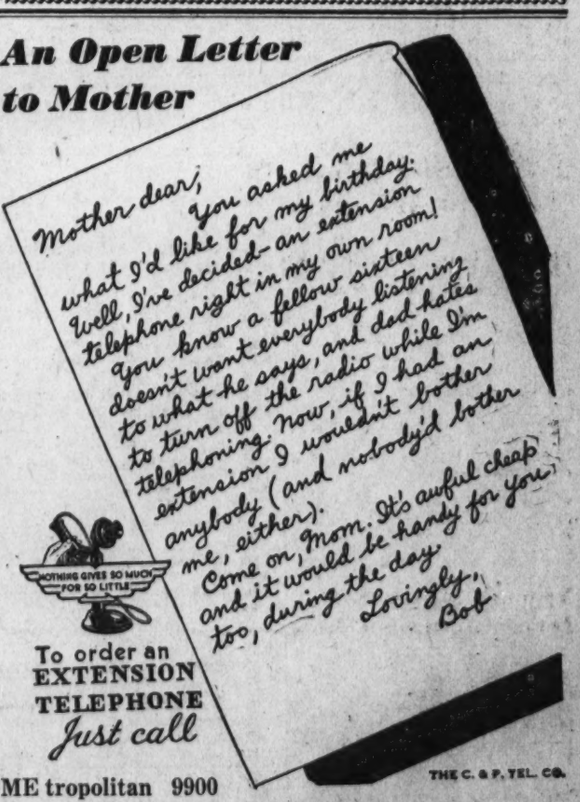
4 MARMOLA A DAY TAKES FAT AWAY

An Open Letter to Mother


Mother dear,
you asked me what I'd like for my birthday. Well, I've decided—an extension telephone right in my own room! You know a fellow sixteen doesn't want everybody listening to what he says, and dad hates to turn off the radio while I'm telephoning. Now, if I had an extension I wouldn't bother anybody (and nobody'd bother me, either). Come on, Mom. It's awful cheap and it would be handy for you, too, during the day.
Lovingly,
Bob

Mountain Folks' Tipsy Pottery Invades Cities

Bulging Out of Turn Only Adds Grace—and New Sales Appeal.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

Handmade pottery, highly lustrous and oddly molded, was discovered in the backwoods of North Carolina by an enterprising New Yorker a few years ago. It was taken to the great city, where it was talked of, written about, sketched, photographed. Recently a Washington young woman was responsible for its appearance here. But the story begins a long way back.

This certain New Yorker was in North Carolina acting as the apple judge at a fair. She sent to the general store for some tin plates and received instead some beautiful orange pottery platters. Recognizing immediately that here was something well worth investigating, she found by inquiry that they were probably made by the people of a village called Why Not. Her husband, an artist, also became interested and wrote letter after letter to the mayor, the postmaster, the president of the chamber of commerce at Why Not, but received no answer.

As the mystery deepened, interest quickened. The New Yorker and her husband started on a tour of investigation and found that Why Not consisted of three cabins, remotely separated.

A Forgotten Village.

The inhabitants were survivors of a forgotten settlement of Staffordshire colonists who continued to carry on their existence in an almost Elizabethan manner. Yes, they answered queries, they had made some pottery but they didn't anymore. No, they didn't want to. No. No! No! They were obstinate. Finally one old fellow referred the seekers to Jugtown, a few miles farther inland.

Here the New Yorker and her husband met with more success. The backwoods people of Jugtown did make pottery but only for their own use. Urged by the amazingly energetic New Yorker they were persuaded to oil up the wheel, step on the treadle, and start to work. In a few weeks they turned out more pottery than Jugtown had seen in years.

Old Peter, who was more or less head man around Jugtown, didn't like the idea at first. After the New Yorker had explained what she wanted he asked with a suspicious gleam in his eye, "Can't them Yankees git no white chiney?"

Charm in Irregularity.

However, he was finally won over and the work got under way with amazing rapidity. It takes 15 hours to make one batch of pottery. Then it has to be molded and glazed. The pieces always come out in different shapes—even when they're supposed to look alike. But there's an amazing charm to their rotundity and unique outline. The colors, haphazard as they are, are beautiful.

When the New Yorker returned to her metropolis with a goodly store of pottery, people all over the city became interested. Articles appeared in papers and magazines. A certain young interior decorator in Washington read them and was curious. On a return trip from Florida she drove out of her way to Jugtown. She was delighted with what she found. Loading her car with as much pottery as it would hold and ordering still more to be sent, she returned to Washington and opened her little shop.

The walls of the shop are lined with vases, large and small, of all colors, blue, green, yellow and orange. Jugs, looking as though one side had been sliced off with a knife, serve as attractive candle-houses, with the tops acting as chimneys. Others have small holes cut in the side to serve as bird-houses. There are large pitchers, jugs, teapots, bowls, and such an assortment of shapes and sizes that they defy classification.

Gloves at a Bargain.

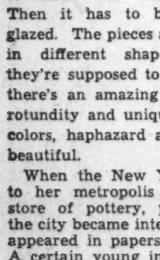
A shop well known because of the unusally high grade material which is its specialty, and because its clientele is largely made up of people who can afford to buy and buy well, is having a glove sale which fairly stuns by the radical drop in prices. White pigskin, brown, oyster and rust, kids, black, brown, beige, and a few fancy gloves of varied materials have come down from their tip-top prices to $2.45 and $1.75.



Although the sizes and selections are not the wide range of the standard stock, if we can be fitted and suited here, we can actually find a bargain.

First Aid for Clothing.

That feeling of dismay which floods our being when we suddenly perceive a snag or a cigarette burn on our best frock, or the husband's new tailor-made coat may turn to complacence if we have a tube of "patch paste" in the cupboard.

A piece of the material cut a little larger than the hole is smeared with paste around the edges and pressed firmly over the hole. It acts as a patch, but is less conspicuous. Instead of the telltale stitches around the edges there's only a satisfactory smoothness.

Colony Was Started by Harvard Boy Who Had Spent Summers There.

Craftsmen of Bird Haven Are Strangers to Autos and Railroads.

By Marion Butler.

In a timbered valley, 12 miles from the nearest railroad station, at Mount Jackson, Va., a group of mountaineer craftsmen have established a tiny colony and are hard at work turning rough pine logs into exquisite copies of early American furniture.

Modern machine methods are taboo in the crude shops which they have built for themselves out of a barn and an old cow shed. They work entirely by hand, selecting their own lumber, cutting, hauling, and fashioning it in the manner of their pioneer ancestors three centuries ago.

Began With a Handshake.

They are known as the Shenandoah Community Workers of Bird Haven, Va. Their story started in 1927 with the handshake of a Harvard graduate.

He was William Bernard Clark. His mountain friends, true "hill billies" from Virginia's Alleghany and Massanutten ranges.

In that year Clark's grandmother, Mrs. Montrose Eliot Clark, died and left him Bird Haven, a remote mountain estate of 340 acres of virgin timber, and the responsibility of caring for her "mountain children," to whom she had played the role of fairy godmother for a lifetime.

Leaving his Philadelphia manufacturing plant, this young Harvard man came to the valley where he had spent his boyhood summers. He visited the poverty-stricken homes of many of his former playmates, now with families of their own, and badly in need of work.

"My own funds were low," Clark said, "but something had to be done. With cheap lumber and labor close at hand, I hit upon the plan of a community enterprise, conducted by mountaineers, making native handicrafts for mutual profit."

Turning over Bird Haven to the project which he financed, Clark shook the hands of his new partners late that autumn. By 1928 the shops were running at full speed. His mountaineer workmen—many of them untutored, some so unfamiliar with civilization that a model T Ford was an apparition, and a locomotive a monster to be watched from a safe retreat—proved to be master craftsmen.

"It was in their blood," Clark says, pointing out that their natural aptitude for wood-working is inherited from their Pennsylvania Dutch ancestors, who settled the Virginia Alleghanies in 1730 on the promise of free land.

During the long months of building, a twisting, rocky path was the only entrance to Bird Haven. With the railroad a dozen miles away at Mount Jackson, all equipment had to be hauled by wagon and a ramshackle Ford.

"We managed somehow, though," Clark recalls. "A kiln for drying lumber was the only job we had outside help on. We couldn't lay the tiles. All the rest we did ourselves, steamfitting, plumbing, bricking the forge, even fashioning crude smokestacks from sheet metal and iron bands."

Simple toys were the first things attempted by the workers. A series of children's jig-saw puzzles was made from a stack of discarded weather boarding found in the barn.

The skilled craftsmen of remote Bird Haven, in the mountains of Virginia, are unfamiliar with such things as railroads and autos and all the strange accessories of modern civilization. But they have inherited from their English ancestors a skill in making beautiful furniture out of the rough forest logs. In tiny mountain workshops, fashioned by themselves, they produce marvelous reproductions of early American pieces.

Long a State bird sanctuary, Bird Haven gave Clark his next idea of fashioning colorful and instructive bird toys for children of kindergarten age. In search of authentic bird lore, he went to Gilbert Pearson, president of the National Association of Audubon Societies. Mr. Pearson made available to the Shenandoah Community Workers 135 color pictures of American birds painted by such famous nature artists as Bruce Horsfall and Louis Agassiz Fuertes. Cutting their own brass stencils, experimenting with paints, the craftsmen painstakingly reproduced these sketches in the wooden bird puzzles, napkin rings and book ends for which they are now famous.

Many noted people have taken an interest in the tiny mountain shops. John Martin contributed a number of animal drawings from his well-known children's magazine, the John Martin Book, which were cut into quaint, wooden-wheel toys known as "beasties." Robert Dickey, famous dog sketcher, did a series of his drawings for the craftsmen.

Samuel Yellin, said to be the greatest wrought-iron worker since Benevenuto Cellini, and chosen as the artist to do the iron work on the St. Alban's Cathedral, visited Bird Haven and spent a week teaching Clark's mountaineer craftsmen the ancient art of working at the forge. Thanks to his efforts, these remote forest workshops produce some of the finest colonial wrought-iron andirons and fire tongs made.

Spending a year with the workers, Everard Lindstrom, Swiss genius in woodworking, taught these mountain people to become artists in the reproduction of early American furniture. From just a sketch or snapshot, they can reproduce today an antique chest, table or bedstead of centuries ago. Working in walnut, maple or pine, they use wood from their own forest estate, fashioning and pegging the joints just as did the craftsmen of old.

Everything that can be successfully hand-made is fashioned at Bird Haven these days, from basket weaving to hooked rugs, and the newly included jams, jellies and nut candies made from the fruits and nuts of the forest.

From a mere handful of workers, the numbers have increased to 65 skilled men and women of the neighboring hillsides.

Working hours are from sunrise to sunset. Some come down from the mountains on horse; others tramp the rough trails. Not even heavy winter storms keep them from their beloved shops.

During their greatest boom time—the reign of the jig-saw puzzle—they labored 20 hours a day, producing over 80,000 hand-cut jig-saw puzzles in four months.

Young, enthusiastic, and proud of his "mountain people," as he calls them, Clark hopes to produce boom days again soon.

"I've got to think of something," he says, "that can't be machine-made. Something that the mass manufacturers can't grab up as soon as we've put it over."

What Today Means

"Capricorn."

If January 17 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:15 to 9:15 a. m., from 10:30 to 11:30 a. m. and from 2:30 to 4:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 7 to 8 a. m., from 5 to 6 p. m. and from 9 to 11 p. m.

If you were born on January 17, you are of a very placid and contented disposition. You are very easy to get along with, and make friends readily. You are regular in your habits, and anything that would tend to upset them is about the only thing that would cause you much concern. On this date you will find that you will have to do a considerable amount of hustling, so as to keep engagements. Try not to let this disturb you, for the day is going to be a very satisfactory one.

The child born on January 17 will prove an unusually good baby. As it grows older you will perhaps find it remarkably free from the usual ailments children are supposed to have. Children born on this date are blessed with very cheerful dispositions. They are very slow to get angry, but when they do they have highly explosive tempers, which, however, they control quickly. They are excellent students, and as a rule make splendid school records.

If you are a woman, and January 17 is your birthday, you are essentially of a very domestic type. Your happiness is in your home life. Marriage means more to you than anything else, and will bring you a great deal of joy. If you can be continually mothering some one, you are contented. It is not likely you will ever know the discontent of so many of your friends, as you can so readily adjust yourself to any change that comes into your life. Religion also plays an important part in your existence, and brings a great deal of comforting assurance.

The man born on January 17 usually marries early in life, and is an exceptionally good husband and father. If you were born on this date, you have nothing of the adventure in your make-up. Excitement has no appeal to your very practical and methodical disposition. You are thorough in all you do, and prefer making slow progress in your business career, rather than spectacular, believing as you do in the old saying: "Nature makes no leap." While you may never be rated as wealthy, you will have an abundance with which to meet your needs. You will succeed best by being very conservative in your investments.

People born on January 17 may be wise to let their friends persuade them to take an interest in social affairs, and various forms of innocent pleasure, as they are predisposed to get into a rut by staying at home. If you remember "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," you will accomplish more, and have greater happiness.

Successful people born on January 17:

Benjamin Franklin, statesman.

Thaddeus Fairbanks, inventor.

Cabel Cushing, jurist.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest.

The Timid Man.

He thought men finer than they were.
He thought himself but frail and weak.
Not once to him did it occur
Loudly to raise his voice to speak.

He viewed the world with timid eyes;
Half-frightened went upon his way.
And in the presence of the wise
Listened, but had no word to say.

They called him dull who watched him sit
In silence when disputes began.
He never hurt with biting wit
The feelings of his fellow man.

He never boasted; never sneered.
He never shouted: "Power is mine!"
At ticket windows he appeared
A patient waiter in the line.

Yet those who knew him loved him well,
And those who loved him found him true.
A timid man who could not tell

New Smart Sofas, Built to Small Scale, Are Adapted to Any Decorative Scheme

New York, Jan. 16.—It certainly is a far cry from that unyielding wooden plank set on four legs and backed by high, straight boards—to today's sink-down-into-luxury and decorative sofas. Yet that earliest form of sofa has something in common with its modern descendant. It was designed to fill the needs of the room it was in, a room rough-hewn, massive and draughty.

Rooms have changed. And because there are many more small rooms today—in apartments and smaller-family houses—than there were a few years ago, the sofa on a small scale has become a much more important fashion.

In Large Rooms, Too.

Even in larger rooms it often happens that the wall space which a large sofa requires does not exist. It is cut up by the windows and doors. And then the small sofa can be resorted to.

Or in a large room there may be a spot whence there's a lovely view . . . or a friendly pair of sofas is wanted beside the fireplace. And then the small size sofa is the right answer.

We have had sketched only two of the many. The upper sketch is of Chippendale type with shaped back and down cushions. The lower one is the flat-arm London club type.

Both belong to that large group of lounge sofas which are built first of all for comfort. Others in this group are the small Lawson, just right for two persons; the all-over upholstered English type, not deep to the floor; and the all-over upholstered French Provincial, usually with maple frame.

Finer Designs.

A second important group of small sofas includes those of finer, more delicate design. English Eighteenth Century, French, Venetian, Directoire, Monterey, Early American . . . these are the names of the represented periods.

Backs and arms of these sofas are often of open wood construction with the seat upholstered flat. Sometimes, too, the seats are of cane, rush or flat wood, padded or upholstered.

There are other ways, too, explained in our new leaflet which we'll be glad to send you; if you're up against this problem, send us the coupon and requested inclosures if you'd like it.

(Copyright, 1934.)

Tomorrow: Maternity dresses use up-to-date fashion details.

Harmony of Food Colors Adds Artful Touch to Dinner.

Like the painting of a picture, the planning of a guest supper is an art. Using your daintiest linen as a canvas, your best silver and glass as highlights, adding the delicate or brilliant colors of the foods served, your dinner table can charm the eye and the appetite at the same time.

Brilliance of color goes with hilarity of occasion. Pastel shades go with soft candle light and polished conversation. And when it comes to drawing the curtain back on your dinner table picture, you must know that the setting is appropriate.

Some hostesses plan suppers or luncheons all in one color, yellow, or green, and others plan them in two. Here are a number of menus planned around a color or combination of colors, so you can make your choice, according to your set of china and glassware.

Yellow Dinner.

Grapefruit Cocktail
Scalloped Oysters
Potatoes au Gratin
Diced Buttered Carrots
Lettuce Hearts with Thousand Island Dressing
Parker House Rolls Quince Jelly
Lemon Ice
Assorted Wafers Mints
Coffee

There should be tall yellow candles in brass candlesticks, and a brass bowl filled with yellow flowers in season.

Pineapple Mint Cocktail
Creamed Sweetbreads with Green Peppers
Parsley Potatoes New Peas
Cucumber Salad
Tiny Baking Powder Biscuits
Watermelon Pickles
Pistachio Ice Cream
Assorted Cakes. Lime Drops
Coffee

Red Dinner.

Watermelon Balls
Creamed Salmon Buttered Beets
Red Cabbage Salad
Hot Rolls Apple Jelly
Cherry Pie
Coffee

Roses nodding brightly in the center of the table, lit with brilliant red candles add an air of gayety to the dinner. During the winter season a charming winter garden of red partridge berries is a lasting and attractive table decoration.

If you are feeling frisky you can combine the items mentioned in these three menus, into charming dinners of yellow and green, red and yellow, red and green and the like. These two menus might suggest any number of attractive combinations of dishes that are not mentioned.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Overcoming obesity is of interest from the health standpoint in addition to its relation to pulchritude. Fat people die before their time. They are especially prone to develop such diseases as diabetes, arteriosclerosis, and certain forms of organic heart disease. The degenerative diseases, markedly on the increase, are now the great problems of preventive medicine. Obesity contributes to the seriousness of each member of the degenerative disease group.

An obese person wears himself out carrying himself around, and this is registered by an unnatural speeding up of the processes of degeneration. However, this is far from being the only way in which obesity contributes to disease and to premature death. Many are obese because of disease in some of their organs, such as the pituitary, the thyroid, and the gonads; and the effects of disorder in these organs may not be limited to overweight.

And, finally, reducing should be in the hands of physicians and dietitians with some experience in that line of work. Home-made reducing is apt to be short lived, unsystematic, and ineffective; to be a matter of impulse rather than one of new habits made permanent.

Physicians make us of prescribed exercise and work as well as regulation of eating. And, in many cases, no other measures are required. Reduction in this way can be done painlessly, as a certain prominent lawyer told me the other day.

For several years this gentleman has been very much overweight. He was fat and heavy enough to be both uncomfortable and in something of a hazardous position. His daughter studied medicine. She took her father in hand as her first patient. He has dropped 50 pounds and his girth is less by inches. His color is good, his flesh is firm and he is no longer short winded. And all this has been accomplished through dieting and without hunger or discomfort.

In proper cases physicians also use extracts of thyroid and pituitary. The latest addition to their chest of tools used against obesity is a drug known as dinitrophenol. During the World War it was noted that certain munitions workers lost a great deal of weight. Investigation showed this to have been due to handling dinitrophenol in the course of their work. Out of this observation grew the use of this drug internally as an agent for reducing.

Congresswoman McCarthy Says a Word—About Cupid

The Little Fellow Got Badly Mixed Up in Politics During Her Campaign; He Saw to it that She Got a Husband Along With a Big Job.

By Frances Mangum.

Representative Kathryn O'Loughlin McCarthy, of Kansas, whose own romance began during her campaign in 1932 snatched a few minutes from her crowded schedule yesterday to talk about her political career—and other things.

Three secretaries typed busily in the outer office. Visitors lined the waiting room. Letters were piled high on the representative's desk, but she faced the rush of business with the same equanimity which has always marked her political maneuvers.

She laughed heartily as she recalled some of the stories people told of her marriage to Mr. D. M. McCarthy.

"I don't know why it is so many people have the idea Mr. McCarthy ran against me in the last campaign and that I married him after that. As a matter of fact he didn't run for Congress at all. He ran for State legislature and won.

Not a Chance, He Said.

"During my campaign, though, he was supporting my opponent. I remember very well his coming to me one day and telling me it was perfectly ridiculous for me to run for Congress on a Democratic ticket in a Republican State. He told me he didn't believe I had a chance to win.

"He told me he was supporting my opponent, too. Wasn't that nerve? I didn't care a lot at the time, though, except that I respected his influence and was sorry not to have him on my side.

"As time went on and I had to drive all over the State to make speeches, he would often have to visit the same town I did and then he'd always suggest that I send my driver on to put up the loud speaker, and he'd take me.

Enter Cupid.

"We talked and lived so much politics it's a wonder romance ever had the nerve to crash the gate. But it did. So we were married after the election and that's all there is to it.

Mrs. McCarthy was dressed in a black ribbed silk dress which accentuated her short dark hair and expressive black eyes. As she sat at her desk idly fingering an agricultural pamphlet, she laughed merrily at the conclusion of her story.

"A great many people have asked me if I though marriage interfered with a woman's career. To be perfectly frank, I think that often it does. I'm almost certain that if I'd been married before I ran for Congress I wouldn't have had a chance.

"A large part of the population of Kansas consists of German farmers who are terribly opposed to women in public life. In fact the slogan of my county in regard to women invading politics is 'Kinder und cookin'—meaning 'children and cooking.'"

She's a Farmer.

"When I first started campaigning in this locality things looked pretty bad for me. But I soon discovered that when I proved to the people that I knew what I was talking about, and was better informed than the average man, they gradually dropped their prejudices.

"You see, I really do know farming. I was brought up on a farm. I'm used to feeding the pigs and chickens, and milking the cows. My father sold farm machinery so I kept up on the improvements along this line, too.

"The thing I always liked best was making speeches. I remember my father was in the State Legislature and I used to go and listen in. Sometimes I could hardly sit still at the debates. I wanted to get in there and argue too.

"I never committed a speech to memory in my life. I remember the first speech I made in Congress. I'll admit I was a little scared because I wanted it to be rather flowery for the records.

"It so happened though that the Congressman sitting next to me spoke on the farmer's viewpoint in regard to the wheat allotment. I had called farm representatives together in my State and found out just what they wanted. This Congressman said things I knew were misrepresentations of the farmers' opinions. I got so hot under the collar that I did something unprecedented for a new member. I asked then and there to speak in opposition. And did I speak! I forgot all about it being my first speech, or flowery, or anything! I just talked!"

500 Physicians Meet to Indorse Birth Control

They Insist the Dissemination of Information Should Be in Medical Hands.

Five hundred physicians met in closed session at the Mayflower Hotel yesterday afternoon and adopted a resolution endorsing proposed Federal legislation for birth control and urging the American Medical Association to support the measure.

This is believed the greatest single demonstration ever made by the medical profession of this country in support of Margaret Sanger's cause. It is the first time the medical aspects of the question have been given a leading part in the deliberations of a birth control conference.

Against Quackery.

In adopting the resolution, doctors declared a necessity for placing the dissemination of birth control information "under the direction of scientific physicians," and taking it out of the hands of "quacks and charlatans," in cases where well recognized medical indications or economic conditions make child birth a menace.

"The entire problem of birth control is in essence a medical problem," Dr. George Lyford told delegates to the Tuesday morning meeting of the American Conference on Birth Control and National Recovery. Dr. Lyford is with the medical school of the University of Cincinnati.

"It should be as easy for a woman to consult her doctor on this subject as about rheumatism," declared Dr. A. Lovett DeWees, chief of staff of the Philadelphia Maternal Health Center.

"There is nothing more obscene about it than about preventing rickets," he said, taking issue with the 1873 statute under which dissemination of information about birth control was prohibited as obscenity.

System of Taboo.

Dr. Howard M. Parshley, professor of zoology at Smith College, traced the growth of a "biological attitude of mind" on the subject.

"The moralistic attitude is essentially traditional, relying upon rules and commandments," he said. "It descends for the most part from the ancestral system of taboo; it, therefore, shares in the defects of that system, and retains the ancient tendency to depend upon ignorance, superstition and fear as prime elements in enforcement.

"The biological view leads, in my opinion, toward a rational, safe and dignified ethics worthy of a free and responsible people."

Immunization by vaccination was predicted by Dr. Morris S. Baskin, Denver gynecologist, as "the most simple, safe and effective method for future birth control."

The conference, which comes to a close with a dinner at the Mayflower Hotel Wednesday evening—when Amelia Earhart Putnam will be among the speakers—was called by Mrs. Sanger preliminary to hearings which start Thursday on the Pierce bill to repeal the birth control section of a 60-year-old Federal law.

College Editor Named.

His Mother Alone Regrets Bernie's Not an Engineer

But Countesses, Actresses, Society Matrons and Debutantes Agree He Did the Right Thing in Becoming a Designer.

The gown is the thing—even if there's no one to wear it but a wax lady. For even a mannequin in a store window has a right to feel dissatisfied if she's obliged to appear in public in anything less than a becoming frock.

By Virginia Lee Warren.

A handsome young man and a rather awkward boy were busily engaged in putting a black velvet evening gown on a slim, supercilious looking woman. The woman was a wax mannequin. The handsome young man was Bernard Newman, window dresser for an ultra-smart New York shop. The boy was his assistant.

"This is lousy. Simply lousy," said Mr. Newman as he tugged at the neckline of the gown. "The lines are all wrong. Look at this belt. It ought to be at least two inches higher."

The boy made no reply. He was occupied in drawing the black velvet tight across the wax figure's ribs so that he could fasten the dress. His silence seemed to encourage Mr. Newman to grow more vehement in his criticism. While he was in the midst of his tart comments a voice behind him said, "So, you don't think much of that gown?"

Under the Boss' Eye.

Bernard Newman turned round and faced the owner of the shop. The boss eyed young Newman coldly and said, "Since you've found so much fault with this model, suppose you design me a better one."

"Yes, sir," gulped the window dresser. He had been working at the shop for several months and in that time he had hoped to get a chance at designing.

Bernard Newman's first design was successful enough to warrant the boss' giving him a second chance. His second design was the famous "tab" dress, a tailored crepe frock with saucy tabs on it. It was a sensation. The shop sold 300 copies of this model the first season.

Tab Success.

The "tab" dress flashed across the fashion horizon ten years ago. Ever since that time Bernard Newman has remained with the same exclusive shop, creating distinctive and sumptuous costumes. He admits that he is completely influenced by French modes and materials, but says that he would rather design for the American women than any other in the world.

She usually has money, too, which is an important consideration when one wishes to wear Bernard Newman's creations. This dark-eyed restless young man has made clothes for Claudette Colbert, Helen Hayes, Mrs. Adrian Iselin 2d, Mrs. H. Vanderbilt, Elizabeth Du Pont and Barbara Hutton Mdivani.

If he has any ambition to have a shop of his own he keeps it to himself. As it is he does not need to spend any time with business administration, advertising, or the hundred other problems that crop up when one has one's own place. The Fifth avenue shop where he designs luxurious clothes looks after those necessary but troublesome details.

A Spender—and Lender.

Several people, including Bernard's mother, think it would be a good thing if the shop also looked after the young designer's personal finances. Mr. Newman is imbued with the quaint idea that money was meant to be spent, even given away. The girls in the shop have fallen right in with the idea. They borrow from him constantly.

Sometimes the requested loan is for a sick brother, a convalescent mother, or a similar family crisis. Just as often the adored "Bernie" is asked to advance money for a new hat or for a simply ducky evening gown. "Bernie" has never been known to refuse.

The Countess de Forceville describes this American couturier in these glowing terms: "He has an incredible heart of gold and the most impeccable taste. His instincts are infallible, his taste perfect." The countess says that so many American women have gone into the Parisian dressmaking houses wearing Newman clothes that, when the young designer made his first trip to Paris, he already had an enviable reputation in the haute couture.

Mother Couldn't See It.

He, himself, says that it was much easier to win over fashionable women to his designs than to convince his own mother that he really amounted to something. She didn't want her boy to grow up to be a dressmaker. She wanted him to be a doctor or an engineer.

But Bernard says it is only natural that his thoughts should have turned to clothes rather than to pills in assorted colors or of steel beams and iron bolts. After his father's death, which occurred when Bernard was a small boy, the mother supported her little son and his older sister by sewing. The sister was 10 years older than Bernard and took quite an interest in her mother's work. Bernard says he was brought up on a steady diet of clothes. He had dresses and suits for breakfast, dinner and supper.

The little family was living in New York at this time, having come from Missouri a few years before the father's death. Bernard attended Trinity School; later he went to a public school, and finally he managed to get into the Art Students League, attending high school at night. The league interested him greatly. The high school bored him enormously. The older he grew the more he was disinclined to study anything but art.

Just a Dreamer.

This worried his mother, but there didn't seem to be anything she could do about it. He obtained an amazing variety of small jobs and lost every one of them because he sat dreaming or drawing when he should have been doing other things.

Then there were several delightful months when, in his own words, he "led the life of a perfect bum." His frantic mother, who had heretofore said that she would rather see her son dead than have him become a dress designer (or words to that effect), changed her mind. She told Bernard to get a job at anything he liked. All that mattered was that he should work at something and that he should keep working.

Bernard went job hunting. Murray Mayer found a place for him as window dresser for a small but good shop. Young Newman was about 18 years old at that time. After a year or so he obtained a better post with the Fifth avenue shop where he is today. In the new job he did some sketching. Then came the unexpected opportunity to design clothes.

Sidewalk Sketcher.

In his early days as a designer he received most of his inspiration from costumes worn by well-dressed women. He would ride on the top of a bus and watch for a gown of unusual cut and compelling beauty. When he glimpsed one he would gallop down the steps of the bus and, in spite of the conductor's protests, would hop off the moving vehicle and go trotting after the admired gown. He learned to make rapid sketches while weaving his way through crowds on the sidewalk.

Sometimes, instead of riding the buses, he would stroll up the avenue and follow women whose clothes interested him. This little habit got him into trouble on at least one occasion. He was tagging at the heels of a woman as she walked along Fifty-first street. She was wearing a black satin dress of intricate cut with two silver foxes draped around her neck. It was the foxes that presented a difficulty.

Mr. Newman could not see through them to sketch the frock's top. He walked ahead of the woman, then at her side, then back of her, always trying to peer beneath those silver foxes around her neck. After this performance had been going on for several minutes the woman turned and said: "You stand perfectly still, young man. I am going to have you arrested."

But the young man did not stand still. He says that if a policeman had been on the scene he would have been arrested for speeding instead of for following a woman. And he still wonders what the top of the black satin dress was like.

Now he has developed his own creative ability to such an extent that he does not need to take walks or bus rides to get inspirations.

Spring Dinner Dresses Have Tailored Air

And Most of Them Are Meant to Be Worn With a Hat.

New York, Jan. 16 (AP).—Tailored dinner dresses may or may not be a result of the new vogue for restaurant dining that has come with repeal, but they are the newest in spring costumes.

Naturally, most of them call for a hat.

They are as severely tailored as street clothes, with high necks and long sleeves. Very formal fabrics, or some unexpected quirk such as a deep back decolletage, make them appropriate for night instead of day.

Printed satin is one of the favorite materials for this new and livable type of evening costume. Ordinary daytime printed crepe also is made up into some of the most paradoxically formal tailored clothes.

One restaurant dress of printed crepe is made with form-fitting simplicity from shoulder to ankle except for a startling, deep decolletage at the back. The sleeves are long and tight.

Another costume, a suit, is of heavy black crinkled crepe. The jacket has bright salmon-colored scarf and lining.

Even the schoolgirlish jumper has been made the basis of one of these costumes. It is completely severe, but its material is a most unschoolgirlish oyster-white broadcloth. The sophisticated jumper, which has a big bow at one side of the neck and long, tight sleeves, is of gold lame.

U. S. Women Get Beauty Title; Most Charming in Washington

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., Names Mrs. Roosevelt Among Three.

By Elizabeth Young.

An engaging young man sat astride a spindly chair in his Shoreham apartment yesterday evening and, with arms folded along its back, informed an electrified reporter that the world's two "beauty belts" are in the United States. Also, that three of the world's most altogether charming women live in Washington.

The two beauty belts lie, respectively, up and down the Mississippi River for a radius of 100 miles on either side; and in an S-curve which begins in West Virginia and swirls southward through North Carolina into Georgia.

The three altogether charming women are Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Mrs. Isabella Greenway and Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross.

Qualified Beauty Judge.

"Of course, the best dressed women of the world are the Parisians and the Viennese, and, to some extent, the New Yorkers. The movie set in Hollywood may be included, too. They've had to learn to dress," said Mr. Vanderbilt, who may be accepted as a connoisseur of and authority on feminine beauty.

It was this scion of one of America's most illustrious families who some years ago introduced into advertising the testimonials of internationally fashionable and beautiful women as to the worth of a certain well known make of cold cream. He innovated and helped to conduct, at a somewhat later date, a contest to determine the most beautiful girl of her type in 12 classifications of America's lovely women. This was in the interests of an ancient and honorable brand of soap.

Moreover, for eight years he was one of five judges who annually picked the winners of Galveston's International Beauty Pageant. And he knows the countries and the peoples of the world like most of us know our own backyards.

Clothes Make a Difference.

He has crossed the American continent 61 times by motor, and flown it 26 times. He has crossed the ocean 52 times, and he can tell you the best and most scenic route to anywhere, and what to look for when you get there.

But to get on with our story—

"I don't mean there aren't beautiful girls in other parts of the country. There are," Mr. Vanderbilt affirmed. "But in these two belts the percentage is nearly 100 per cent. I can't understand the myth about a thick-limbed, awkward Middlewestern peasant type of woman.

"But while they are the most beautiful women, they are not the best dressed. And clothes do make a lot of difference.

"All that one hears about the chic of the Viennese woman is true. She is most beautifully dressed, and she frequently has a beautiful face. But it fades quickly. It can be said for the American woman that the beauty she has, she keeps to perfection until her late thirties."

Fascination Doesn't Fade.

"Can a woman be really fascinating when the physical perfection of youth has vanished?" his interlocutor wanted to know.

"Oh, yes!" His face lighted up. "The quality of fascination is a matter of spiritual growth, I think. It is the continuing development of qualities within the woman herself. Where it exists, one senses great sweetness and strength of character.

"I have never known women whose charm surpassed that of Mrs. Roosevelt, or of Mrs. Greenway, of Arizona, or Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross. Mrs. Roosevelt is incomparable. Mrs. Greenway is one of the most fascinating women in the world, and Mrs. Ross has the composite charm of tremendous chic and great sweetness."

— and About Marriage.

It is a coincidence that each of the women mentioned is an active and important national figure in the present Administration, but the fact appeared not to occur to Mr. Vanderbilt. He seemed to be mentally reviewing them as radiant feminine personalities.

Although he has been twice married and twice divorced, this handsome 36-year-old aristocrat has implicit faith in the institution of marriage.

"I do believe in marriage," he said quietly. "It is the ideal state. If I didn't keep terribly busy, I'd be frightfully lonely. Yes, I suppose I may marry again some day—when I'm not so busy."

Riding and Hunt Club Show Scheduled Friday.

Friday evening the Riding and Hunt Club of Washington will entertain the club members and their guests and visitors at a horse show opening at 8 o'clock.

Among those who will exhibit their mounts will be Senator and Mrs. James Couzens, Col. and Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, Mr. and Mrs. George M. Oyster, Miss Mary Cotter, Mrs. William Hill and others from Washington, Baltimore and nearby Virginia.

Silver Lame Stunning Gown.

I Am Smugly Satisfied.

By Katherine Smith.

If I were not so timidly
Constructed, I might dare to use
The little scraps of information
Brought to me. If I should choose

To blast your proper world wide open—
Throw you, cringing, at my feet,
It would be sweet, but still, my knowing
Silence is to me more sweet.

Waterproof Flannel.

St. Moritz, Jan. 16 (AP).—Madame Yvonne Valle, the former wife of Maurice Chevalier, wears a ski suit of dark blue waterproof flannel which has full trousers and a severely tailored jacket. With it she wears mitts of the same waterproof flannel and various bright-colored knitted sweaters.

He Began His Career in a Window

But soon Bernard Newman went indoors and sat down to think out some newer and better models for the wax lady to wear. Now the most fashionable women in America come to him for new ideas about gowns—and he always has a lovely design for them.

Emma Redell Asks Music Center Here

America's Capital Should Set Example, She Says.

With a new deal for American art and artists, America might become the leading nation in the world of arts.

Such is the conviction of Emma Redell, famous Washington-born opera star. She declared it yesterday, in an after-luncheon address to members and guests of the Women's National Press Club. The luncheon had been arranged in her honor at the Willard Hotel.

"The destinies of America's musical development and growth lie in the hands of American women," she told her audience. "You have it within your grasp to render an invaluable service to our country by cooperating with such a movement.

"Where should we begin this new deal for American art and artists? Right here in Washington, in the Capital of the Nation. And when I say that, I am not influenced by the fact that this is my native city. It is our city. It is the city of every man, woman and child of the United States.

"Let us create here a musical center second to none. Let the millions of Americans who visit this city return home and feel proud not only because their National Capital has the best opera house in the world, the best concerts in the world, where the best ballet can be seen and enjoyed, but the inspiration should be so penetrating as to arouse in them a yearning to create genuine musical centers in their respective communities to which the people from the farms and small towns could come for spiritual treats."

Great Screen Lover Has No Luck With Love in Real Life

John Gilbert's "I Love You" Has Thrilled Millions; But It Doesn't Explain the Mystery of His Fourth Broken Romance.

Hollywood, Jan. 16 (AP).—His arms have encircled some of the world's loveliest women and his lips have whispered to them: "I love you."

But that was in motion pictures where the scrip assured a happy ending.

The scenario written by reality and starring John Gilbert has not followed the approved style of Hollywood films. Four times he has been married to young and beautiful women. Each time the union failed.

Ina Claire, a stage favorite and the actor's third wife, said Gilbert was "irritable and moody."

But his fourth wife, Miss Bruce, who with their 5-months' old daughter, Susan Ann, recently left their Beverly Hills home, said she wanted to go on record as "being the staunchest friend Jack ever had."

"I wouldn't attempt to analyze why Jack's marriages have failed," she said, "or even why we are separated at the present time. If there is anything wrong with him, it is because he is a victim of his own driving ambition. His work is his mistress."

Capt. Ingersoll Gets Command Of New Cruiser

Native of Washington to Assume Charge of S. S. San Francisco.

Commissioning of the U. S. S. San Francisco under command of Capt. Robert E. Ingersoll, a native of Washington, February 10, was announced yesterday by the Navy Department.

Capt. Ingersoll, born in Washington, June 20, 1883, was awarded the Navy Cross for distinguished service during the World War in organizing, developing and administering the Communications Office of the Navy Department. He was appointed to the Naval Academy from Indiana, in 1901, his home being in La Porte.

The U. S. S. San Francisco was the third 10,000-ton cruiser to be completed since the London Naval Treaty. She was built at the Mare Island Navy Yard and launched March 9, 1933.

Capt. Ingersoll was attached to the Office of Naval Intelligence, Navy Department, from June, 1921, to March, 1924, when he was placed in command of the U. S. S. Nokomis, naval survey ship. He attended the Naval War College from July, 1926, to June, 1927, and served as a member of the college staff the following year.

From 1928 to 1929, Capt. Ingersoll served as assistant chief of staff to the commander of the battle fleet and then was transferred to duty as assistant to chief of staff of the commander in chief of the United States fleet. From May to August of 1930, he acted as chief of the commander in chief's staff.

From September, 1930, until October, 1933, he was on duty at the office of fleet training, Navy Department, and last November was placed in charge of the work of fitting out the San Francisco.

Shea Vice President Of Building Group

Baltimore, Jan. 16 (AP).—Norman R. Ellis, of Baltimore, today was named president of the Middle Atlantic Conference of Building Owners and Managers at its convention here.

James McD. Shea, of Washington, was elected vice president, and Thomas F. Eagan, jr., of Philadelphia, secretary and treasurer.

Literary Meets Planned For Moorefield Section

Moorefield, W. Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.), Upper Potomac Valley Literary Association, meeting here yesterday, made plans for the annual literary contest for high schools of this section.

Keyser, Elk Garden and Bayard High Schools will contest here March 16. On the same date, Romney, Moorefield and Capon Bridge will compete. Petersburg and Franklin will have a dual meet. The winners will meet a week later in the finals at Petersburg.

Charles Town Burial Set for J. W. Harper

Charles Town, W. Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.).—Funeral rites for Joseph William Harper, who died Friday at his home, 3900 Yuma street, Washington, were conducted today at Edge Hill Cemetery by the Rev. Goodwin Frazier and the Rev. W. D. Eye.

Surviving are his widow and four daughters: Mrs. Genevive Burrows, Misses Mary F., Helen R., Bessie Louise, and two sons, Henry H., and George W. Harper, of Washington.

"Manresa Day" Will Be Held On January 28

Annual Breakfast to Be Attended by More Than 1,000.

More than 1,000 members of the Manresa League of Laymen's Retreats are expected to attend the annual Manresa day breakfast, held in the Mayflower Hotel, Sunday, January 28.

The breakfast will follow a mass at 8 a. m., at St. Matthew's Catholic Church. Guest of honor will be the Most Rev. James Hugh Ryan, Bishop of Modra and Rector of Catholic University.

The Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archibishop of Baltimore, will preside at the mass and deliver the sermon, in which he is expected to outline the purposes of the retreat movement in the United States.

Most of those attending the mass will receive communion as a spiritual gift to Pope Pius XI.

The breakfast will be a reunion of all men who have made retreats at Manresa during the past year, it was announced yesterday.

Among the prominent guests will be Senators Pat McCarran, of Nevada, and David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts; the Rigt Rev. Mgr. Edward Buckey, pastor of St. Matthew's; United States Disrtict Attorney Leo Rover, the Rev. Ignatius Smith, of the Dominican House of Studies, Catholic University; George E. Herring, State deputy of the Knights of Columbus in the District; William Joseph Neale, president of the Washington Holy Name Society, and John Brennan, president of the Washington League of Laymen's Retreats.

Senator McCarran will be the principal speaker, while George O'Connor will be toastmaster.

Survey Official Suicide, Feared Loss of Post

Asheville, N. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—V. E. McDaniel, 60, of Shelby, district supervisor of the Federal business survey which began here yesterday, committed suicide in his hotel room early today, Coroner J. L. Carroll announced.

A note was found in which McDaniel said he had failed to obtain a notary's seal on papers authorizing the men under him to begin work, and that he believed this negligence would cost him his position.

New Moon Not Visible, Arabs Defer Protests

Jerusalem, Jan. 16 (AP).—Because the new moon was not seen last night to signal an end to the Moslem fast of Ramadan, Arab anti-Jewish demonstrations scheduled for today were postponed.

A recurrence of last autumn's disturbances had been feared with Arab plans to observe the scheduled end of the religious festival today, with demonstrations of protest against the government's Jewish immigration policy.

Chinese Forces Asked To Free 9 From Pirates

Shanghai, Jan. 16 (AP).—Owners of the steamer Pooan, looted by pirates who are holding nine passengers for ransom, appealed to the Nationalist Government today to send a gunboat to exterminate the pirates and rescue the captives.

Fifteen pirates posed as passengers, overcame ship's crew, and robbed the passengers as the Pooan neared Tsingtao Saturday.

French Oppose German Trade Quota Proposal

Paris, Jan. 16 (AP).—The French Government protested to Berlin today against "hitting of French goods" in the German plan to carry out quota cuts announced Saturday which would affect $10,000,000 worth of French goods.

The German move was believed the result of the French action in according preferential quotas to the United States and England.

U. S. Workers Renew Pay Fight Today

Compromise Forseen on Restoration of Part of Reduction.

With the weight of the President's influence against them, representatives of Government employes and organized labor will launch the drive for restoration of Government salaries and elimination of economy law restrictions before the Senate Appropriations subcommittee in charge of the independent offices bill at 10 a. m. today.

Luther C. Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employes, largest group of Federal workers, and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, are to be the first witnesses heard by the subcommittee.

Behind them will be the support of the Republican leaders in the Senate, as well as several prominent Democratic Senators, who are determined to make a strenuous fight on the floor if the committee upholds the President in his program to cut salaries and continue economy law restrictions in force for another year.

Fight to Be Close.

Only the power of the President will keep enough Democratic votes in line to defeat the advocates of pay restoration, leaders said.

Senator Charles L. McNary, of Oregon, Republican leader, said he would not be surprised if salaries were restored despite the Presidential recommendation. Senator James Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, also an advocate of restoration, believes the 10 per cent cut proposed by the President will prevail.

Republicans are preparing to ridicule the program on the ground that it is a pretty gesture to save a relatively small amount while billions are being spent in other directions. Senator Arthur Robinson (Republican), of Indiana, said the proposal is "cruel" and "without logic or genuine justification."

At the same time restoration advocates are anxious to avoid developing a situation in which the question will become a party issue. The Democratic majority is too overwhelming.

Senator Elmer Thomas, of Oklahoma, and Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts (Democrats), are working to win support for restoration of salaries.

Compromise Forseen.

Out of the battle may come a compromise. Senator Byrnes said a 7½ per cent reduction might be fixed. Senator Thomas said he might be willing to compromise on a maximum cut of 5 per cent.

Continuation of the salary cuts and restrictive economy law provisions has been condemned by both the National Federation of Federal Employes and the American Federation of Federal Employes. The latter is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Although opposed to fluctuating salaries as improper in principle and application, Mr. Steward will urge the committee, of which Senator Carter Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, is chairman, to carry the President's plan to a logical conclusion.

Unless the whole economic program of the Administration fails, prices of commodities and consequently living costs will rise rapidly and far between now and the end of the next fiscal year.

If it is proper to reduce Government salaries below 1928 levels because living costs drop it is equally proper to provide for increasing them beyond the statutory levels when living costs shoot above the level fixed as normal Mr. Steward contends.

Post-War Defense Nips Veteran's Suit

U. S. Wins Insurance Case in High D. C. Court.

Justice Joseph W. Cox, District Supreme Court, yesterday directed a verdict in favor of the Government in a suit over a $1,000 war insurance policy when the complainant, Leslie T. Godwin, who sued because of total deafness, was shown to have sustained his affliction after the war.

Through Assistant United States Attorney John W. Wood, the Government proved that Godwin, after the war, worked as a railroad fireman, and that he sustained his deafness in 1924 as the result of an accident.

Arlington Club Women Hear Garnett Tomorrow

Hawkins, Home Loan Bank Aid, Dies Suddenly

Believed Recovered From Illness, Heart Attack Proves Fatal.

Russell M. Hawkins, 58, a member of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, died yesterday at the Hay-Adams House. His death was due to a heart attack, which followed pneumonia.

Hawkins was appointed to the board for a four-year term last June. He had served actively from that time unfil his illness, from which it was thought he had recovered.

One of the two Republican members of the board, he was a retired lumberman from Tillamook Bay, Oreg. He was born in Philadelphia, and was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. H. D. Schmidt, of York, Pa., and a son, Russell Hawkins, jr., of Portland, Oreg.

For many years, Hawkins was an executive of the Diamond Match Co. He was a member of Psi Upsilon fraternity and a thirty-third degree Scottish Rite Mason.

In announcing the death, John H. Fahey, chairman of the board, stated: "Hawkins' death comes to us as a severe, personal shock at the very moment when we had been led to expect his complete recovery from an illness which had confined him to his home for several weeks. In spite of that illness, he had devoted himself heroically and without stint to the work of the board. He had insisted upon returning to his office as soon as he was physically able to do so, and before he had regained his health and strength.

"During the months of our association with him, Hawkins had given all of his energy and thought to the task. His spirit was that of patriotic, self-sacrificing and constructive effort, with never a trace of partisanship. He had earned the deep respect and affection of his fellow-members of the board."

Smith Co. Sues To Regain Tax

Says $100,000 Levy Paid by Former Head With Embezzled Funds.

Charging that G. Bryan Pitts had overpaid his income taxes, the F. H. Smith Co., which Pitts once headed, filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court to restrain the Board of Tax Appeals of the Treasury Department from proceeding to a determination of Pitts' taxes.

The suit is based on the claim that the money Pitts used to pay his taxes was embezzled from the Smith Co. and, therefore, title to it remains in the company. The amount involved is approximately $100,000.

Pitts is serving 14 years in prison. He was convicted on charges of embezzling over a million dollars from the Smith Co. The Government contends Pitts underpaid his income tax.

$21,950 Lot Buyers Sue to Regain Money

Alleging they had been induced to purchase 59 lots in Anne Arundel County, Md., on the promise the lots would be resold for them at a profit, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bruffy, 806 F street northeast, yesterday asked the District Supreme Court to cancel notes approximating $12,000 and order the return of $9,950 in cash.

The money and notes were given for the lots, it was claimed. Gibbs L. Baker, 815 Fifteenth street northwest, was named as defendant.

Sen. Reynolds to Speak At Lee Birthday Fete

Senator Robert R. Reynolds, of North Carolina, will be the principal speaker at the Robert E. Lee birthday celebration at 3:30 p. m. Friday, in Statuary Hall, at the Capitol.

The celebration is being arranged by the District of Columbia Division of the Daughters of the Confederacy, under Mrs. Eugene Barr, and the Children of the Confederacy, directed by Mrs. Cora Talley.

Library Board Meets Today.

Airport Parley Mired in Bog Of Suggestions

Commerce Department Is Urging Move; Vidal Testifies Today.

As Washington's chance of securing an improved airport through Public Works funds was dimmed yesterday by the statement of Administrator Ickes that the project was impossible through his department at this time, it developed at the hearing on the McSwain bill before the House Military Affairs Committee that the Department of Commerce is the moving spirit behind the agitation for a modern airport.

Maj. P. A. Hodgson, Assistant Engineer Commissioner of the District, testified the Commissioners are not interested for the time being because of lack of funds. Frederick A. Delano, chairman of the National Park and Planning Commission, stated his group adhered to its original opinion that Gravelly Point was an ideal site.

Eugene L. Vidal, director of the aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce, appeared too late to testify. The committee will resume hearings this morning with Vidal as the first witness.

The McSwain bill, which provides that the Government and the District each pay half of the cost of improving Washington airport, has not been considered by the District Commissioners, Maj. Hodgson said, because other projects requiring $20,000,000, have claimed their attention.

Representative Smith, of Arlington County, closed the session with the request that representatives of Arlington County be heard in support of the Gravelly Point measure. These witnesses will be heard tomorrow.

Trade Unit Elects Ernest L. Stewart

Northwest Business Men's Association Head.

Ernest L. Stewart has been elected president of the Northwest Business Men's Association, formerly the Eighteenth Street and Columbia Road Assocation, it was announced yesterday.

Other new officers include Stanley F. Holland, first vice president; Dr. N. M. Parks, second vice president, and Lionel Kaplin, secretary and treasurer.

At a meeting Monday night members were informed that a dangerous traffic situation at Euclid street and Columbia road was being studied by a committee, which will recommend corrective measures to Traffice Director William A. Van Duzer.

Bank Sues J. Reed Lane To Recover $50,000

J. Reed Lane, described as being attached to the Department of Commerce, was sued in District Supreme Court yesterday for alleged failure to pay a $50,000 promissory note.

Suit was instituted by Hambleton & Co., a Baltimore banking house, which declared it had made a loan to Mr. Lane June 18, 1931.

Worker in CWA Ends Life With Gas

Leaves Note Blaming Ill Health for Suicide.

Frederick W. Mack, 47, of 622 Sixth street northwest, who came to Washington to look for work and found it, temporarily, at least, with the CWA, ended his own life yesterday by inhaling gas in the second-story bedroom that was his District home.

Robert Hope, a fellow roomer, smelled gas and discovered Mack's body.

A short note, almost illegibly scrawled by Mack in pencil, explained he had been in ill health. Emergency Hospital physicians said he had been dead 12 hours. He is believed to have relatives in Birmingham, Ala.

Peace Depends On Basic Cure, Says Stewart

Conference Against War Hears President Praised.

International economic rivalry is one of the principal obstacles to peace, in the opinion of speakers at the Ninth Conference on the Cause and Cure of War, which opened here yesterday. The conference was called by 11 National women's organizations and was headed by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, noted feminist leader.

Maxwell S. Stewart, economist of the Foreign Policy Association, who led a round-table discussion on "Some Basic Obstacles to Peace," criticized the prevailing disposition of the peace movement to concentrate exclusively upon means of settling disputes between nations without attempting to deal with the basic causes of international friction.

Must Reach Cause.

"Nations will not surrender the right of armed defense," he warned, "until they are assured of protection against injuries of other than military character. Wars are merely symptoms of more fundamental disorders, and it is useless to speak of peace until the primary disease has been cured."

President Roosevelt was commended for his policy of nonintervention in Cuba by Walter W. Van Kirk, secretary of the department of international justice and good will of the Federal Council of Churches.

"Had Roosevelt followed the example set by his predecessors, the Marines would be in Havana at this very hour," he said.

Van Kirk deplored the "tide of nationalism" which he blamed for the withdrawal of both Japan and Germany from the League of Nations and the threat of Italy to withdraw.

The speaker also expressed approval of Russian recognition.

Recognition Debunked.

"The Senate," he said, "has confirmed the appointment of Mr. Bullitt as Ambassador to Moscow, the Soviet Ambassador has been officially received, and the Stars and Stripes still flutter in the breeze.

"That we could recognize Russia without experiencing the calamities predicted by the 100 per cent patriots has, in itself, debunked many of the self-appointed guardians of the Nation's liberty, and this has been a victory for the cause of peace."

J. H. Carlton Hayes, professor of history at Columbia University, spoke at the evening meeting on "Planning for a New World Society."

The conference will continue through Friday evening. Mrs. Roosevelt will speak at a banquet tonight.

Pan-American Doctors Elect Nicaragua Envoy

Dr. Henri De Bayle, Charge d'affaires of Nicaragua, has been unanimously elected president of the District Chapter of the Pan-American Medical Association.

Surgeon General Robert W. Patterson, U. S. A., was chosen vice president, and Dr. A. A. Moll, of the Pan-American Sanitary Bureau, was elected secretary. The aims of the association are to strengthen and develop bonds uniting the medical profession in the Western Hemisphere.

Brightwood Bank Sues 4 on Notes

Unpaid Assessments and Notes Alleged.

Claude H. Woodward, receiver of the Bank of Brightwood, yesterday sued three persons and a firm for alleged nonpayment of promissory notes or stock assessments.

Paul B. Cramer, 5949 Georgia avenue, and Joseph Nicholson, 627 Farragut street northwest, were named jointly in a suit for $3,000 on a note dated June 13, 1932, alleged overdue. Nicholson was also sued for a $1,500 stock assessment and $5,300 notes in another suit.

Standard Accessories, Inc., 627 Farragut street northwest, was sued for $5,494.05 and Grace E. Nicholson, also of the Farragut street address, was sued for $5,085.73, part of which was based on a stock assessment.

RFC Purchase Of New Bank's Stock Advances

Progress Reported on Sale of Mechanics-Franklin-Capital Shares.

Arrangements were reported progressing yesterday whereby the Reconstruction Finance Corporation will purchase $250,000 worth of capital notes on the proposed Mechanics-Franklin Savings Bank, which will result from a merger of the restricted Mount Vernon Savings and Franklin National Banks with the unrestricted Washington Mechanics Savings Bank.

The prosepective bank will issue these notes and the RFC will buy them. This investment is entirely apart from an $800,000 loan by the RFC on certain assets of the Franklin National Bank. The loan will make available $2,000,000 to depositors of the Franklin National Bank when the new bank opens.

The $250,000 received by the corporation's purchase of the new bank's capital notes will constitute part of the latter's capital structure of $600,000, the remainder being $225,000 capital and $125,000 surplus. This will be obtained partly by sale of stock.

Treasury Department approval of the Franklin National Bank's form of agreement to the merger, which will be distributed to depositors, was again delayed yesterday. When this is obtained circularization of depositors will begin, with sale of $100,000 in stock, which will be the Franklin Bank's contribution to the new bank's structure.

Grocery Store Looted.

Thieves early yesterday looted a Sanitary Grocery store at 513 Sixth street northeast of groceries and cigarettes totaling approximately $100 in value. Walter J. Bosse, manager, said entrance was gained by forcing a rear window.

L. C. Garnett Is Confirmed D. C. Attorney

Bentley Appointment Set for Hearing After Objections.

Confirmation of the appointment of Leslie C. Garnett, Washington, as United States attorney for the District was given by the Senate yesterday.

Mr. Garnett will succeed Leo A. Rover and is expected to take the oath of office this week. No objections to his appointment was made.

Protests against the appointmnet of Miss Fay L. Bentley to be Juvenile Court judge for the District have been lodged with Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, chairman of the judiciary subcommittee to which that nomination has been referred for report.

Hearings will be held on the Bentley nomination some time next week, Senator King said yesterday. He refused to express any opinion.

Department of Justice officers in Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia also were confirmed by the Senate. Confirmations included:

Policeman Suthard Cleared in Killing

Burglar Slain in Line of Duty, Jury Finds.

A coroner's jury yesterday exonerated Policeman W. M. Suthard in the fatal shooting of a colored housebreaker, November 30.

The jury held that Suthard, attached to the First Precinct, shot and killed his prisoner "in self defense and line of duty." The colored man was Robert Lewis, 26, of 466 G place northwest. Suthard found him in a house at 467 G place northwest.

Lewis was shot when he attacked the policeman with a club. He died Saturday.

D. C. Filipinos to Hear Talk by Osias Sunday

A mass meeting of Washington's Filipino community at 8:45 p. m. Sunday at the Y. M. C. A. will be addressed by Commissioner Camilo Osias of the Philippines, who will discuss the Hare-Hawes-Cutting act.

Newly elected officers of the Filipino Club are Pablo Mamaril, president; Manuel Argel, vice president; Mrs. F. Calabia, recording secretary; Isabelo Friligiana, corresponding secretary; Policarpo Rulloda, treasurer, and Ricardo Sabella, critic.

Woman Robbed in Holdup.

Sarah Simmons, colored, of 2308 Ontario road northwest, yesterday reported she was held up and robbed of $8 near Eighteenth street and Wyoming avenue northwest. She told police two armed white men took her pocketbook.

Lack of Fund Dashes Civic Center Hopes

Start of $30,000,000 Project Again Due for Delay.

Donovan Cites Saving Afforded Taxpayers by Wage Cuts.

Construction of the $30,000,000 Municipal Center, originally planned in the prosperous 1920's, is likely to be postponed indefinitely after another false start.

Convinced of the need of at least the first unit of the project, Melvin C. Hazen, chairman of the Board of Commissioners, recently announced his intention of seeking an appropriation of one or two million dollars in the 1935 District act to start the first building, which would cost $5,000,000. Commissioner George E. Allen indorsed the plan.

Yesterday Auditor Daniel J. Donovan threw cold water on the dreams of the new board by pointing out in a lengthy report that it might be difficult to obtain sufficient appropriations in 1936 and 1937 to carry on the construction.

Request Due This Weew.

While the Commissioners have not taken formal action to withdraw their instructions to Auditor Donovan to include $1,000,000 for the Municipal Center in supplemental estimates to be submitted to the Budget Bureau, it was indicated they would do so this week.

After pointing out that the 1935 District Budget, with an estimated surplus of $5,380,860, can easily afford the proposed addition of $2,168,000, including $1,000,000 for the Municipal Center, Auditor Donovan explained that if the latter project is authorized, it is proposed to ask $2,500,000 in 1936 and $1,500,000 in 1937.

"It might be well to emphasize a fact that will have a significant effect upon the preparation of estimated appropriation obligations for the fiscal years 1936 and 1937," Maj. Donovan wrote.

Wage Cut Builds Fund.

"I refer to savings accomplished through salary cuts of employes of the District Government. For the fiscal year 1933 these salary cuts totaled $2,500,000, for the fiscal year 1934, they amount to $3,625,000; and for the fiscal year 1935 (on the basis of the budget before Congress) they amount to $2,500,000. Therefore, for the three fiscal years 1933, 1934 and 1935 the salary cuts aggregate $8,625,000.

"In the fiscal year 1934 the commissioners lowered the tax rate from $1.70 to $1.50. The budget for 1935 is based upon continuing the $1.50 rate in that year. The savings to property owners in the two years is about $5,000,000.

"The revenue surplus at the close of the fiscal year 1935 (exclusive of liquor taxes and fees) is $3,880,000. Therefore, the savings of $5,000,000 to property owners through the lowering of the tax rate and the existence of a probable revenue surplus of nearly $4,000,000 at the end of the ensuing fiscal year are both due to the cuts made in salaries of employes."

The report concluded by pointing out that, assuming the salaries will be restored 100 per cent in 1936 and 1937, about $3,700,000 will be added to the District's expenses for salaries alone.

"This additional cost correspondingly reduces available funds for capital projects," he said.

Penn Rail Bridge Plan Is Approved

Span Will Replace One Wreck Demolished.

Plans for a new Pennsylvania Railroad bridge across the Anacostia River at the District line were approved by the War Department yesterday to replace the span through which the Southern Railroad's Crescent Limited crashed during a hurricane last spring, carrying an engineer and a fireman to their deaths.

Clearanc oen the new bridge will be greater than that of the old span, and plans have been approved by the Commission of Fine Arts, the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the District Commissioners, the War Department report stated.

Central Defeats Tech, 30-25, in Overtime Thriller to Lead Series

Boyd Team Loses Stars On Fouls After Gallant Uphill Fight Ties Game

| Team | Won | Lost | Pctg. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Central | 3 | 0 | 1.000 |
| Tech | 2 | 1 | .666 |
| Eastern | 1 | 1 | .500 |
| Roosevelt | 0 | 2 | .000 |
| Western | 0 | 2 | .000 |

CENTRAL rules the interhigh basket ball roost today, after trouncing a wily, hard-fighting Tech team yesterday in an extra period battle, 30-25, while Eastern came to life in the opener to annihilate Roosevelt, 53-27 Some 3,000, including Dr. Edward Ballou, superintendent of schools, saw the action.

The toughest and wildest, hair-raising high school thriller of several seasons was the clash of Tech and Central. Everything with the exception of a pole vault, a water jump and a 100-yard run for touchdown was displayed in the game, that ended at the regulation time, 24-all. But the 5-minute overtime play did the trick for Central, which ran up 6 points to clinch the argument

Billings Ties Score.

It remained for Josh Billings, Tech's brilliant center, to tie the score and the trio of Central dribblers, Nau, Bryant and Mandez to sew up the game with a rush of field goals. The extra period proved to be too much for the tired out and riddled line-up of the Techs. Billings and Reds Daly, center and guard, respectively, for the Technicians, were knocked out of the game via the personal foul route, and with these lads gone the team lost its lustre that shone so bright in the closing rush of regulation time.

Central went into the fourth period sporting a 28-15 advantage, but the Maroon and Gray turned on some late power, and with Daly and Billings leading the attack, which was anything but gentle, the score rested at 24-20 as Daly left the floor for the showers, a tough blow for the fighting Techs. Ben Mulitz, Tech guard, then sunk a field goal to bring the score to 24-22, and a moment later Billing's rafter scraping heave tied the count just before he followed Daly to the dressing room. Keyser had a chance to win the game on a foul shot, but it failed to pierce the basket and the gun fired ending 40 minutes of play.

Nau Breaks Deadlock.

After sparring about the floor in wild fashion in the extra inning, Buddy Nau, chief Tech thorn, dribbled down the center of the hardwoods and sunk a beauty for the score put Central ahead to stay. Bill Bryant followed with a side-court goal, and Mandez, a sub for Nau, who left the game by way of the personal penalty, cleaned up the tallying for the afternoon.

From the very start of the game, the lead see-sawed back and forth, but Central pulled away for the early lead when Mario Gregorio sunk the basket to break a 7-7 deadlock. The quarter ended in Central's favor, 10-9. The point bagging was evenly divided in the second stanza, but in the third period the Mount Pleasant quintet hung up 7 points to Tech's 2.

In the curtain raiser between Eastern and Roosevelt, a barrage of field goals into the Ruf Rider basket, which lasted steady for eight minutes of the first quarter, gave the Lincoln Park five a 17-0 lead. Then to prove that there was somebody on the Roosevelt team, Jimmy Cavanaugh, little red-haired Jimmy, started taking things into his own hands or rather the Eastern basket. He sank four shots in the second period. The half ended with Eastern leading, 26-11.

The second half was an exact duplicate of the first with the entire Eastern team flipping pot-shots at the Roosevelt basket—and making many of them. Cavanaugh ran his total to 17 points for the game.

District Racing Bill Is Being Prepared

Rep. Black to Introduce Measure to Legalize Pari-Mutuel Betting.

A BILL to legalize horse racing with pari-mutuel betting in the District will be introduced in Congress by Representative Loring M. Black, jr., of New York, some time in the near future, it was disclosed yesterday. Black said introduction of the bill would be made just as soon as a final draft, which would be started within a few days, had been drawn up.

Black denied that any attempt would be made to secure an appropriation for construction of a grand stand at the old Benning track, which was closed when racing became outlawed in the District.

The effort to legalize the sport of kings with legal betting here is to be made in an effort to stop the flow of Washington money being poured into nearby Maryland tracks and perhaps to be spent in Virginia if and when that State sanctions racing.

Representative Black expressed the opinion that both the bill to legalize horse racing and his bill to legalize professional boxing in the District, which was introduced at the special session, had good chances of passing.

Gallant Sir Draws Top Weight in Agua

Is Assigned 130 Pounds in $25,000 Race.

Auga Caliente, Mex., Jan. 16 (U.P.). Gallant Sir drew the top weight assignment of 130 pounds in schedules released today for the 1934 renewal of the $25,000 Agua Caliente Handicap.

The heavy impost assigned the 1933 winner of the rich race aroused speculation as to whether the Northway Stable would permit the horse to run at that weight. Several days ago the owner set the maximum weight they would accept at 128 pounds. Gallant Sir won last year's race in a walkaway.

The schedule showed Kerry Patch and the gigantic Craig Park, English horse, assigned 120-pound imposts. Gay World drew 118; Pari Mutuel, 116; Contraband, 115; Sweeping Light, 114; Boardwalker, 111, and Open Hearth, 109. There were 42 nominees for one of the richest purses in racing.

Wash. College Host To Western Maryland

Chestertown, Md., Jan. 16 (Spl.). Following a close win over Hopkins at Baltimore and a severe defeat at the hands of Mount St. Mary's at Emmitsburg last week, Washington College cagers will engage Western Maryland College dribblers here Saturday night in the first home game played in the Maryland Intercollegiate Basket Ball Association season. Local officials look for a hard-fought game, with chances favoring the Shoremen

Full of confidence following the Hopkins victory, Coach Tom Kibler's quintet was caught napping by the Mountaineers and it is believed it will fight hard to annex a second victory and without superfluous confidence that wrecked its game at Emmitsburg. The probable starting line-up is: Proudfoot and Ward, forwards; Skipp, center; Nicholson and Huey, guards.

St. Rita's Plan Club; Sextet Seeks Games

The newly organized St. Rita's parish girls basket ball team, of Alexandria, is seeking games with teams from Washington, Alexandria and vicinity. Managers of teams interested, and having a gymnasium, call Mildred Mess, acting manager, between 6 and 8 p. m. at Alexandria 9-F-13.

Such great interest has been aroused in basket ball that a St. Rita's Girls' Athletic Club will be organized, with the cage game and tennis the main sports to be developed. A meeting will be held Friday night at 7:30 in the church hall to elect officers and adopt by-laws.

Alexandrians Bow To Colonial Frosh

G.W. Cubs Jump Into Early Lead to Win, 31 to 20.

The freshmen jumped into an early lead and then inserted the entire squad, 13 players seeing action. They led, 14-8, at the half time, with the second period being fought on even terms. McGibbloney and Whitley accounted for over half the freshmen points while Bhilleatt was high scorer for the Virginians.

The Sweet Dove of Peace

By Paul Gallico.

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 16 (Spl.).—The echoes of Jake (Hassen) Pfeffer's whistle which he blew on the wrassling mob in New York recently are still piping faintly through the underground passages and wrestling catacombs of this city and that. Little Jake blew seven loud, long blasts on his whistle, like the seven priests before the walls of Jericho, and then stepped back and waited for something to fall. The reason that nothing happened is that Jake picked a very, very bad time to blow his whistle.

The first tweetle came just about the time that all the wrassling trusts for the first time in history got together, decided to merge interests, quit battling and crossing and double-crossing one another, and put all the dough in one pot and share. Of course, gentlemen soaked for years in the habit of crossing one another will not be able to give it up over night and I imagine that each group will appoint some guy to watch that pot pretty closely and then a couple of other guys to watch the guys who are watching it. But at least, the combines have agreed to try to agree and just at that moment Jake does the Joshua. Ha, is that a laugh!

They kissed and made up in New York, Chicago, Boston, St. Louis, the Packs and Curleys and Mondts and Ed Whites, the Lewises and Foleys and all the gentlemen who control the manbenders. The first boon that this love feast will confer upon mankind will drop upon Chicago when Londos and Savoldi meet in their return match. You remember that famous Londos-Savoldi match in Chicago when Jumping Joe tripped over his own feet, accidentally knocked Londos down and suddenly felt the referee patting him on the shoulder.

Savoldi picked himself up and said to the referee who was named Max Managoff, "Excuse me, but did you wish to speak to me? I am very busy, so make it brief."

To which Mr. Managoff replied, "Yes! You win. You have just thrown the champion with a terrific hold that I do not know the name of yet, but if you will excuse me I will retire to my office and think one up." This he did while the Londos mob wept and screamed and moaned that they had been bilked, which indeed I suspect they had.

Through the kindness of colleague McCarthy, of the Chicago Daily Times, I am apprised of the true tale of that amusing accident, since actually I do not believe that Savoldi can wrestle his way out of a daisy chain, at least not in the company in which he has been traveling since he turned professional. Everybody knew there was some kind of an X in there, but just how, and what, and why?

It seems at that time rassling in Chicago was conducted by a party named Doc Krone. The Doc put on Londos and Stecher in his own shop and the boys built up a swell return by rassling a sensational draw. The return match looked too good for a small joint so the Doc puts it into the Chicago Stadium and gets himself frozen out in the process. They say the Doc went away mumbling into his beard and that was that. A short time later Savoldi is put in with Londos to work up a mild sweat for the benefit of the customers, and I assume had the customary understanding with the Ed White regime that it was strictly an exhibition, which is the way the bouts are billed and no harm done.

Then and there occurred the event I described earlier in this essay. Brother McCarthy, who viewed the body, tells me it was strictly a rolling fall, which same does not count in the Chicago league, three seconds being required for the fall as in New York. But the referee said, "You win," to Savoldi and that was that. But the next day Jumping Joe was seen arm in arm with Strangler Lewis, of the opposition, or Krone group, and loud, raucous laughter was heard issuing from the transom of the Doc's office. Of course, Savoldi would meet Londos again because in a shooting match Jimmy could break him in two.

Recently the managers of the two met in the Chicago commission offices and pretended to let the commission coax them into a return bout with great reluctance. The two groups have been in sweet accord for months.

The same sweet harmony exists in my town, in your town, in everybody's town. Just what good this will do you, I can not say at the present moment. It looks to me that with the rasslers in accord a good deal of the sport goes out of the game. The only true competition that existed was between the promoters. If they quit crossing and cheating one another I do not know what we are going to do for pleasure.

Maryland Cubs Rout Western High, 39-16

Waters and Guckeyson Star in Freshmen's Victory; Score at Half, 19-9.

UNIVERSITY of Maryland freshmen basketers won nandily over Western High, 39 to 16, yesterday at College Park. It was the second victory for the Old Line yearlings over a District public high quintet in two days, Roosevelt having been downed yesterday, 47 to 17.

Maryland took an early lead and was never headed. Western was trailing at half-time, 9 to 19.

Thistle Ann Captures Feature at Jefferson

New Orleans, Jan. 16 (AP).—Thistle Ann, George Collins' 7-year-old mare, which usually wins when least expected, today stepped away from 11 other platers in the six-furlong feature at Jefferson Park. The daughter of Sir John Johnson, once a handicap performer, took command in the stretch and pulled away to cross the line three lengths in front of C. E. Davison's Hot Shot in the good time of 1:13. A. J. Simon's Last Stand was third.

Last Strand, ridden by the veteran, Earl Pool, was the first away from the barrier and for three-quarters of the distance was out in front. Foreign Play forced the pace the first half-mile, then Jockey Lowry shot Thistle Ann into a contending position. Once Lowry got the Collins representative in the van, there was little to the race.

Although second and third the last two times out, Thistle Ann paid the good odds of $10.20 for $2.

Frederick High Cops.

Frederick, Md., Jan. 16 (Spl.). Frederick High School defeated Mount St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, preps, on the high school court, 30 to 15. The collegians scored first early in the initial period, but the locals came back fast and led by a margin of 10 points at half time. With the game in hand, Frederick used its second-string line-up in the last quarter.

Richmond U. Denies Coaching Bid to Dodd

Richmond, Va., Jan. 16 (AP).—A spokesman for the University of Richmond Athletic Council said today that "there's nothing to the report" that Bobby Dodd, from Tennessee, football star and back field coach now at Georgia Tech, had been offered the head coaching job at Richmond.

He said that Paul Purdue, a University of Richmond alumnus, had talked with Dodd but that "it was all a mistake to say that Dodd was offered the job."

Meanwhile, it became definitely known that Albie Booth, former Yale hero, was interested in the coaching job at Richmond. He has not made a formal application, however.

Medal Round Elimination Likely

U. S. G. A. Plan May Be Followed in District Women's Title Play.

Match Tourney Will Be Considered at Meeting This Month.

TAKING a cue from the newly adopted plan of the U. S. G. A., the District Women's Golf Association may decide to eliminate the 18-hole medal round and experiment with a full week of match play during the 1934 District championship.

The plan to have the tournament run off on a strictly match play basis will be discussed at this month's meeting of the executive committee, Miss Elizabeth C. Harris, association president, stated last night.

"Although I haven't given the plan much thought, it sounds pretty good," Miss Harris said, "and I'm sure the committee will be glad to consider it at our meeting."

In the past, the District championships have been run off in flights following the 18-hole qualifying round. Several women golfers already have indicated that they are in favor of the all-match play method.

Columbia Site Hinted.

Columbia Country Club has been hinted as the scene for the District, which was staged last year at Kenwood, and won by Mrs. J. Marvin Hayes. Woodmont, which did not get a single tournament last season, is due one this year and may be awarded the Star Cup. The Post Cup event, a match play with handicap tournament, inaugurated last season at Columbia, may be staged at Chevy Chase, home course of the winner, Miss Elizabeth C. Houghton.

It is reported that Mrs. J. W. Beller, of Columbia, and Mrs. Howard Simons, of Manor, are in line for the chairmanship of the tournament committee, a post from which Mrs. Douglas Tschiffely resigned.

Al Houghton let it be known yesterday that he and Roland Mackenzie, new Congressional pro, plan to play quite a number of exhibition matches together this spring and summer. Houghton said Roland liked the idea.

Having arrived in Boco Raton, Fla., Sandy Armour already has started an intensive golf campaign, a letter from him indicates. Armour said he planned to return here by April 1.

Match Being Planned.

Sam Miller, custodian of the locker room at East Potomac Park golf course, is negotiating for a match involving Al Farr and Ed Burns, of East Potomac, and B. Harry Graham and Nick Altrock, of Rock Creek. Eighteen holes at each course will be played, Miller announced.

Kenwood's golf committee expects to meet soon and discuss plans for the staging of the National Capital Open this spring. The committee believes the contemplated shift from the fall to spring will not only boost attendance, but interest.

A minstrel for the benefit of the women's locker room at Manor will be staged by the women golfers at the Manor Club on Thursday, January 25, Mrs. David McPherson announced yesterday. Among the men and women golfers participating in the minstrel are Mrs. Howard Simons, Mrs. H. L. Simcoe, Mrs. John Buckley, Mrs. Frank Henlan, Mrs. J. V. Brownell, Mrs. McPherson, Harry B. Pitt, Harold Beck, Jack Daley and George Myers.

St. John's Five Beats Washington-Lee, 36-25

St. John's basket ball quintet trounced Washington-Lee on the St. John's floor yesterday, 36-25.

Starting off with a flock of baskets in the first half the Johnnies held a 17-6 margin. After the intermission the Little Generals started a belated rally that netted 19 points, wih Cooper, star right forward outstanding. The local prep five's use of frequent substitutions held down the count against the Ballston team.

Shakespeare Urged To Study His English

Not William Shakespeare of Stratford-on-Avon, but William Shakespeare of Notre Dame. William is a promising half back, a good student in other studies, but not so hot in his English course. With mid-semester examinations coming the end of this month, Elmer Layden, Notre Dame's new athletic director and football coach, today urged William to bear down on the English so he won't become ineligible.

Terry Standing Pat on Giant Roster

World Series Champions Intact for 1934; See Davis as Star.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (U.P.).—Although many critics have prophesied that the New York Giants would have to increase their strength if they are to repeat in the National League, Manager Memphis Bill Terry doesn't agree. The Giant roster, issued today, contains virtually the same names as graced the list when the world series title was won last fall.

It is known that Terry is pinning many of his hopes on Gorge (Kiddo) Davis, one time New York University star. Terry believes Davis will hit this year as he did for the Phillies. George slumped in 1933, but showed distinct signs of coming to life during the world series when he made seven hits in 19 turns at bat.

Parmelee Holds Hope.

Another spot in which Terry looks for improvement is the one filled by Roy (Tarzan) Parmelee, right-handed pitcher. John McGraw, former boss of the Giants, had great faith in Roy, and only a day or so ago predicted that Parmelee was about ripe to burn up the National League.

It's admitted that no pitcher in the league has more speed, strength or stuff than the bull-chested Parmelee. He lacks control, yet he won 15 games last year.

Terry still has the currently greatest pitcher in the majors, Carl Hubbell, and will expect the series hero to turn in some 25 games. Then there's Hal Schumacher, who will be banked on for some 20 wins, and if Parmelee comes through as expected the Giants would only need some 30 wins from the remainder of the staff.

Catchers Intact.

John Salverson, recalled from Dallas late in 1933, is on the roster, along with Bill Shores, brought back from Kansas City. The catching staff is intact with Mancuso, Healey, Danning and Richards listed.

The world series infield of Terry, Critz, Ryan and Jackson also is intact. The infield department, however, includes Fresco Thompson who led the International League in base stealing last year. He was drafted by the Giants from Buffalo. Another listed is George Grantham, veteran utility player, obtained from the Cincinnati Reds on a trade for Glenn Spencer, right-handed pitcher. Spencer later was sent to St. Louis in a trade which brought Bob O'Farrell to the Reds as manager of that club.

O'Doul and Ott, who with Davis made up the world series championship outfield triumverate, are named in the outfield section. A newcomer is Phil Weintraub, purchased from Birmingham, and Hank Leiber, recalled from Memphis.

Woods Gains 3d Place In 3-Cushion Tourney

Philadelphia, Jan. 16 (U.P.).—Arthur Woods, of New York, today took sole command of third place in the National three-cushion billiards tournament by beating Charles McCourt, of Cleveland, 5 to 36, in 69 innings. McCourt had been tied with Woods for the third position.

In another afternoon match, Kinrey Matsuyama, veteran Japanese ace from New York, rose to fourth place by defeating Marc Catton, of Oakland, Calif., Pacific Coast champion, 50 to 39, in 55 innings.

King's Horses Win Ten.

London (AP).—His Majesty King George enjoyed one of the best years he has ever known as an owner on the English turf last year, winning 10 races. His most successful horse was Limelight, which won three important stakes—the Harwicks Stake at Ascot, the Newbury Spring Cup and the Duke of York Handicap at Kempton Park.

Ruth Salary Cut to Aid Magnates

At Least 8 Clubs Plan Further Reductions for 1934 Season.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (AP).—The nicely calculated maneuver of the New York Yankees in signing Babe Ruth early and at a greatly reduced salary paves the way for major league club owners to effect further retrenchment in their 1934 pay rolls.

Whether or not this psychological angle was considered by Col. Ruppert, the Yankee owner, it is a fact he has taken a load off the minds of his associates by the example of reducing Ruth's pay to the extent of $17,000. In previous years the magnates' difficulties with other star performers have never been made easier by the circumstance of the Babe's repeated and prolonged arguments in the realm of high finance.

A survey by the Associated Press today disclosed that at least eight of the 16 American and National League clubs plan a general or partial reduction of player salaries for the third stright year. The trend has been generally downward since 1931. It is estimated on the whole that the big league pay rolls have been trimmed 25 per cent in the past two years. Economy, in short, is still the watchword.

Clubs Are Retrenching.

The clubs whose salary lists, in the aggregate, definitely will be reduced are the Yankees, Athletics, Indians and Browns in the American League; Cardinals, Phillies, Dodgers and Reds in the National. In some instances the decrease will be automatic, as in the case of the sale of star players by the Phillies and athletics. The Cardinals have specified "general cuts down the line.

Probably the most substantial pay roll increases, for obvious reasons, will be shown by the pennant-winning Giants and Senators, as well as the augmented Boston Red Sox. The Boston Braves will retain their 1933 salary level for the most part, with a few increases to outstanding players. The Cubs, Pirates, Tigers and White Sox are inclined toward a similar policy.

Although contracts have yet to be mailed by most of the big league clubs, the majority of top-salaried players either have come to terms or signed contracts. In addition to Ruth, such erstwhile holdouts as Dizzy Dean, of the Cardinals; Manager Bill Terry, of the Giants, and Al Simmons, of the White Sox, are already under contract for one or more years.

The top-salaried brackets, it now appears, will include no more than nine players in the $20,000 class for the 1934 season. In this expensive group are four player-managers. Here are the leading figures, based on fact as well as some semiofficial guesswork and speculation:

| | |
|---|---|
| Babe Ruth, Yankees | $35,000 |
| Bill Terry, Giants | 30,000 |
| Al Simmons, White Sox | 27,500 |
| *Lou Gehrig, Yankees | 23,000 |
| Chuck Klein, Cubs | 22,000 |
| Mickey Cochrane, Tigers | 20,000 |
| Joe Cronin, Senators | 20,000 |

Kendall Five Is Beaten By Bethesda, 30 to 24

Bethesda C. C. courtmen avenged an early season defeat yesterday when they defeated the Kendall School for the Deaf, 30-24, on the Leland court.

With Eddie Johnson and Connie Royer finding the baskets at will in the first few minutes of play, the Bethesdians ran up a 20-10 lead at half time and coasted to their fifth win in ten starts. The Kendallites put on a futile rally in the last quarter but were six points short at the final whistle.

Johnson, with 10 points, took scoring honors, followed by Royer, with 9, and Cimmaron and Ramsey, of the visitors, with 6 apiece.

Middletown Girls Win.

Middletown, Md., Jan. 16 (Spl.). Middletown High School girls took the measure of Boonsboro (Washington County) High School lassies on the home court, 23 to 15. The Valley girls took the lead early in the first half and the issue was not in doubt at any stage of the game. At half time Middletown led by a margin of 10 points. Miss Eccard, forward on the Middletown team, scored 20 points, 5 more than the Boonsboro team.

Chance Flight, Second to Riderless Horse, Wins Tropical Park Feature Race

Coucci Pilots Favorite to Victory

Dancing Mack Wins 4th After Adobe Post, at Odds-on, Fails.

TROPICAL PARK, Jan. 16 (AP).—A little filly named Postscript finished first in the featured Lake Wales Purse here this afternoon; but unfortunately for the stable and the horse's backers, she was riderless. Going to the first turn, with Postcript last in the field of ten, the filly ran up on another horse's heels, stumbled and tossed Master Jack Mayer, an apprentice lad who came here from Kentucky with quite a reputation. The boy escaped injury and the filly overtook the entire field to beat J. J. Bauer's Chance Flight, the official winner an even-money favorite, by a head.

Senator Royal S. Copeland, of New York, visiting here, and Col. H. L. Doherty were among the big crowd that saw this rare spectacle. Chance Flight had no trouble beating E. R. Bradley's Bartering Kate by 4 lengths to give form players their first success of the day. Bartering Kate finished 5 spans in advance of A. A. Baroni's Cash Surrender. The time for the 1 mile was 1:39 1-5.

Chance Flight Choice.

Silvio Coucci had the mount on Chance Flight, which was made favorite on the strength of his New York and Maryland form. The gelding was in top condition. He lacked the early foot to keep up, but Coucci got him to running leaving the far side. Bartering Kate, the pacemaker, held a narrow lead until the stretch, where Chance Flight easily forged ahead and drew clear. Cash Surrender was well up all during the running.

Three-years-old maiden fillies cavorted in the initial dash. Chastity, with Porter up, was installed the choice, but the spoils went to the $37.80 chance, Dolice, which beat Chastity by a length and a half in a drive. Wild Rosebud, the early pacemaker, was a fast-stepping third, another half legth behind. Dolice caught the latter at the stretch and was kept under pressure to hold Chastity safe when the favorite made a belated challenge.

Scoutmaster Shows Way.

The veteran Scoutmaster found a field he could beat in the second event. The son of Campfire received a splendid ride from Eddie Kummer and was up to register by a neck over the poorly handled Kibitzer. Lotta Airs was third, a length away. The field ran well bunched until the final furlong, where Scoutmaster overtook Lotta Airs and held Kibitzer safe in the closing strides. The winner paid just over 2 to 1.

Lester Balaski was on much the best plater in the third. The New Orleans lad guided Caterer to a four-length triumph, his backers colleting $12.80 for $2. Lynnewood outran the big field with ease for a half mile, but he was no match for Caterer when the latter was set down at the turn for home. Jane Ellen was headed out of the place award. Lone Hand and Nutlet, both off slowly, finished just out of the picture.

Dancing Mack Repeats.

Once again the talent took it on the chin with the running of the fourth event. Adobe Post ruled a prohibitive choice, but the veteran jockey, Charlie Landolt, nearly fell off the gelding at the break. He regained his seat and the combination wound up second, three lengths behind the recent winner, Dancing Mack. Ninera lost the place by a half length. Dancing Mack ran Ninera down before reaching the stretch and easily held Adobe Post under control to pay $10.20.

It did not take the long-shot brigade long to get back in action, for Sobieha, better than 10 to 1, got up in the closing strides to win by a neck from Fredrick. The latter barely headed Broad Meadows. Sobieha followed Fredrick closely and outlasted him in the final drive.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

Strange as it seems, the flag of the United States has remained the same in principle through most of the Nation's history, yet in each of the six different wars in which this Nation has been involved, a different flag was used. The flag as we know it today is only a few years old.

In the Revolutionary War there were several flags, the best known of which was the flag with 13 stripes and 13 white stars set in a circle on a field of blue. The war of 1812 with England saw a flag with 15 stars to indicate the 15 States then in the Union and 15 stripes instead of the 13 now used.

The Mexican War flag of 1846 had 13 stripes and 29 stars. During the early part of the Civil War there were 13 stripes and 34 stars, but before the war ended the number of stars had been increased to 36 to represent West Virginia and Nevada. In the Spanish-American War the flag had 45 stars. In the World War there were, of course, 48 stars in the flag.

* * * *

President Cleveland was the twenty-second and twenty-fourth President of the United States. He made active use of his power of veto against small bills and although there were 23 Presidents before him, he vetoed more bills than all of them put together—in fact, almost twice as many as all the others. During his first term he turned down 496 bills and during his second he vetoed 310 bills. Most of these were private pension bills and only two of them were passed over his veto.

Dear Al: Tropical Park Race Track, Jan. 16.

I managed to chase home a pair of winners today but they were enough to keep the boss and Mike away. Scout Master, $6.10 and Dancing Mack, $10.20, were the day's successes. Although I wasn't interested in Chance Flight, I want to say that little Silvo Coucci is in rare form these days, and is one rider who gives a favorite some high-class piloting. That is more than can be said for all the jockeys hereabouts. It is hardly as bad as Charles Town, however, where the theme song was "Something Always Happens to the Favorite." But it is bad enough. If you get the wagering urge tomorrow, you might be influenced by the following picks. BILL.

First race—The B. B. Ctable has a fine looking juvenile in Jim Crawford and the clockers say he can step. Breaks off the rail in this hop, skip and jump and appear the logical choice. As far as the others are concerned, one guess is as good as another. Time Ball and Moonside for mine.

Second race—Boy Crazy is apt to provide a surprise in this sprint. TheBradlyite is tending to his knitting, according to those who get out early in the morning. I'm taking a pot shot at him. Making Bubbles a pot shot at him. Making Bubbles and Battling Knight seem dangerous.

Third race—Hasty Peter drops a wad of weight here and gets an 11-pound shift from Happy Scot. The latter ran a miserable race last out. The sleeper of the field may be Suspicious. I've been warned to watch this one closely. However, this is a tough spot.

Fourth race—Caterer turned in a fine effort yesterday to score and hardly will be sent back. The veteran is coupled with Grayback, one that found racing legs up at Charles Town. Either one would have to beat Gibbys Choice. Carvel Hall is in light and is said to be better than rated.

Fifth race—Mervin B gets the Benning's Call in this, with Black Harmony looming as the one to beat for the main end of the purse. Croon ran a smart winning effort the other day and will figure in the action tomorrow.

Sixth race—Little Corporal failed me last week but did not fool me. This fellow is sharp and ready. Prize Package's late form deserves a second ranking. Eurydice for the show award.

Seventh race—Zembla is a good mare and is not to be passed lightly when assigned 102 pounds in a field of this sought. Trek and Bobee to take care of the others.

Roosevelt Five At Episcopal High Today

Game Listed in Alexandria; Twins Drilling for Wash.-Lee Game.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.).—Episcopal High will take on its first real opposition Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, meeting the Ruff Riders of Roosevelt High School. The games will be played in the Hill Top gym.

On Saturday afternoon, the Gilman Country School of Baltimore will be met in the Monumental City. Great rivalry exists between the two schools.

The Twins are working out here daily in preparatoin for their annual game with Washington-Lee High School at Ballston Friday night. In games played to date, the Alexandria five has a decided edge over its neighbors from Arlington County. Alexandria's record of three wins against two defeats stands above the Generals', who have lost two games in as many starts.

Girls in Preliminary.

The girls' teoms of both schools will meet in a fast preliminary at 7:30 p. m.

The Marine team of the Washington Barracks will be the guests of the Boatmen Wednesday night in the Armory Hall, Alexandria.

Bill Hammond, Scoutmaster of Troop No. 141, has issued a challenge to the Times-Herald Seniors. He may be reached at 128, North Payne street, this week.

Lassoing Auto Ruins A Promising Cowboy

Fort Pierce, Fla. (AP)—The cowboy business just about brought death to Paul Collins, 10, and henceforth some other fellows who have to perpetuate traditions of the old West.

Stationed by the highway, the youngster lassoed everything that came in sight, including an automobile.

Minor Ball Looking Up.

Columbus, Ohio (AP).—Joe Carr, promotional director of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, predicts that a half-dozen new Class D leagues will be added to the association this season.

Real Fighting Due Jan. 24 As Ross, Petrolle Clash

By Henry McLemore.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (U.P.).—There has been so much talking and so little fighting in the business of late that it is a pleasure to learn that Barney Ross and Billy Petrolle soon will arrive in Manhattan.

They are coming to scrap it out at the Coliseum January 24 for the benefit of the milk fund and if you, like me, are a bit weary of watching alleged fighters adagio, croon, waltz and, in short, do everything but fight, I advise you to be there. For the Messrs. Ross and Petrolle are unique in that once they get in the battle pit they feel it their duty to fight.

Ross Can "Go to Town."

I can vouch for that. I saw Barney lick Tony Canzoneri here and he can go to town, as the saying goes. He can give it and he can take it. While he is not quite the little gamecock he used to be, Canzoneri still is a powerful sweet 135-pounder, yet Mr. Ross licked him by topping everything he had to offer. When Canzoneri elected to box, Ross stood up and out-boxed him. When Tony chose to spraddle his legs, hitch up his trousers and blast it out, Ross spraddled his own legs, hitched up his own pants, and went to work.

As for Petrolle or the "old man," as his manager, Jack Hurley, calls him, he's just about the most genuine article left in the fight business. Fighting's his life. I know of no finer sight in boxing than Willie, his hammered old face set, shedding the faded, dirty horse blanket that serves him as a robe, and shuffling out in that pigeon-toed stance to meet his man. And what a left hook the old man throws! If there's a harder punch, pound for pound, than that left hook of Willie's, I haven't seen it.

Slug Tourney Urged.

In fact, I have often wished that a punching tournament could be arranged, with all the pugs entered according to weight, and with Carnera's chin, instead of a mechanical gadget, as a register. My choice, up to the light-heavyweight class, would be Willie's left hook. He might not stretch Carnera quite as flat as some of the boys above 175 pounds, but he'd stretch him flat enough for all ordinary purposes.

And speaking of punches, I'd like to see how hard Tommy Loughran could hit. Nobody will ever convince me that Loughran, weighing better than 180 pounds and possessed of perfect timing, can't slug, and slug hard. The trouble is that in a fight you've got to run the risk of getting knocked out to score a knockout, and our Thomas doesn't like the idea.

Washington College Lists 7 Grid Contests

Chestertown, Md., Jan. 16 (Spl.).—Seven football games have been scheduled by Graduate Manager Fred Dumschott, of Washington College, for next season. One open date will be filled later and only two games are carded at home. All the 1934 opponents held places on last season's schedule with the exception of St. Joseph's, of Philadelphia. It is possible St. Joe will get the open date on October 27.

The policy of local athletic officials, following a fairly gratifying season last year, will be to provide opposition among elevens more or less of the caliber of the Maroon and Black, usually a light team, rather than as in the past playing teams obviously superior in weight and experience.

The schedule:

November 3, Mount St. Mary's, at Emmitsbur

Stocks Drive Higher in Spite Of Selling Rush

Firm Undertone Maintained on Trading Total of 3,477,550 Shares.

New York, Jan. 16 (AP).—Stocks today showed what Wall Street calls a "firm undertone;" new buying was sufficient to balance heavy profit-taking sales, with something to spare in a majority of instances, and the net change was a minor fractional advance for the averages.

Trading in most markets was again brisk, stock turnover totaling 3,477,550 shares, or not much under yesterday's.

The investment market's strength was taken as a further token of confidence in a brighter business future and a lifting of monetary anxieties which had been making for hesitancy and uncertainity.

Buying of Dollars.

Buying of dollars was probably not as substantial as the advance in rates would infer, but the currency's recovery indicated to many observers a return of fugitive capital. Brokers reported a fairly good inquiry for American securities from foreign sources.

That yesterday's rise had stirred up interest in our markets was apparent. Stocks started with an enormous volume—transactions of the first hour exceeded a million shares—and were higher in spots, but on the whole made little headway. However, the relative steadiness of prices was evidence that realizing sales were finding new buyers readily.

The market acted in much the same manner all day, although volume dwindled later; many of the extreme fluctuations were narrow. Rails came forward strongly and held up well; industrials and utilities were more irregular. One feature was the strength of preferred stocks, supplementing the demand for bonds.

Rise of Carrier Issues.

Chart followers noted the rise of carrier issues, for their behavior frequently influences market sentiment. Western roads were prominent, Union Pacific climbing 3½ net, Santa Fe nearly 3, and Great Northern and Northern Pacific about a point. Southern Railway, Southern Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio and Pennsylvania also looked up.

American Telephone, Case, Chrysler and Allied Chemical lost a point or two on the day. Electrical equipment issues were popular with buyers, while the mail order shares also firmed. Montgomery Ward announced a $5.25 payment on class "A" stock dividend accumulations, which was taken as a sign of better earnings.

J. C. Penny's December sales volume directed attention to that stock. Steels moved briskly in the morning, then simmered down. U. S. Steel closing ¼ higher, though the preferred did better.

Robey's Review

Finance Economics Business

Creation of Stabilization Fund Is Not Justified Except as Means to Keep the Dollar Below the Price Our Financial and Trade Position Justifies.

By Ralph West Robey.

One of the most important features of the President's message to Congress on monetary policy was the request for a "stabilization" fund of $2,000,000,000 under the control of the Secretary of the Treasury. The fund is to be used for such purchases and sales of gold and foreign exchange, either domestically or abroad, as the Secretary of the Treasury decides are wise. Needless to say this is an extremely wide power to confer upon one individual. A Congress which was performing its real function would not think of granting it without a clear-cut exposition of the general purposes and aims for which the fund is to be used. There has been no such explanation.

In a sense, I suppose, the idea for such a fund is copied from the British equalization fund established some months after that country suspended the gold standard. The similarity, however, is largely superficial. Both provide for the purchase and sale of gold and foreign exchange, it is true, but the underlying conditions in the two countries are so different that the need for the fund and its possible benefits are scarcely comparable. This is so marked that one can not help but wonder what is behind the request for such a fund in this country.

England's Strain From Abroad While Ours Only Domestic.

Consider, for example, the difference in the conditions leading the United States and England to suspend the gold standard. In the case of England it was entirely the pressure from outside her borders. On short-term balance she was a debtor nation, and as a result of financial disturbances in Central Europe, heavy withdrawals from London started. The Bank of England did the best it could to meet these demands, even going to the point of borrowing heavily abroad. Ultimately, however, the strain became too great and it was decided to suspend gold convertibility. It is important to recognize, however, that this was not done until after the gold reserves of the country had been pulled down to a dangerously low point.

In the case of the United States there was no such foreign drain. Earlier there had been a heavy withdrawal of balances by Europeans from this country, but by March this movement had been completed and the flow was turning in our favor. For various other reasons, primary of which was the public distrust of our banking system, domestic hoarding continued. The result was that huge amounts of currency and a substantial volume of gold was withdrawn from the banking system by our own citizens. The strain on our financial system, then, was entirely domestic as contrasted with a strain from abroad in the case of England.

British Pounds Dropped Sharply Upon Suspension.

The result of this difference was that in the case of England the value of her currency in terms of foreign currencies suffered a heavy drop as soon as gold convertibility was removed and tended to fluctuate rather violently thereafter. The purpose of the equalization fund was to remove these fluctuations. In our case the only fluctuations have arisen from repeated shocks administered by the Government and then recovery from these shocks. A stabilization fund here, accordingly, can be needed only in case we want to be certain that the dollar does not rise to the level which the financial and trade position of the country would justify.

Quite aside from the lack of economic justification of the fund is the fact that it means the Treasury simply will enter into a speculation in foreign currencies with Government funds. England, in a far less dangerous speculation, lost incredible sums. There seems to be little reason to believe that one with the training of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau will fare any better. Public well-being would be much better served if Congress refused to grant the fund, at least until it has some idea as to what it is for. The mere giving of unlimited powers does not beget confidence and does not hasten recovery.

Curb Turns Irregular in Profit Sales

Price Changes Narrowed as Trading Rises to 587,000 Shares.

New York, Jan. 16 (AP).—Under heavy profit taking, the curb maintained a comparatively narrow range today. Final results were moderately irregular. Oils and some industrial specialties extended yesterday's advances, but metals, alcohols and utilities yielded slightly.

Trading was heaviest in the forenoon and transfers, which approximated 587,000 shares, were slightly in excess of yesterday.

Utilities resisted well, considering the extent of their recent advances. Electric Bond & Share eased a fraction and American Gas & Electric finished a shade lower. Commonwealth Edison was off 1½, but Columbia Gas & Electrc preferred showed a gain of similar extent.

Aluminum Co. of America rose more than 6 points in a sizable turnover. Other aluminum issues scored proportional gains. Gulf Oil, Singer Manufacturing and Novadel Agene ended around 2 points higher, and Parker Rust Proof at 61½ was up 3¾.

Recessions of fractions to a point or so were shown by Hiram Walker, Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, Newmont, Safety Car Heating, A. O. Smith and New Jersey Zinc. General Tire & Rubber lost 4½ in a light turnover.

Revaluation of Dollar Boosts Winnipeg Wheat

Winnipeg, Jan. 16 (AP).—Word from Washington of President Roosevelt's plans for revaluation of the U. S. dollar spurred wheat futures into feverish activity today and at the close of an active session prices had chalked up gains ranging from 2⅛@2⅜ cents.

The upward drive carried the May delivery to 70⅜ and the July option to 71⅜. Futures had not topped the 70-cent level since last October.

National City Bank to Pay Usual Dividend

Western Union Cuts Loss to $169,561; Tire Net Is $414,912.

New York, Jan. 16 (AP).—The National City Bank of New York today declared the usual quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on the common stock and an interim payment at the rate of 5 per cent annually on the new preferred stock for the period January 13 to February 1, both payable February 1 to holdings of record January 20.

Western Union Telegraph Co. reports net loss of $169,561 for November, compared with loss of $550,110 a year ago. For the first 11 months of 1933 the company had net income of $4,205,346, against a loss of $1,398,454 in the same period of 1932.

November gross was $6,565,327, against $6,110,086 the year before, and 11 months' gross amounted to $74,965,237, against $76,329,372.

A dividend of $3 on the outstanding shares of Pan-American Southern Corporation, payable January 30 to stock of record January 22, was announced today.

Directors stated that the dividend represents a distribution to stockholders of excess working funds and will be paid out of capital surplus.

The corporation, whose stock is 96 per cent owned by Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, was formed to take over certain properties of the Pan-American Petroleum & Transport Co., also controlled by the Indiana company.

Foreign Markets.

London, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—The stock market closed steady after an active business in gold shares had been transacted. This activity followed the advance in the price of bar gold here as a result of Roosevelt's message, which also strengthened transatlantic issues. British stocks were unaffected, while German bonds and oil shares improved.

Berlin—Buiness on the boerse was inactive. The market was unaffected by President Roosevelt's message owing to the indefiniteness of stabilization prospect. Prices closed weak.

Bonds Climb Seven-Tenths; Tone Is Strong

Advance Extended Along Wider Front; Sales, $25,404,000.

New York, Jan. 16 (AP).—Optimistic sentiment continued to prevail in the bond market today, where corporation loans, especially, were unusually active and strong.

The turnover amounted to $25,404,000, par value, the largest aggregate in more than six months. The average for 60 domestic corporate issues advanced seven-tenths of a point to 78.8.

While some profit taking developed following overnight consideration of the Administration's new monetary program, there was a renewed demand in the final hours for some of the favorite secondary rails and utilities. Opinions in the financial district as to the inflationary possibilities of the 50-60-cent dollar varied, but the consensus was that business and industry showed distinct indications of expanding substantially.

Federal Loans Quiet.

United States Government securities were rather quiet but fairly firm. The toal transfers in this section was only about $3,000,000. Gains, however, ranged from two thirty-seconds to fourteen thirty-seconds of a point. The Treasuries recorded the best improvement.

Although secondary rails, utilities and industrials drew the largest followings, prime investment bonds were not neglected. Many issues also appeared which customarily do not show in the day-to-day trading.

Among carriers gainers of 1 to 3 or more points were some loans of Alleghany Corporation, Canadian Pacific, Central Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio, St. Paul, Chicago & North Western, Colorado & Southern, Delaware & Hudson, Erie, Hudson & Manhattan, Illinois Central, International Great Northern, Lake Erie & Western, Missouri, Kansas & Pacific, New England Railway, New York Central, New Haven,, Frisco, Southern Pacific, Texas & Pacific and Wabash.

Wool Markets.

Boston, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—(U. S. Department of Agriculture.)—Trading was broader than a week ago on Western-grown wools, and inquiries were more frequent on fleeces. The bulk of the sales on Western-grown wool consisted of the finer lines at prices that showed a strengthening tendency. French combing 64s and finer territory wools brought mostly 80@82, scoured basis, for graded lines; strictly combing 58s, 60s, ½ blood, territory wool realized 82@84, scoured basis.

Metal Market.

TIN—Market, barely steady. Spot and nearby, 52.50; future, 52.80.

LEAD—Market, dull. Spot, New York, 4.00; East St. Louis, 3.90.

ZINC—Market, steady. East St. Louis, spot, 4.25; future, 4.30.

ANTIMONY—Spot, 7.25.

Goods Markets.

New York, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—Cotton goods were firm today. Print cloth sold on the basis of 7 cents for 38½-inch 64x60s. Bleach muslins were advanced another ½ cent a yard. Denims were up ½ cent and mills are well occupied to March. Silk goods are in active demand at advancing prices. Dress goods are in fair call from woolen mills. Burlaps are firm. Rayon yarns for knitters are being bought more freely.

Cotton Prices React Under Southern Sales

January Closes at 11.21 as General Market Drops 10 to 14 Points.

New York, Jan. 16 (AP).—Cotton was reactionary today following yesterday's sharp gains. March sold off to 11.24 during the morning of 16 points net lower, but recovered part of the loss, closing at 11.30. The general market finished steady, at net declines of 10 to 14 points.

Opening prices were 5 to 11 points lower in response to disappointing Liverpool cables, realizing near month liquidation and Southern selling.

A rally followed, but demand was less urgent than on yesterday's advance, and the market soon eased off again with active positions showing net declines of 15 to 19 points before the end of the morning.

Trade Buying Increases.

Covering and trade buying increased on this setback, but rallies of some 10 or 15 points net increased offerings, which seemed to be influenced by the steadier tone of the dollar and the easier wheat market. May contracts, which had rallied from 11.39, the low point of the morning, to 11.50, closed at 11.44, and last prices were within 4 to 6 points of the lowest for the day.

Selling here for Southern account was light. Early buying by the trade was accompanied by reports of a good overnight inquiry for spot cotton, but according to later advices actual business in spots was less active today.

Exports today 42,586 making 4,605,776 so far this season. Port receipts 27,957. U. S. ports stocks 3,914,430.

Futures Price Range.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was easier today under increased liquidation and renewed selling in July believed to be for Western account, prompted by the easiness of cotton and grains. Final prices were 7 to 10 points net lower. Sales were 46 contracts, of which 26 were in the way of exchanges. Bleachable spot nominal; January closed 4.80; March, 4.94; May, 5.06; July, 5.29.

Daily Oil Yield Increased by 201,255 Units

Tulsa, Okla., Jan. 16 (AP).—Oklahoma, Texas and California, but principally Oklahoma, contributed to the flood of oil last week that shot national crude production up 201,255 barrels in daily average, from 2,165,600 to 2,366,855 barrels a day, the Oil and Gas Journal says. National allowable is only 2,183,000 barrels.

Oklahoma output rose from 377,760 to 548,225 barrels a day, an increase of 110,465 barrels, attributed to the desire of producers to get their month's allowable quickly. The State's allowable is 448,600 barrels a day.

The Texas flow was 932,748 barrels, as compared with 884,000 Federal allocation and 906,688 barrels average the previous week. The Journal's explanation of the increase is that some of it is "hot," or illegally produced, oil.

Britons' Savings Flow to Postoffice

A further expansion in the practice of thrift in Great Britain, perhaps due in part to improvement in the British economic position, has resulted in a marked increase in receipts of the Postoffice Savings Bank, according to a report from the American consulate general, London, made public by the Commerce Department.

There is now £320,000,000 in the Postoffice Savings Bank, a total which is increasing each year, the report points out.

During 1933 the total amount of savings invested in the government institution rose by £26,000,000 against an increase in 1932 of £11,000,000 over that of the preceding year.

Withdrawals for Christmas and holiday spending were notably in excess of 1932, the report states.

E. T. Williams Elected Head of Virginia Group

Clarksburg, W. Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.) Choosing E. T. Williams, of Charleston, as president, the West Virginia Railway Employes and Taxpayers Association has reorganized for the coming year. Williams succeeds W. B. Gibson, of Huntington, who was named a vice president.

Wallace Evans, of Charleston; J. L. Thomas, of Bluefield, and R. E. Barnhart, of Charleston, were also elected vice presidents. Frank McKee, of Kenova, was elected secretary-treasurer, and G. E. Loury, of Huntington, assistant secretary.

French Trade Changes Little In December

Unemployment Rises in Italy; Business in Spain Turns Upward.

French business in December showed little change except for further regression in certain lines; export trade continued slow and the problem of the budget deficit remained unsolved.

Unemployment in Italy has increased at a slightly greater than seasonal rate and the export trade dullness continues; industrial activity, however, has been well sustained by the favorable domestic market.

Although December business in the Netherlands was disappointing general sentiment remained hopeful of satisfactory adjustment; foreign trade for 11 months of 1933 shows a decline of 8 per cent in imports and of 13 per cent in exports.

Business in Spain.

Business in Spain has become more optimistic since the subsidence of social disturbances and several evidences of gradually improving trade have appeared.

Difficult economic conditions still prevail in Czechoslovakia, but employment developments have been slightly better than expected; foreign trade for 11 months shows a considerable reduction of the adverse balance as compared with 1932.

Slight improvement has occurred in several lines of Polish trade, notably coal and lumber, and the tightness of the money market has relaxed slightly.

Increase in Exports.

Increased exports from Yugoslavia in October produced a sharp rise in the favorable trade balance and the situation for 10 months is considerably better than in the previous year.

Egyptian foreign trade turnover in October was considerably larger than in October, 1932, with both imports and exports registering a substantial gain; for 10 months the adverse balance was much smaller than in the previous year.

Sixty-five per cent of the Canadian firms replying to a Canadian Manufacturers' Association questionnaire report better business in 1933 than in 1932.

Newfoundland's Position.

The financial position of Newfoundland has derived stability from the recent change in political status, and the economic situation has been slightly strengthened by the favorable market for the small codfish catch at higher prices than a year ago.

Chinese customs revenues for 1933 were somewhat larger than in the previous year, but left only a small surplus for government expenses after deduction of collecting charges and requirements on foreign loans.

Renewed firmness in the abaca market in the Philippines has slightly strengthened general conditions, but dullness continues in copra demand.

Mining of Gold To Start Soon Near Culpeper

Pittsburgh Interests Buy Property Formerly Operated.

New Market, Va., Jan. 16 (Spl.).—Gold mining in Virginia will be resumed near Culpeper within two weeks, according to information here today.

The property is part of a 7,500-acre tract acquired by Maddux in 1932 and was formerly owned by Amory Stephens. In 1834 this property was sold for $250,000, but the price in today's transfer could not be learned. The mine formerly was operated successfully, but was abandoned many years ago.

Airplane Owner Denied Policy; Agent Wins Fee

New York, Jan. 16 (AP).—Supreme Court Justice Salvatore A. Cotillo today awarded $3,427.21 to an insurance agent in a suit against the National Life Insurance Co. for commissions on a policy which was rejected.

David Harold Byrd, Dallas, Tex., oil man and first cousin of Admiral Richard E. Byrd, had applied for the policy. It was rejected because he was the owner of an airplane.

Austria Hangman Quits After First Execution

Vienna, Jan. 16 (AP).—One job was enough for Austria's hangman, Johann Lang. He has resigned.

Although his uncle was the official executioner in pre-war days, Lang himself never hanged anyone until called upon to fix the noose around the neck of an eccentric hobo, Peter Strauss, January 11. Strauss was executed for burning a farmer's haystack.

A Dangerous Preempt.

Every Bridge player knows the value of preemptive bids, the objective of which is to prevent opponents from getting together at their best contract. No doubt, preemptive bids properly used are extremely effective, particularly when based on hands which are of the type which suggests little possibility of defense but strong possibilities on the attack—in other words, hands with a wealth of playing-tricks if a particular suit is trump, but lacking in defensive strength if an opponent is the declarer. When a player holds a hand of this type, preemptive bidding is clearly indicated, but it is rarely wise to make a preemptive bid above the game limit, as the holder of the West hand below learned to his sorrow when he opened the bidding with five hearts after the other three players had passed.

North, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

| North | East | South | West |
|---|---|---|---|
| Pass | Pass | Pass | 5♡(1) |
| Pass | 7♡(2) | Pass | Pass |
| Pass | | | |

1—West afterwards explained that he was afraid that his vulnerable opponents would reach a game in spades; hence, in order to shut out any overcall at the game level, he bid five.

2—Unfortunately East interpreted the five-heart bid as almost every player would—namely, as a Slam invitation. Even at that his response was entirely too strong but he evidently decided that the heart King was a trick and that the spade Ace was one; hence that West held 11 tricks in his own hand and thus his two tricks must assure the making of the Grand Slam.

In the bidding of this hand both East and West are to blame, West for opening with a bid of five hearts when he has other, better bids, and East for failing to realize that his partner does not have a hand containing 11 tricks. East's bid of seven hearts can not be sound because West can not have 11 tricks in his hand and not have at his disposal a better Opening bid than a Preemptive bid of five.

In actual play the hand was set 3 tricks although, had West played with a little more care, he might have held the set to one or two.

Tomorrow's Hand.

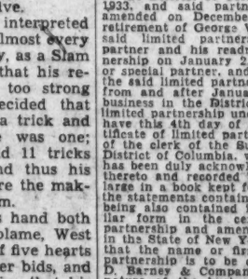
If South is playing a contract of three notrump, against which West opens the club Queen, how should he plan the play of the cards to fulfill his contract

South Dealer.



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Trustees' Sale of Valuable Modern Residence Known as Premises 2922 45th Street Northwest, Wesley Heights.

The exterior makes a picture of quaint charm with its rustic chimney of brick and stone. Attractive grouping of rooms in this compact plan make a very livable home. Many windows make all the rooms bright and cheerful; grouped to leave ample wall space for furniture. The living room is given character by its interesting fireplace and the recessed bookshelves balancing the arch to hall.

The second floor has four good bedrooms arranged with a bath between each group of two rooms. The largest bedroom is over the living room with a southeast exposure. Finished room in the attic.

Two-car detached stucco garage.

SON, WHY DID YOU DO THIS THING? WHAT IN THE WORLD EVER TURNED YOU TO CRIME? TO ROBBERY-THIEVERY-STEALING?
YOU DID IT! THAT'S WHO!
WHAT ARE YOU SAVING? ALL OF MY LIFE I SLAVED THAT YOU MIGHT HAVE PLENTY!
THAT'S JUST IT! YOU WERE SO BUSY MAKING MONEY—YOU DIDN'T CARE WHAT I WAS DOING! YOU WERE TOO BUSY CLIPPING INTEREST COUPONS TO WORRY ABOUT ME.
WHEN I WAS A KID I NEVER SAW YOU MORE THAN TWICE A WEEK. THEN AS I GOT OLDER, I HAD TO MAKE MY OWN FRIENDS—AND CAN I HELP IT IF THEY WERE THE WRONG KIND?
GET OUT! I WON'T STAY IN THE SAME CELL WITH YOU—I DISOWN YOU! YOU AIN'T MY FATHER ANYMORE—GET OUT!
JIMMY-JIMMY!
HE'S OUT OF HIS HEAD.

Walt Mason Himself

Finding an Excuse.

When the good old sun is hidden by a lot of tinhorn clouds, it is roasted, it is chidden, by the angry human crowds. "If the well known sun were shining," they remark, in raucous tones, "we would quit our vain repining, we would cut out all the groans. If we whoop around together, and display disgruntled curves, it's because this beastly weather surely gets upon our nerves. If we do a lot of drooling, crying 'Willow' and 'Alas,' it's because the sun is fooling when it should be cutting grass. If we murmur while we're working, if we deal in sigh and sob, it's because the sun is shirking, it is loafing on its job." Now the good old sun is glowing like a bonfire in the sky, and the sons of men are going to their labors with a sigh. "Rain," they say, "is what we're needing to refresh the baking ground, and the blamed old sun's proceeding on its everlasting round. If you hear us all complaining it's because the weather's dry; we'd be glad if it were raining, if some clouds were in the sky. But the sun goes on forever, all the day and half the night, and it doubtless thinks it's clever, roasting everything in sight. Let us see the clouds assemble, let the fog spread out like gauze, and we'll make the welkin tremble with a thunder of applause." Men must always do some roaring, quite regardless of the price, whether gentle rain be pouring or the sun is cutting ice.

New West End School Urged to Commission

The District Commissioners yesterday heard pleas from a delegation of the West End Citizens Association, asking that provisions for a new school in the West End to replace the Grant School be included in supplemental estimates for 1935.

The delegation said Grant School is overcrowded and has an inadequate heating system. The Commissioners took the matter under advisement.

Youth Using Famous Names Lands in Jail

Providence, R. I., Jan. 16 (AP).—Howard Lawiess, 20, of Troy, N. Y., who had represented himself at various times as Henry Morgenthau, jr., and Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., according to police, was sentenced to 10 days in Providence County Jail on a charge of obtaining $33.75 by false pretenses from the People's Savings Bank here.

$134 Gems, Clothes Stolen.

Clyde Twyman, of 1801 Oregon avenue northwest, yesterday reported the loss of jewelry and clothing valued at $134. He said the articles, including a diamond ring, a ruby ring and small jewelry pieces, were stolen from his apartment.

German Author Given 30 Months for Sedition

Leipzig, Germany, Jan. 16 (AP).—The Supreme Court today sentenced the war novelist, Arnold Friedrich Vieth von Golssenau, to 30 months imprisonment for "preparing for high treason."

A deduction was made, however, of the 11 months and 1 week that the writer, whose pen name was Ludwig Renn, already had spent in jail.

Robbers, Using Torch, Get $7,500 From Bank

Anderson, Ala., Jan. 16 (AP).—Robbers using an acetylene torch early today burned through the vault of the Bank of Anderson, obtaining $7,500 to $8,000, all the cash, including pennies, in the bank.

The robbers broke a lock on a rear door, then burned through the wall and rifled the vault.

Finance Firms Aid Ball On President's Birthday

The executive committee of the American Association of Personal Finance Companies, meeting at their headquarters in the Tower Building yesterday, voted to cooperate with the national committee for the birthday ball for President Roosevelt, scheduled here January 30.

The association has members in more than 300 cities according to Edgar Fowler, secretary here. The executive committee meeting was attended by George H. Kehr, chairman, of Harrisburg, Pa.; R. C. Aufderheide, of Indianapolis; W. W. Hamilton, of Columbus, Ohio; Francis L. Thompson, of Chicago; Charles H. Watts, of New York, and T. J. Harrison, of Waterloo, Iowa.
